Police Halt Angry Africa Marchers

Crisis Continues In Area's Racial Strife

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — An angry crowd of 2,000 Africans slipped out of sealed-off native quarters and marched on Cape Town today but was turned back without violence.

All of South Africa was in a state of crisis and officials feared the weekend would be scarred by new outbreaks of black-white strife.

The government extended the state of emergency declared Wednesday to cover 117 magisterial districts, or more than a third of the nation. It also announced 40 more units of the South African equivalent of the United States National Guard were given standby orders.

This tense day passed without fatal incidents but it was revealed a sick baby girl was shot and killed yesterday at Nyanga, an African location just outside Cape Town. Three more Africans were killed in other incidents yesterday.

FROM NYANGA

It was from Nyanga that the marchers on Cape Town started today. The Negroes were able to get out of the location before police could effectively seal it off.

The Africans formed a body on the main road and headed for the city. Police, on tense alert since a similar march on Thursday which ended only yards from the houses of Parliament, sealed off the road with a solid phalanx of armed men.

The Africans stopped short of the police barrier and district police commandant Maj. J. J. Rheeder ordered them to return to Nyanga. For a few tense minutes it looked as though the Negroes would storm the police line, but they finally turned and went home.

CORDON CLOSES

The military cordon around Nyanga was slammed tight again.

Both Nyanga and the native quarter of Lanaga have been cordoned off since Monday's "day of mourning" for 72 Africans killed at Sharpeville and Langa the week before, when police fired on large Negro crowds.

It was these incidents that triggered the current conflict, the most serious racial crisis in South Africa in several years.

Few Africans from Nyanga and Langa, which provide the major portion of Cape Town's labor force, have shown up for work since Monday. White firms in Capetown have been hiring persons of mixed blood to replace them.

NO COMMENT

Authorities in Cape Town refused to discuss the incident at Nyanga yesterday in which the baby was killed but the evening Cape Argus quoted witnesses who gave this account:

A mother with her child strapped to her back showed up in a car at the police line around Nyanga and said she wanted to take the baby to a hospital. Naval units refused to let the car pass.

As the car was turning around, it was said, a single shot rang out. The bullet struck and killed the baby, going through its body and wounding the mother.

THREE DIE

Three more Africans were killed yesterday when a crowd moved out of the native location of Cato Manor and penetrated the port city of Durban. Police fired on the crowd, killing three and wounding five.

Durban and Cato Manor were uneasily quiet today. Police and military check points backed up by armored cars halted all vehicles and searched all passengers for sticks and other weapons.

U.S. Satellite's Orbit Said Near Perfect

The first cloud pictures radioed yesterday by the new U.S. satellite brought an expression of "marvelous" from President Eisenhower. They delighted the scientists who had fired Tiros I into its round-the-world orbit.

Taken 450 miles up, the first photographs were remarkably clear for such an experimental forerunner of what may be a network of weather watchers that could forecast big storms all over the world.

They took in an enormous quadrant of the earth, centered on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Fleecy clouds spread over much of the U.S.-Canadian area.

PONY EXPRESS 'RIDES' AGAIN IN MAGAZINE

Tomorrow will mark the 100th anniversary of the founding of this country's most colorful mail delivery service, the Pony Express.

A Marin man is in the forefront of the observance planned for this year to mark that anniversary. He is Waddell F. Smith, San Rafael, a descendant of one of the three enterprising men who founded the Pony Express service.

Smith, as president of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn., is spearhearing the observance which will reach its climax in July when riders will again travel the historic Pony Express route on horseback.

You can read about Smith, the Pony Express, and the centennial celebration on Page M-8 of today's Marin Magazine.

Midwest Flood Areas Battle Rising Waters

By UP INTERNATIONAL

Floodwaters from scores of rain-swollen rivers and streams today pushed sandbagging operations to an around-the-clock schedule in lowland communities across the Middlewest.

An estimated 15,000 persons already had been driven from their homes in seven states. Foot-deep snows and rains up to two inches yesterday swelled waterways to torrents in the hardest-hit states — Nebraska and Iowa.

DISASTER AREA

Iowa Gov. Herschel Loveless announced he was collecting flood information to request President Eisenhower to declare parts of Iowa disaster areas, opening the way for low-interest government loans.

About 60 prisoners from the Fort Madison, Iowa, penitentiary joined in a fight to hold in the flooding Skunk River by shoring up an 8½-mile levee.

In eastern Nebraska, residents of Waterloo sent an emergency request to "Operation on Guard" headquarters in Lincoln for more sandbags to shore up waterlogged dikes. The Lincoln headquarters said it was a battle "to save the town."

LEVEE FAILS

A levee gave way near Boonville, Mo., today, and Missouri River waters surged over thousands of acres of farmland east of Boonville. The town itself is on a bluff and not in danger.

The Missouri had spread out over extensive lowland areas in Nebraska, but, like the mighty Mississippi, posed little threat yet to communities along its banks.

The Elkhorn also forced West Point residents out of their homes for the second time this week and deepened over the hamlet of Winslow whose 140 inhabitants moved out Thursday.

SANDBAGS

Volunteers sandbagged the business area of Norfolk, Neb., where 1:30 inches of snow and rain added to floodwaters of the Northfork and Elkhorn. A crew was stranded in Norfolk by snowpacked roads after delivering a load of sandbags.

The rainy weather grounded two C119 Boxcar planes and four helicopters which were to conduct a "Haylift" operation for thousands of head of starving cattle out of Lincoln, Neb. Authorities said several herds of cattle were stranded on patches of high ground.

Heavy rains and snow in the Big Sioux River Valley in Iowa brought new flood warnings to Sioux City and Hawarden.

WARNING

Acting Mayor Fred Kelley of Sioux City urged residents of suburban Riverside to prepare to leave their homes. A 24-hour rainfall of 1.27 inches swelled the Big Sioux River.

About 55 families moved out of Riverside immediately, even though Kelley's warning was just an alert.

Official To Seek Funds For Canal

San Rafael City Manager Dan E. Andersen will fly to Washington, D.C. tomorrow to seek funds for the dredging of San Rafael canal.

Andersen said today he will meet and confer with Rep. Clement Miller, (D-Corte Madera), and appear with him at congressional hearings Tuesday and Wednesday, where they will make a pitch for federal funds.

ASK $185,000

The city manager said $185,000 is being sought. His personal appearance with Miller was arranged after Miller announced that more local interest and prodding would be needed to give him support in a request for funds.

Other support is being provided by the Marin County Development Foundation, Inc., and the Marine Exchange of San Francisco. Andersen said Robert Langner also will be at the hearings as a representative of the exchange, a Bay Area shipping organization which recently endorsed the San Rafael project as the No. 1 priority project in the area.

AIDS ECONOMY

The foundation sent Miller a letter yesterday that said, "the canal is a multipurpose waterway that has a major influence upon the economy of Marin County as a whole but most particularly upon the central portion in which reside about 85,000 of the 150,000 county total."

The letter gives a history of the canal, including the fact that the waterway was ceded to the federal government by the city in 1921 with an agreement that change of title made the federal government responsible for canal maintenance.

Andersen said the canal was last dredged six years ago. The foundation letter, sent by Carroll A. Snyker, executive vice president, said there were 104,141 tons of commercial cargo handled by the canal in 1958, the date of the latest official report.

Andersen said that he, Miller and Langner would appear before a House committee hearing on Tuesday and a Senate committee hearing on Wednesday, both hearings to consider harbors and waterways financing.

Nikita Warns On Treaty With Germany

PARIS (AP)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said today that if the Soviet Union signed a peace treaty with East Germany the validity of Western rights in Berlin would be lost.

The Soviet Premier told a news conference at the end of his formal meetings with French President Charles de Gaulle that if Russia signed a peace treaty with East Germany all consequences of the capitulation of Hitler Germany would be lost, including the validity of all rights gained through the capitulation.

The response was in answer to a question as to how a Soviet peace treaty with East Germany would affect the

First Offenders Have A 'Past' In Marin Child-Molest Cases

By WAT TAKESHITA

A majority of child molest cases reported in Marin during the past few years were committed by "first offenders," according to an unofficial survey by the Independent-Journal.

However, the figures may not present an accurate picture of the ratio between "first offenders" and "repeaters." Here are the reasons:

Some of the "first offenders" have been picked up before on suspicion but were either acquitted, found guilty of lesser offenses, or dismissed because of insufficient evidence. Others may have committed acts in the past but were only caught for the first time. Many undoubtedly go unreported because families involved want to avoid the embarrassment of testifying in court at all cost.

In all such cases, the "first offender" will have clean past records as far as sex offenses go.

In fairness to those who have committed less serious child molest offenses, the term should be defined. "Child molestation" can range anywhere from just being too friendly to children to physical abuse and violence. Sentences vary with the circumstances.

In addition to the "first offenders," Marin has had several repeat-offenders, some of them flagrant violators. These are the ones that have been causing the biggest concern among law enforcement and judicial officials.

This study shows that even after a known sex criminal has been meted out the stiffest sentence allowed for the crime—up to 50 years or one year to life—he can be paroled in four, five or six years. And although prisons are equipped with psychiatrists and other trained personnel, there apparently is no way to determine whether the criminal will strike again, or how soon.

Probation officials describe Atascadero State Hospital as the best-equipped prison in the nation to handle sex offenders. But even at Atascadero, "psychiatric treatment has not been given a real chance because there just isn't the staff for it," a highly placed Marin probation official declared.

However, he said that offenders who get treatment at Atascadero have at least twice the chance of going straight of those who come out of other prisons, such as San Quentin.

Child molesters are difficult to track down and even harder to prosecute because they prey on children who are sometimes too young to testify. But the biggest irony is that those who are finally caught and get the maximum penalty which citizens of the state have provided, can still come out on parole in four to six years. Here are some classic examples in Marin:

The most recent case of a repeater is that of a San Rafael baker, 29, who confessed attacking a 11-year-old girl in San Rafael, followed by a 7-year-old in San Francisco. In police lingo, this man has a "rap sheet a mile long." After a series of thefts, disturbing the peace, and vagrancies, he was convicted of rape-robbery of a Watsonville woman in December, 1950. He entered San

Sausalito Audience Routed From Theater By Smoke

A champagne-sipping audience viewing a sneak preview at Sausalito's Gate Playhouse last night was routed by the pungent odor of smoke and the arrival of two fire trucks and three police cars shortly after 11 o'clock.

Fire Chief Matts Perry led a search of the theater and adjoining grounds and found a smoking incinerator outside a fire exit, but the show's electrician David Arrow said his wiring had been tampered with.

"One spotlight went out and then another, I knew something was wrong," he said. The electrician said he glanced up at the light bank above the stage and saw two people starring back at him.

Edward Williams, member of the acting troupe, said "Smoke began to fill the theater in the last minutes of the play. The audience became restless as the smoke became stronger—even the actors could smell it on stage.

A search of the theater failed to turn up any suspicious persons.

Perry ordered the theater closed, and the master switch pulled.

Actor Ralph McGlothlen, appearing in the new production of "Where's Charlie," surveying the audience milling around on the sidewalk, champagne glasses in hand, quipped, "To think they closed us the night we opened." But Producer Les Abbott reassured him that the show will go on as scheduled next Saturday.

The caterer who served the champagne suffered the one casualty of the evening: A ticket for parking his truck in the red zone in front of the theater.

After that they go to Istanbul, Cairo, New Delhi, Ceylon, Singapore, Djarta, Auckland, Fiji, Tahiti and then to Honolulu to complete a year of travel and adventure.

The Wollmans have leased their home to Miss Helen Beecher who will reside there with her sister, Mrs. L. B. Sullivan.

On April 10, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Superka are giving a supper party to honor the travelers, and the Donald C. Perrys are hosting a dinner for them on April 12. Vic and Irene will journey to Glen Ellen for the dinner Mr. and Mrs. George Harry Webb are giving for them and at Atherton a similar affair will be given for the Wollmans by Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Chase.

In honor places will be her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamshaw of San Francisco who are going to the Orient, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Watts of Berkeley, who are departing soon for Europe. Other guests will be Mrs. Watts' sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cain and Dr. and Mrs. Russell Fletcher. The Cains and their daughter, Candy will be spending Easter Week at Palm Springs.

IN CHARLESTON, S.C. her former home, is Mrs. William Pomeroy of Sausalito. There she was joined by her daughter, Pinky, and six of her senior classmates at Ashley Hall. They'll vacation in Bermuda for 10 days. Bill Pomeroy and sons, John and Bill, are spending the week at Squaw Valley. The boys will leave tomorrow for Simsbury, Conn. where they attend Westminster School.

DELIGHTFUL was the week the Huntley Bennetts and their two children spent at Sugar Bowl, where they had a house. The weather was so warm that many of the skiers wore shorts.

Art Auction To Be Held Tomorrow

Last minute preparations were made today for the Marin Society of Arts auction to begin tomorrow at 2 p.m., at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Pottery, weavings, jewelry and paintings have been donated by more than 400 members of the society. Proceeds from the auction will go to the society's fine arts awards fund, said chairman Mrs. Thomas McWatters Jr.

The fund pays for the awards given at the society's annual are show of the Marin County Fair in July, said Mrs. McWatters.

She said tomorrow's auction will be "a silent one."

"Each art object will have a piece of paper where bids may be placed. At 4 o'clock those objects with no bids will be sold by acting auctioner Edward Cadogan, head of the Marin College Art Department," Mrs. McWatters said.

ALARMS GO HAYWIRE; COPS FRANTIC

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (UPI)—The police department's telephone system went out and someone jokingly suggested burglars had cut the wires and were at work in a bank.

The burglar alarm from the State Bank started ringing.

The desk officer sent all cars to the bank and all available men at headquarters headed there on the run.

The burglar alarm from the First National Bank started ringing.

Then the telephone company's test room called to beg pardon for getting the wires crossed.

36 Receive Their Certificates For Business Course

Thirty-six persons received completion certificates for a College of Marin intensive business management course at a dinner at Rickey's Rancho Rafael, Ignacio, Thursday night.

On hand to pass out the certificates were Walter Castro, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors; Fred Enemark, president of the Marin Industrial Foundation; Rupert Kempf, chairman of the college board of trustees; Dr. Samuel LeCount, director of college adult education, and George Sugarman, instructor.

LeCount and Kempf outlined the responsibilities of the college in presenting such courses, and Castro talked of the utilizing of management knowledge in Marin. Enemark said many new business management people will be required to keep pace with county industrial growth.

Co-chairmen of the event were Jim Powers and Carl S. Clark of Pacific Telephone, and Ed O'Heir of General Dynamics.

School Bonds Approved By Assembly

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Legislation proposing a 350 million dollar state school building bond issue has been approved unanimously by the Assembly.

The 67-0 vote sent the measure to the Senate, which earlier approved a 300 million dollar proposal.

The issue would be submitted to the voters on the June primary ballot if approved by the Legislature.

Assemblyman Carley V. Porter (D-Compton), author of the Assembly version, said, "this is the money which will help build our urgently needed classrooms."

The state school building aid program was started in 1947 to make loans to impoverished school districts. The voters have approved five bond issues for the program by strong margins.

Quentin Escapee Pleads Innocent In Murder Case

SAN BERNARDINO (AP)—An escapee from San Quentin Prison pleaded innocent yesterday in the killing of a California Highway Patrolman.

James Kendrick was arrested at Shell Beach near San Luis Obispo for the Feb. 23 shooting of Patrolman Richard Duvall, 26, near Barstow.

Kendrick also pleaded innocent to robbery and burglary charges. Trial was set for May 9 by Superior Court Judge Carl B. Hilliard.

HAFB Men Jailed After S.F. Fight

Two Hamilton Air Force Base airmen have been ordered to appear in San Francisco Municipal Court Monday at 10 a.m. to answer charges of battery and assault with intent to do bodily harm.

A/1c Lawrence L. Dow and A/2c Eugene W. Bell, both of the 78th Fighter Group, were arrested Thursday at 11:30 p.m. in the Universal Restaurant at 824 Washington street. The proprietor of the restaurant charged the men threatened employees with a meat cleaver following a fight over the alleged theft of some teacups.

Dow is charged with battery and Bell with assault with intent to do bodily harm. Both men were released from San Francisco city prison yesterday on $525 bail each.

Drake High Newspaper Wins Honor

A first-class rating for the first semester of 1959-1960 year was awarded Sir Francis Drake High School's newspaper, the Jolly Roger.

Editor Sandra F. Berke was informed that the paper received one of the nation's 11 first-class awards for a bi-monthly school paper. Ratings are made by the National Scholastic Press Assn. at the University of Minnesota.

The Jolly Roger received highest points in the areas of news coverage, editorials, front page, headlines, typography and printing. The newspaper is printed by students at Tamalpais High School.

Highest loss of points, Miss Berke said, was in the area of lead paragraph writing which judges said had "too many qualifying clauses."

Other Jolly Roger editors are Sherry Philippet, assistant; Thomas C. Sannar and Stephen C. Cook, sports editors. Edward J. Neumeier is adviser.

We're Proud Of Richmond Bridge, Hump And All

Two related items in the news this week gave us real pleasure. First was the passage of the 10 millionth vehicle across the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge. The second was the announcement by the state that although traffic still was not up to estimates, the bridge is "in the black."

It has been easy in the last 3½ years to decry the fact that the bridge wasn't paying its way. Detractors, who had fought the bridge when it was first proposed, chuckled gleefully. People who didn't know about, or who have forgotten, the long waits for ferries—or for months with no ferries at all during strikes—were concerned over the lack of traffic on the span, even though it is carrying more than twice as much traffic as the ferries ever carried. It is hard for persons used to crossing the Golden Gate Bridge to realize there is another deck carrying cars the other direction, you don't have to face them as they whiz by.

Forgotten too is the span's safety record, probably the safest six or so miles anywhere in the state highway system. For once, a structure was built big enough and safe enough for the traffic it would immediately carry.

Then, too, some of the people concerned about the apparent lack of vehicles on the span were worried about the "waste of state tax money" and the fear of "more taxation to pay off the bonds."

But these persons have forgotten, or perhaps never knew, that the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge was not built with tax funds, that revenue bonds were sold for its construction and to repay every cent the state's taxpayers put up for its planning. And there is no danger of taxation even if there was a default on the bonds.

We're proud of our hump-backed bridge; proud of the way it was built; proud of the way it was financed without taxes, and proud that it is now paying its own way.

APPROACH TO GOD

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

HONTESTY WILL OUT

Two contrasting attitudes toward honesty were displayed by a husband and wife in Alaska.

A man who lost his wallet in Anchorage discovered this when it was returned to him five days later with its valuable papers and identification, but minus the cash. This note accompanied it:

"Needless to say, this wallet had money in it and I wanted to notify you and give it back to you. The money is rightfully yours. However, my husband's opinion varies from mine and I am at a loss to get it back to you.

"The old adage of truthfulness seems to have somehow faded out of our present day living. But I want you to know that this letter is written in all sincerity, and I'm sorry I cannot give you the $50 which is your money. If I had picked it up you'd have it."

Honesty "will out" in one way or another. The Creator has endowed everyone with a sense of right and wrong. You can help everyone with a sense of right and wrong. You can help everyone by taking a stand for truth.

"The wicked man maketh an unsteady work; but to him that soweth justice, there is a faithful reward."

(Proverbs 11:18)

Give me the courage, O Holy Spirit, to be honest in all that I think, say and do.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

S.F. Dentist Challenges Roger Kent For Demo State Chairmanship

By CHAPIN A. DAY

The news has seeped over from San Francisco that Roger Kent, Northern California chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has serious opposition for election this summer to his former job as chairman of the state committee.

The opposition comes from Dr. H. A. Tagliaferri, better known to Bay area Democratic workers as "Dr. Tag." He is well known in Democratic circles, heads the Mission Terrace Democratic Club, and has a year-round campaign headquarters right at his Mission street dental offices.

Dr. Tag, who nominated State Senator Richard Richards in his unsuccessful attempt at the U. S. Senate seat a few years ago, is also a long-time Edmund G. Brown supporter.

He's "bucking hard for the job," so we're told, and makes no bones about it any more. Observers label him a middle-of-the-road Democrat and capable of giving Kent a real run for his money.

STATE SENATOR John F. McCarthy smiled broadly when told Max Miller, a San Rafael painting contractor, had filed for the Democratic nomination for McCarthy's job. Charles M. Geller, San Anselmo electrician, already is in the race for the Democratic nomination.

If McCarthy had any idea at all of trying to get both Republican and Democratic nominations with a write-in campaign, he couldn't have personally selected a better named candidate to split the Democratic vote. Miller happens also to be the name of our congressman for whom there will be no little campaigning about that time.

Does McCarthy have any such an idea? In answer, he just smiled—and hoped it would worry the Democrats.

THE YOUNG CALIFORNIANS for Nixon committee was organized this week with a Ukiah Republican and a San Pedro Democrat as co-chairmen.

Four Marin County residents are listed on the organizing committee. All Republicans, they are Wilda Jane Derryberry of San Rafael, William D. Keeler of Mill Valley, and Jeanne Dausse and Paul S. Smith of San Anselmo.

INCIDENTALLY, at Gov. Edmund G. Brown's press conference Tuesday one of the reporters looked at a pen the governor was using to doodle with and asked:

"Isn't that a Nixon pen?" The governor started. It was, with the Vice President's name plainly printed on the side.

The governor quickly explained this constituted no endorsement of Nixon. Nixon gave it to him at the Squaw Valley Winter Olympics opening, he recalled.

HOW HAS OUR Congressman, Clement W. Miller been voting?

He broke a perfect record by being recorded as "not voting" on the rejection of a bill to establish Hubbell Trading Post national historic site in Arizona.

He voted for the adoption of provision for federal referees into the civil rights bill and for passage of the civil rights bill.

SENATOR McCARTHY had his hands full last Tuesday when a sharp-shooting class of eighth graders from Neil Cummins School, Corte Madera, and some special class students barraged him with questions in a Capitol hearing room.

The visiting students, 90 strong, were under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Catherine Burch, Mrs. Robert Betette, Robert Johnson, George Matthews, Leo Zaro and Krieg Vezie, but that didn't stop them from badgering their senator.

PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS?

Ike Sees Difference In Summit Type Meeting

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is looking forward to a different kind of summit conference at Paris next May.

He wants some sessions to provide for strictly private conversations among himself, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain, French President Charles de Gaulle and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The President's interest in getting the Big Four to "explore each other's minds" emerged at his news conference Wednesday. His statements to reporters also developed another intriguing prospect for the future:

THE EISENHOWER administration seems destined to become increasingly in its closing months a kind of caretaker government. Eisenhower did not use any such term as that, but in replying to a question about the possibility of a second summit conference last this year, he noted that more and more questions would arise about his ability to make commitments running beyond the end of his term next January.

At the same time, however, he left no doubt that if a crisis should arise he intends to take whatever measures are necessary to meet it.

Whether the President has already discussed with others of the Big Four his ideas about the nature of the talks to be held at Paris was not clear. But it seemed almost certain that this has been one of the many matters he discussed with Macmillan at Camp David early this week. Macmillan left Washington Wednesday night.

DURING THE summit conference at Paris and Eisenhower's subsequent visit to Moscow in June, major attention especially aboard will still be focused on Eisenhower, however strong his own sense of limitation in dealing with the future may be.

But Eisenhower's own concept probably means that at the Paris conference he will be looking for ways to solve only the more inmediate East-West problems and in such a way that there would be little doubt of his successor's interest in carrying on.

Whether from a practical point of view there are such possibilities, with respect to the long deadlocked issues of unification, the future of West Berlin and major problems of disarmament, is a serious question which only the four men at the summit can answer.

It seems likely that another effect of the terminal date on the President's powers may be to inhibit the administration from embarking on any bold new course or trying any fundamentally new initiative in negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The last summit conference was held at Geneva in 1955. At that time Eisenhower could see a long time ahead in which to carry out his plans and commitments. It was there that he proposed the open skies plan for mutual aerial inspection of the two great powers. Nothing came of it, but if the Soviet Union had accepted the idea on the spot Eisenhower would have been able to see it into operation.

THE MEETINGS at Geneva were larger than those the President would like to see at least on some occasions at Paris.

While the leaders of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union met informally at Geneva and sometimes talked casually over the drink, their business discussions were all held in the presence of at least some of their advisers.

Eisenhower deplored this kind of arrangement Wednesday, saying that when the meetings are held in a room crowded with people the four leaders are "talking at everybody else, instead of talking with them . . . they are talking to their own constituents doing as good a propaganda job as they can."

What he prefers is "four men sitting around the table with their interpreters and, without anybody having any checks of any kind, trying to see if they can, by exploring each other's minds, find out 'what do you really want to do- What could we do?"

ONE SPECULATION is that this kind of a meeting will in fact be aranged by De Gaulle, who is also understood to favor small private sessions of the Big Four. He may take Eisenhower, Macmillan and Khrushchev to his chateau at Rambouillet, many miles outside Paris, for a part of the meeting at the summit.

A New York publisher was entertaining for luncheon a very snobbish Boston dowager who had gone to college years earlier with his wife.

"You New York people," she complained, "make friends of the weirdest people. The old standards seem to mean nothing to you any longer."

Just then a man came shambling down Madison Avenue, with his white hair waving in the wind, a banjo tucked under his arm, and a sheaf of paper bulging from his pocket. "Look at that fellow, for example," sniffed the Bostonian, "I'll bet you know him, too."

"Indeed I do," said the publisher heartily. "I'd like to introduce you to Mr. Carl Sandburg."

Two DA's Deputies Find Their Own Names Among Traffic Complaints

Two young deputies of the district attorneys' office prosecuting traffic tag cases, came upon a couple of complaints the other day that really stumped them. Their own names were on the two complaints.

While they were busily convicting other violators, sheriff's deputies had dutifully tagged their cars, parked in the wrong slots in the courthouse lot.

The young DA's would probably been happy to prosecute each other, but the judge decided to call in the county counsel.

It's set for next Tuesday.

EVER SINCE the sheriff's bowling team vowed they'd win first place in their league, they've hit a slump.

The other day team member Ellis Seibert picked up his bowling ball bag and found two bricks inside instead of his ball.

Could it be a reminder from the boss of what to expect if they lose?

THERE SEEMS to be more than meets the eye in Marin City pastor's case.

Unless the case is settled quietly pretty soon, you can look for some eyebrow-raising revelations.

THE PROPOSAL to make a national park out of the Pt. Reyes area is raising a few grumbles from the old timers there who want to keep it the way it is—wide open and uncluttered.

They're using this psychological approach to discourage any park:

The Big Bend from Tomales Point to the lighthouse is an awfully dangerous beach with a tremendous undertow. Don't you remember about a year ago, two persons drowned when a youngster got sucked in and an adult went after him? And then just a few days ago, a 19-year-old youth disappeared into a caldron of seething water.

ESPERANTO, the international supplementary language, seems to be catching on here. They're starting a class at College of Marin next week.

Adherents claim it's the best language advanced yet, because each nation retains its own language and uses esperanto as a supplementary language.

And esperanto, since it belongs to no nation or race, does not carry the stigma of being a foreign language.

IF THE BARBARA GRAHAM confession controversy hadn't died down this week, rumors are that the state had another ace up its sleeve.

A well-known, old-time attorney, who once represented Emmet Perkins, was reported all set to spring this little gem:

That Perkins saw Barbara Graham take part in the Mabel Monahan slaying.

THERE PROBABLY won't be any public book-burning, but police are reported closely watching some of the slick cover books that have been popping up on the news stand shelves lately.

The word is that they'll quietly suggest that certain ones go off the shelves. One in particular is about police officers, and it isn't exactly complimentary about the law.

What One Expert Thinks Of State's Method Of Printing Own Textbooks

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — An interesting article on state textbook policies which helps explode the myth that government can produce books cheaper than private enterprise, appeared in a recent issue of the Phi Delta Kappan.

The article is by Lewie W. Burnett, who is on the staff of the school of education at George Washington University, Washington, D.C. It has particular reference to state printing of text-books in California.

The article says in part:

"STATE PRINTING has stressed economy so intensely that the State Board of Education has often been guilty of rejecting the strongest textbook series available in order to adopt a cheaper series.

"The final choices, therefore, have not always been good ones and individual schools have elected to spend district funds to secure better books.

"Those additional expenditures, plus the money needed to fill the gaps caused by state shortages, have probably more than eliminated any initial savings that might have been effected by the state printing of textbooks.

"THE HIGHER cost of state purchased textbooks is so minor when compared to the total expenditures for education in the state that its restriction for reasons of economy cannot be vindicated.

"As it now operates, the policy of state uniformity and state publication in California cannot be justified because it does not substantially reduce expenses to the school districts, it does not offer materially improved textbook services, and it does produce objectionable educational consequences."

Burnett also points out that the important consideration is to devise a system of providing an ample and unrestricted list to the California school children of the best modern textbooks available.

"NOTHING should obstruct that objective, not even the trouble of constitutional revision," he declares.

"State printing has resulted in a very limited textbook selection which has often given mediocre books to the schools of California. The present state series is not evaluated as strongly by textbook experts as are other series not available to California. Most disconcerting is the fact that some books on the current state series are proving unsatisfactory to the teachers and administrators of California.

"State printing has resulted in longer periods of adoption, necessary to make state printing economically feasible, but they make it impossible for California to adopt some of the newest and best textbook series for four or five years after they are installed elsewhere."

THE STATE Board of Education attempted to correct this deficiency when recently it adopted a series of readers, available only from private firms.

But the legislature refused to pay the bill, at the behest of promotors of government printing. As a result, the students apparently will have to get along with mediocre books.

Tiburon Church Names Its Permanent Minister

Dr. Benton S. Gaskill has accepted appointment as permanent minister of the Belvedere-Tiburon Community Congregational Church for an indefinite term, Arthur D. Talbott, chairman of the organizing committee, has announced.

The announcement was made Wednesday night at a dinner at the Southern Marin Recreation Center. Dr. Gaskill has been organizing minister for the church.

He is former minister of the Bushnell Church in Detroit, prior to which he served for 10 years at the Congregational Church in San Mateo. He has been moderator of the Northern California Congregational Conference and president of the group's board of directors.

The church has been holding 11 a.m. Sunday services in the Tiburon Playhouse since last September. The Sunday School, which meets at the Belvedere Nursery School, was organized in February.

A permanent site has been acquired on six acres above Hawthorne Terrace for a church building. Charter memberships are being accepted until Easter, according to Dr. Gaskill.

Christianity In Dismal State Under Rule Of Red Chinese

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The dismal state of the tiny Christian community in Communist China has often been likened to the persecutions of Roman Emperor Diocletian.

It's an apt comparison.

Since the Red armies of Mao Tse Tung overran the Chinese mainland more than 10 years ago, the government has dedicated its best efforts to erasing Christian influence from the face of the land.

The sentencing of Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh, accused of conspiring to overthrow the Communist regime, points up Christianity's desperate state. He's one of the last foreign missionaries left in China.

Catholic sources in the United States list three foreign missionaries in addition to Bishop Walsh as remaining on the Chinese mainland. Before the Red takeover, there were more than 5,000.

Two of the remaining missionaries are Koreans. They are identified only as Fathers Kim and Yen. They were last heard from more than a year ago. Apparently, they are in jail.

The other is a German priest, Rev. Peter Hungsberg, who, says a Catholic spokesman, apparently has gone over to the Communists. At last reports, he was working as a German translator in Peiping.

Protestant missionaries have fared as poorly.

At the end of 1949, says the Missionary Research Library of the Union Theological Seminary, there were about 2,000 American Protestant missionary workers active in China. Today there are none.

At least one, Rev. Paul Mackenson, a Lutheran, is still in China, teaching English in a Communist school. He has served a prison sentence in Red China.

The decline of Christian efforts in China is vividly illustrated by Roman Catholic missionary statistics.

In 1948, a year before the Communist triumph, there were 5,380 Catholic foreign missionaries—bishops, priests, brothers, scholastic and nuns—active on the mainland. About one in 10 was American.

Four years later, the total was down to 723.

Between 1948 and 1959, says a church spokesman, 510 American Catholic missionaries were expelled, a number of them after periods in prison or under house arrest.

Church Choir Sets Progam In Sonoma

The adult choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will present a concert of sacred music in the United Church of Christ, Sonoma, tomorrow, beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Among the works to be presented are "Sweet Is the Work," by Robson; "Save Us, O Lord" by Bairstow; "Come, Ye Faithful" by Titcomb, and the hymn, "The Royal Banners Forward Go," the tune of which was composed by G. Franklin Morris of San Rafael, the organist-choirmaster of St. Paul's church.

Morris will play, in addition to the choral presentations, "Lord, All My Heart Is Fixed on Thee" by Karg-Elert, and "O Sacred Head Once Wounded" by Bach.

A meditation during the concert will be given by Rev. John Riley, rector of St. Paul's.

Family Church To Present Program

The Family Church of Marin, located at the Women's Improvement Club, 167 Tunstead avenue, San Anselmo, will present a talk and film showing tomorrow night by Ben Seaver, secretary of peace education of the American Friends Committee.

Theme will be "Time for Greatness."

Coffee and doughnuts will be served at 6:30 p.m., with the program to start at 7:30.

Fat And Lazy?

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern Baptists, one of the fastest expanding of all Protestant denominations, are accusing themselves of getting "fat and lazy" and becoming religious "spectators."

"The besetting sin of Southern Baptists," says Convention President Ramsey Pollard of Knoxville, Tenn., "is the sin of taking it easy, getting to be fat and lazy."

"Spectatoritis is the blight of our religion today," adds Howard E. Butt Jr., a prominent layman evangelist from Corpus Christi, Tex. "When a person's religion consists of coming to a service and listening to someone else perform, that person's religion is paralyzed."

Pollard and Butt spoke at a recent convention of the Baptist Training Union.

Aid to India

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Church World Service, overseas relief arm of the National Council of Churches, has approved a $300,000 project of aid to refugees in the areas of West Bengal and Calcutta, India.

Easter Sunrise Services Set Atop Mt. Tam

Easter sunrise services will be held at 6 a.m. Easter Sunday at the Cushing Memorial Theater on Mt. Tamalpais. It will be the 39th anniversary of the event.

The services are co-sponsored by Mill Valley citizens and Air Force personnel of the 666th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron stationed on the mountain.

SPEAKER

Rev. Gaines F. Dobbins, professor of church administration of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry Point, will give the Easter message. D. J. Kalal, chaplain of Hamilton Air Force Base, will officiate.

Adequate parking space is available, according to George E. Holmboe, superintendent of Mt. Tamalpais State Park. He said Mill Valley Boy Scouts will assist with parking and ushering.

SIGNS PLANNED

Signs will be placed along Panoramic Highway leading to the Mountain Theater by members of the 666th Squadron, Capt. Richard K. Hurliman, public information officer, said.

Hurliman said that, as in the past few years, a lighted cross will be installed on the 100-foot antenna poles at the squadron's location. It will be lighted each night for the week ending with Easter.

President Of Seminary To Be Evangelist

The San Anselmo Avenue Baptist Church will begin a revival meeting tomorrow, Rev. Edward C. Derr, pastor, announced.

Dr. Harold K. Graves, president of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry Point, will be the evangelist. Music will be under direction of Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, professor of music administration at the seminary.

Services will be held each evening at 7:30 p.m. and will continue through April 10. The nursery under the direction of Mrs. Joy Reed will be open for each service.

Religion In School

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Council of Churches is taking steps toward defining the role of religion in public schools.

The NCC's Committee on Religion and Public Education has approved a provisional document declaring schools should reflect a fundamental faith in God but should not formally teach any concept of God.

Doctrinal teachings are the responsibility of the church and home, says the document, while development of ethical conduct is the duty of church, home and school.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, April 2nd, the 93rd day of the year, with 273 more to follow in 1960.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1805, a Danish writer of fairy tales was born. He was Hans Christian Andersen.

In 1863, bread riots broke out in Richmond, Va., as the Confederacy faced an alarming shortage of foodstuffs.

In 1902, the first moving picture theater opened in Los Angeles.

In 1932, Charles Lindbergh and Dr. John Condon turned over $50,000 in bills to an unidentified man in St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx section of New York City. They did so in the hope of regaining Lindbergh's kidnapped son.

A thought for today: Second U. S. President John Adams wrote: "All great changes are irksome to the human mind."

Giant Castoff Winning Pitcher In S.F. Defeat

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It didn't take big Red Worthington long to get even with the San Francisco Giants.

Worthington was the winning pitcher yesterday when the Boston Red Sox beat the Giants 8-6 in 10 innings.

The Giants had traded Worthington to Boston just last Tuesday for Jim Marshall.

Haywood Sullivan did the Giants in with a two-run double in the top of the 10th. That was the last of 17 Red Sox hits off four Giant pitchers and wasted four San Francisco homers.

The Giants had been doing fine with southpaw Billy O'Dell on the mound. When he left, after the seventh, San Francisco led. 6-3.

But Ramon Monzant, who took the mound in the eighth, walked Boston lead-off man Marty Keough and then another former Giant, Bobby Thomson, boomed a long triple. That finished Monzant and brought in Bud Byerly, who gave up a sacrifice fly that scored Thomson.

Pumpsie Green, who hails from El Cerrito, singled in the ninth for Boston to tie the score at 6-6 and send the game into extra innings.

Worthington, who came in to pitch in the ninth, retiring the Giants in order in that inning and allowed only one single, to Ed Bressoud, in the 10th.

The Giants' Joe Shipley, who pitched the 10th gave up a single to Randy Jackson. After Willie McCovey fumbled Lou Clinton's sacrifice bunt, Sullivan doubled to deep-right center to wrap up the contest.

Wasted were a pair om homers by Willie Kirkland and one each by Jim Davenport and Orlando Cepeda.

Hawks, Celts In 3rd Game Of Playoffs

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Hawks and the Boston Celtics square off before a sell-out crowd in Kiel Auditorium today in the third game of the National Basketball Assn. championship playoffs.

The teams are 1-1 in the best-of-seven series, which the coaches promise will be a down-to-the-wire battle.

"They're rugged anytime we meet them," St. Louis Coach Ed MacCauley said. He also noted the Hawks had been defeated by the Celts six games out of nine during the regular season.

Red Auerbach vowed his Boston team would be up for the series.

"Their pride is stung," Auerbach said, "but they're pros. Whether they win or lose is entirely up to them."

Besides season statistics, the Celtics have another advantage as a result of Hawk injuries.

Bob Petit, St. Louis star, is suffering from an injured back and Larry Foust has a knee and heel injury. However, both were expected to see action today.

One bright spot for the Hawks was Al Ferrari, who has been a playmaker and fireman for the club.

The series will shift to Boston Tuesday night for the fifth game and the sixth, if necessary, will be played in St. Louis Thursday. If a seventh game is needed it will be played in Boston next Saturday.

Giants To Put Opening Day Seats On Sale

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants announced yesterday that about 7,000 grandstand seats and 2,200 bleacher seats for opening day will go on sale Monday morning.

All other seats have been sold out for the opening day game on April 12 against the St. Louis Cardinals. The game is expected to fill Candlestick Park to its 45,000 capacity.

A club spokesman said the sale will start at 10 a.m. and no mail or telephone orders will be handled. The limit is four tickets per person.

MAGUIRE SCHOOL WINS

Edna Maguire School defeated Neil Cummins School, 2-1 Thursday in a baseball game. Chuck Locati led the winners with two hits while Pat Smith was the winning pitcher.

Marin Ski Club's Junior Races Slated Tomorrow

Marin Ski Club's executive committee announced that three ski races are scheduled for members of the club during the remainder of this ski season.

The junior race, sponsored by the club and open to high school students in Marin, will be held tomorrow at Donner Ski Ranch on highway 40.

On Saturday, April 16, a beer race, open to members and their guests, will be held also at the Donner Ski Ranch. The following day, Sunday, the Berkeley Ski Club has challenged Marin Ski Club to their annual grudge race. It will take place at Sugar Bowl and will be a giant slalom. The preceding evening members of the Marin club will be guests of the Berkeley club at a party in the latter's lodge near Soda Springs.

The next regular meeting of the Marin Ski Club will be held next Wednesday, 8 p.m. at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo. At that time the club's summer social activities will be announced and officers for the 1960-61 season will be elected. Guests are welcome to attend.

Tamalpais Swim Meet

Tamalpais High School swim team tied for runner-up honors Thursday in a triangular meet at Berkeley.

Final scores were University of California freshmen 73 and Fremont and Tam 53½ each.

Tam's Class B team, paced by double winner Tony DePrado, downed Fremont, 54-32 for its seventh straight victory.

College All-Stars Meet Peoria In Cage Finals

DENVER (AP) — Peroria's tournament-wise AAU champions and the NCAA university all-stars, bristling with Oscar Robertson and three other All-Americas, battle tonight for the championship of the U.S. Olympic basketball trials.

To the winner will go at least five places, and possibly seven, on the 12-member team that will wear the Stars and Stripes in Rome this summer.

Robertson and All-America Jerry West poured in 51 points between them to bury Akron, Ohio's AAU Wingfoots 103-88 in last night's second round before 8,500 at the Denver Coliseum.

Peoria, winner of the 1952 Olympic trials, broke out of a 9-9 tie on the shooting of 6-6 Tom Meschery of St. Mary's College and never trailed the rest of the way in beating the NAIA small college stars 89-68.

Ohio State's NCAA champions, spilled by the NAIA club 76-69 in the first round, bounced back with an 89-79 consolation victory over the NCAA All-Stars coached by Arad McCutchan.

Bartlesville, Okla., champion of the AAU's national industrial league, conquered the Armed Forces Stars 88-74 and will play Ohio State in a consolation match this afternoon. The other afternoon contest sends the Armed Forces against McCutchan's NCAA crew.

Akron and the NAIA team play in the night curtain raiser before the championship game.

The championship game sends Peoria's closely knit Cats against one of the greatest collections ever of college stars. Besides Robertson, who hit 29 points last night, and West, who bagged 22, the NCAA university unit includes two other AP All-Americas, 6-11 Darrall Imhoff of California and Tony Jackson of St. John (N.Y.).

Against that array of talent, Peoria sends 6-8 Bob Boozer, 6-9 Don Plunkett and 6-9 John Prudhoe as well as fine outside shooters in Don Ohl, Al Kelley and Howie Crittenden.

Warren Womble, Peoria coach, led the Cats to the Olympic trials championship in 1952 and coached the U.S. Olympic champs that year. The Cats have compiled a sizzling 53-won, 6-lost record in tournament play since 1951. In that time they have won five AAU championships.

John Havlicek swished 26 points in guiding Ohio State to its consolation triumph over the NCAA stars. All-America Jerry Lucas snared 22 rebounds and scored 15 points.

Burdie Haldorson canned 17 points and Jerry Shipp 15 in smoothing Bartlesville's way to the victory over the Armed Forces. Individual honors went to Jim Smith of the servicemen with 18.

NEWEST GIANT HAS NO NEED FOR VALET

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jim Marshall, the San Francisco Giants' new first baseman-outfielder, belonged to three clubs within three days early last week.

He bounced from Cleveland to the Boston Red Sox to San Francisco when the Giants traded Red Worthington for him.

"I don't worry about packing any more," he said. "I just whistle and the clothes jump into my suitcase."

Tiger Defeats Vic Zalazar In TV Fight

BOSTON (AP) — Rugged middleweight Dick Tiger wants a crack at Gene Fullmer, Paul Pender and Sugar Ray Robinson but it looks like he'll have to defend his British Empire championship first.

So said Jersey Jones last night after Tiger hammered out a split 10-round decision over Argentina's Victor Zalazar at the Boston Arena in a nationally televised fight.

Jones, who identifies himself as Tiger's "representative," said in the dressing room "Tiger hasn't defended in just over two years."

Jones added he had received a cable from Mickey Duff, manager of Terry Downes, for a Liverpool title match "and me may have to go over and take it."

Tiger, shorter, stockier and more muscular than his lanky South American opponent, finished strong last night. He dominated the first half of the fight, then had some trouble from the jabbing Zalazar before taking the offense again.

Tiger is the eighth-ranked challenger according to the National Boxing Assn. while Zalazar is unranked.

Tam, San Rafael And Novato Capture Marin Track Meets

Coach Glidden Benefield's Tamalpais Indians led by double winners Ray Edwards, Bob Hector and Russ Cook, defeated Drake's Pirates, 70-43 yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League dual track and field meet marked by excellent performances for this stage in the season.

In other varsity competition San Rafael's Bulldogs swept every first place to whip Marin Catholic 84-22 and Novato shaded Redwood 58½-54½, although Novato's Bill Henderson, who ran a 9.9-second 100-yard dash last week, finished third in his specialty.

RECORDS FALL

Tam's second straight dual meet victory was highlighted by a school record performance by Edwards in the 180-yard low hurdles. Big Ray, also a football and basketball star, skimmed the low timber in 20.2 seconds, beating the several-year-old Tam record held by Enard Johnson by one-tenth of a second.

Edwards also won the high jump with a nifty leap of 6 feet 1 inch.

One of the most thrilling races of the afternoon came in the 120 high hurdles in which Tam's All-Northern California footballer Bob Hector won in the time of 15.4 seconds. It was a "blanket finish" with Tam's Russ Cook second and Drake star Bailey an eyelash behind in third spot. Hector also won the 440-yard run in 52.6 seconds.

Cook was Tam's high scorer as he won the 220 in 23.4 and the shot at 48 feet, 4 inches, placed second in the high boards and ran a leg of the winning relay.

San Rafael's victory was paced by the 13-point performance of Billy Knopf with victories in the 120 high hurdles (16.5) and the pole vault (10 feet) and a second in the discus.

Joe McNern won the quarter mile in 55.1 seconds and the 220 in 22.8 to pace Novato's victory, but the big surprise in this meet was Henderson's poor showing in the century after his 9.9 effort against Marin Catholic last week. Henderson was third in the time of 10.8. The victory went to Redwood's Dave Bortfeld in 10.5. His teammate, Mike Allessio, edged out Henderson for second place honors.

SOUGHT DAMAGES

Woman Convicted On Charge Of Perjury

A Novato mother, who gave false testimony last year in an effort to collect injury damages from Greyhound Lines, was convicted of perjury late yesterday by a Marin Superior Court jury.

The jurors deliberated for about an hour and found Mrs. Shirley J. Wisener, 37, guilty of committing perjury. Maximum penalty for perjury is one to 14 years in state prison. She can also be given probation or a county jail term.

Judge N. Charles Brusatori, who presided over the trial, set Monday as the time for sentencing. Public Defender Peter Allen Smith, who defended Mrs. Wisener, indicated he may ask for a new trial.

Mrs. Wisener, mother of five and wife of an Army sergeant, sued Greyhound last year, alleging she suffered injuries to her back, spine and legs while getting off a bus in January of 1958. Trial was held last October. During the trial, she testified under oath that she had never had previous back or headache troubles or blackouts or neck trouble.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety, prosecutor, introduced Veterans Administration records to show that she had claimed blackouts, headaches and backaches in 1954, long before the bus incident. She had told the Veterans Administration she was injured in 1943 while working for the Marine Corps.

After the conviction, Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich asked that Mrs. Wisener's bail be raised from $500 to $1,500. He pointed out that Mrs. Wisener's home is in Kansas, and she is already on probation for bad checks.

Her attorney vigorously opposed the bail increase, pointing out that Mrs. Wisener has showed up for all court appearances in the past, and is living with friends in Novato.

Judge Brusatori pointed out that perjury is a felony offense and she is no longer cloaked with the presumption of innocence. He ordered her held in jail unless she can put up the $1,500 bail.

D.A. Checks Bills For 'Advertising'

Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich said today he has cited a San Francisco directory publishing firm to appear in his office at 11 a.m. Tuesday to discuss what he termed misleading advertising mailed to Marin businessmen.

Operators of various types of business houses throughout Marin yesterday received in the mail, in window envelopes closely resembling those used by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., what at first glance appeared to be bills for directory listings.

The "bills" are made up in form similar to that of telephone company bills for yellow page directory listings.

They bear the return address of Commercial Directory Publishing Co., 112 Market street, San Francisco.

The printed matter includes the warning: "Return this solicitation with payment or initial advertisement will not appear." Elsewhere it says, "This proposal and solicitation form must be returned to insure insertion of your first advertisement in the new 'state business and buyers guide.'"

In fine print in the additional advice: "This is not an invoice or renewal. We have no connection with any other publication or telephone companies."

Weissich said, "It appears to be this is misleading advertising, illegal under the Business and Professions Code."

Some Marin businessmen received several copies of the "bill." Oakley Dexter, proprietor of Dexter's TV in Larkspur and immediate past president of the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce, said he received nine, all in different amounts ranging from $14.25 to $75.

Richard L. Shirley, secretary of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, said merchants should be warned against the advertising lest they mistake the solicitation for a bill for an already-ordered directory listing.

Vernon Libby of the San Francisco Better Business Bureau said: "Someone in a busy organization, thinking that it is a bill from the telephone company for yellow-page advertising, might, in haste, order payment, then regret it.

"It's a cunning advertising device, and it might be found to be misleading."

Libby said the Commercial Directory Publishing Co. is run jointly by Wade R. Lundegard of Pleasant Hill, formerly associated with a firm that produced "Treasure Chest" coupons, and Robert Spillers, a Redwood City real estate man. Spillers, incidentally, is a candidate in the April 12 municipal election for his fourth four-year term on the Redwood City Council.

Nuclear War Survival

"Alas Babylon," a story of survival in a small isolated community after the outbreak of nuclear war, will be dramatized on "Playhouse 90" at 8 p.m. tomorrow on KPIX-TV. Carmel Booth, civilian defense director of San Anselmo, has urged citizens to watch this timely production.

rights of the Western big-three powers in the German city.

The Soviet Premier declined to be drawn into a comparison of his talks with de Gaulle and his earlier meetings in the United States with President Eisenhower.

He reiterated his opposition to all atomic test blasts when asked to comment on the French test explosion in the Sahara yesterday. He said he regretted the two French tests took place.

"I am convinced France will adhere to any agreement that is reached" on a suspension of tests, he added.

If such an agreement is reached, Khrushchev said, it would certainly be more difficult for France to continue atomic testing.

Several times during the news conference Khrushchev was warmly applauded.

He started off with a warm tribute to France and thanks to Gen. de Gaulle for inviting him to France.

In answering the first question of the day, he said he was now optimistic about prospects for the mid-May meeting of big-four leaders in Paris.

"We have worked well and done much," the Soviet leader told a big news conference after winding up his private negotiations with de Gaulle.

The first concrete result of his visit was an agreement by France and the Soviet Union to cooperate in the field of science and the peaceful applications of atomic energy.

Khrushchev said that his wish for world peace had been strengthened in his talks with de Gaulle.

He added, however, they had not settled all the problems between them.

"We have exchanged views on diverse problems," he said. "We have talked frankly. We have tried for a better understanding and I think we have succeeded."

He called for greater cultural and economic exchanges so that all countries could mutually profit.

Khrushchev returns to Moscow tomorrow at the end of an 11-day visit

Quentin on Jan. 1, 1951, for a term of up to 50 years. He was paroled on April 26, 1955.

In March of 1959 in Redwood City, he was picked up on suspicion of lewd acts toward a child, but the charge was reduced to vagrancy. He served 30 days in jail. In August of the same year, he served another 30 days in San Mateo County Jail for child molestation.

Then this year came the attacks on the San Rafael girl and the San Francisco child. The San Rafael attack was not even reported by the parents. The man's own confession brought it to light.

San Francisco is prosecuting the man, and San Rafael has a "hold" on him.

Another recent repeater was a San Francisco fruit vendor, now 63, who befriended girls in the Marinwood area last year and lured them inside his closed truck. His known record for sex offenses dates back to 1942 when he drew five years probation in Los Angeles for child molesting.

In 1945, he gave three Los Angeles girls money for pony rides, then attacked one of them. For this, he drew one year to life and served in prison from 1947 to 1953. Last year, he was caught in Marin and is now serving another term of one year to life in state prison.

Here are some other repeaters, and the penalties imposed on them:

1. Records show that as a teen-ager, this man served time in Minnesota prison for attempted assault on a 6-year-old girl in 1954. In June, 1957, he was arrested in Marin for delinquency involving a 9-year-old girl. He drew five years probation and was ordered not to associate with minors. In March, 1959, aged 24, he was convicted of lewd acts on another 9-year-old. He is now at Atascadero as a sexual psychopath.

2. An out-of county man, 36, was convicted in Oakland in July of 1957 for sex perversion. He drew 60 days jail and three years probation. In May, 1958, he molested a boy, 14, in Marin. For this he drew two years probation, 60 days in jail and a $350 fine.

3. A draftsman, 31, was convicted of child molesting in San Francisco in 1955. He drew one year probation and a $100 fine. In 1956, he was convicted of perversion in Marin. He underwent treatment at Atascadero for more than one year and was put on five years probation in December, 1957.

4. A cab driver, now 37, was suspected of molesting a boy in 1953 and convicted of contributing to the delinquency of a minor in Marin. He drew one year in jail, suspended, and three years probation. In 1957, he was arrested for perversion and committed to Atascadero as a sex psychopath. In November, 1958, he got out on five years probation after treatment. In December, 1959, he was picked up on suspicion of child molesting and is now serving one year in county jail.

5. A gardener, 37, was arrested in 1952 for molesting boys under 14. He was sent to Mendocino State Hospital for observation in October, 1952. In February, 1953, he drew five years probation. In 1955, he was picked up again on suspicion of perversion. He was convicted of contributing to the delinquency of minors and sentenced in February, 1956 to 90 days in jail and 90 days on weekends.

6. A 44-year-old dairy worker has a record dating back to 1936. At that time, he was convicted of lewdness toward a 9-year-old boy. In 1939, he violated probation and served six months in jail. In 1942, he was suspected of lewd acts toward a child but sentenced for indecent exposure. He got a suspended sentence and two years probation. In 1944, he was sent to Napa State Hospital for indecent exposure. This year, he was arrested again for indecent exposure in West Marin, and the case is still pending.

There have been several other cases of repeated exhibitionism (indecent exposure), which probation officials explain is not essentially a sex offense. A probation officer who has made an extensive study of exhibitionism reports that in almost 100 per cent of these cases, the offender does not progress into more serious sex offenses.

The fact that exhibitionism outrage public decency certainly cannot be minimized. However, the specialists do not consider these offenders as dangerous sex criminals. Cases of indecent exposure and peeping Toms are not covered in this study.

The role of a probation officer is essentially that of helping the offender rehabilitate himself. To the layman, a news report that a man "got out on probation" may sound as if he is scot free.

However, he may have to serve time as a condition of probation, undergo psychotherapy and abide by other conditions. A person on probation must report regularly to his probation officer, giving changes of address, occupation, marital status, and his activities. If he fails to obey the rules, he is hauled into court as a probation violator. For child molesters, one of the rules is not to associate with minors.

The amount of supervision that a probation officer can give to those on probation depends on the number of cases he handles. The more cases he must supervise, the less attention he can give to each person.

Marin County's probation officers point with a certain amount of satisfaction to the number of first offenders who have been returned to society without—as yet—repeat violations.

Here are some of the first offenses and the dispositions made:

1. A 65-year-old man admitted perversion acts on a 4-year-old girl in 1957. There was some indication he had molested another child during the same period. He was sent to Atascadero from October, 1957, to April, 1959, then released on five years supervised probation.

2. A dishwasher, 50, was charged with perversion involving a boy, 16, in 1957. In June, 1958, he drew three years probation.

3. A young soldier was accused of raping a housewife in 1956. The case was dropped because the victim could not take the stand. In March, 1958, the same man was convicted of vagrancy for making lewd remarks to young girls. This was the first morals offense of record because the earlier rape charge had to be dropped. He drew 10 days in jail and three years probation.

4. A 37-year-old man, mentally retarded, molested a 5-year-old girl in November, 1958. He was treated at Atascadero, then sentenced in June of 1959 to three years supervised probation.

5. A 30-year-old San Francisco man molested a 5-year-old girl in Southern Marin in 1957. He spent 120 days in jail and drew three years probation.

6. A 25-year-old student molested a 9-year-old girl in 1957. He drew 90 days in jail and two years probation.

7. An elderly ranch hand molested several 12-year-old girls in November, 1958. He went to Atascadero for four months, then drew five years probation on condition he enter Napa State Hospital.

8. Another retired man, age 76, who kept a 7-year-old girl overnight in his cottage without harming her was freed on condition he go back to his home in Hawaii.

9. A man, 32, who molested a 4-year-old girl, drew five years probation last June.

10. In March, 1957, a 38-year-old laborer was arrested for molesting a child. He spent more than a year at Atascadero and then drew five years probation.

11. A 43-year-old man was charged with perversion in 1958, pleaded guilty to contributing to a child's delinquency, and drew two years probation. He had other prior records such as petty theft and assault and battery, but no previous morals offense on record.

12. A 31-year-old service station worker got three years probation and six months in jail in December, 1956, for molesting a child.

13. A 34-year-old Terra Linda man was convicted this year of sexperversion with two small boys over a period of two years. Other parents complained that a boy and a girl, about 5, were also molested by the same man, but he was not tried on these charges. Sentence is pending.

Pupils In Enriched Classes May Be Penalized With Lower Grades

Is it wrong to put bright children into "accelerated" or "honors" courses in high school? Sometimes it is.

Here's an odd situation:

Many of our high schools now have accelerated or honors courses for bright students. The idea is to enrich the work of the more able kids, and to challenge them. That sounds reasonable, doesn't it?

But there is a catch—grades. Most of the bright youngsters have been getting "A" or "B" grades in their regular classes. They need high grades to get into college. If they hope to win scholarships they must have mostly "A's."

But the teachers in some of the honors courses have been giving "C's" and "D's." Although their classes are composed only of "A" and "B" students they grade according to the old normal curve. That means some of the youngsters in honors classes are penalized badly.

So before you put your bright teen-ager in an accelerated class, investigate. If you find out he'll be apt to get a lower grade than in a regular class, stick with the regular class. For college entrance an "A" in a regular geometry class will count more than a "B" or "C" in an enriched geometry class.

As far as college is concerned grades matter more than enrichment.

What's the solution? It's simple. When honors classes are established, faculties should agree to give fewer "A" grades in regular classes. Then they should give only "A's" and "B's" in the honor classes. No "C" grades at all.

The students who work at "C" level should be put back in the regular classes in a hurry.

(Q) "My son is learning to print, in the first grade. This is a slow way to write. When will he learn to write properly?"

(A) In another year or so. Printing is easier for him now. Also printing makes it possible for his writing to help his reading, and vice versa.

Three Men Draw Jail Sentences For Watch Deals

Three San Francisco men, who gave stories of woe to palm off cheap watches for $30 to $35 in Marin County, must spend 15 days in county jail each.

They appeared yesterday before Judge Leonard A. Thomas and pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the county's soliciting ordinance. The three are Arthur Thomas Bucalos, 44; Edwin Benvenu Bucalos, 35, and Louis Fred Esper, 36. The three are also being held for San Francisco on suspicion of robbery there last December.

Sheriff's inspectors said the three men, working with two women, are believed to have raked in $10,000 a year in profits on the wrist watch deals. They bought the watches for $7.50 apiece and represented them to be worth $135 to gullible citizens, according to Inspector Bowen Bridges.

Runaway Girl, 17, Tells Of Journey

A 17-year-old runaway girl from Florida gave herself up to Marin authorities yesterday and gave sheriff's deputies an account of a harrowing cross-country flight.

Two highway patrolmen found her walking south on Highway 101 about 1 a.m. near Marinwood.

The girl told Inspector William C. Bradley that she married at 15, entered a girl's institution in Florida for car theft, and then escaped. She hitch-hiked to Los Angeles, then to San Francisco. Last night she got a lift from a truck driver from Mendocino to Marin. When he "got fresh," she said, she left the truck and was walking toward San Francisco when picked up.

She was held at Marin Juvenile Hall.

Man Faces Trial On Hit-Run Count

Thomas Eugene Porter, 22-year-old truck driver and laborer from Pt. Reyes, must face trial on a felony hit-run driving charge, as a result of a head-on crash near Olema on March 17.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas bound Porter over to superior court on that charge after a preliminary hearing yesterday. Porter was also charged with felony drunken driving, but this was dropped because of insufficient evidence.

Highway patrolmen and Deputy Sheriff William S. Christensen said Porter fled the crash scene. There were no witnesses in court yesterday to testify that Porter was intoxicated at the time of the crash.

Two women in the other car were seriously injured in the mishap. Porter also suffered bruises but got away, according to patrolmen. He was later picked up in Albany.

Adult Classes To Start Spring Term

The San Rafael High School adult classes at Hamilton Air Force Base will start the spring term Monday.

The eight-week term will include courses in English literature, U.S. history, California civics, general science and basic mathematics.

Civilians or military personal may take any of these courses for high school credit without charge, said Robert R. Royle, director of adult classes. Persons interested in working toward a high school diploma may obtain information from Royle at the high school.

All classes meet twice a week in Building 585 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Registration extends through second meeting of each class.

SHOW MUST GO ON . . . BUT IT WON'T

The Independent-Journal was in error yesterday in reporting that there would be performances of the Ross Valley Junior Players production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" this and next weekend.

The final performances of "Arsenic and Old Lace" were presented at the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross last weekend.

There will be no more performances.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Coast Guardsman Convicted On Burglary Charge

A young Coast Guardsman from Pt. Reyes Lifeboat Station will be sentenced next Tuesday for burglary of the Rite Price Market in Inverness on Feb. 15.

A jury heard the case for five days before Judge Richard M. Sims in Marin Superior Court and found Theodore R. Abrams, 22, guilty of second degree burglary. The jurors deliberated for an hour and a half and brought in the verdict at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Penalty can range from probation to 15 years in state prison.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales, prosecutor, introduced evidence showing Abrams stole about $275 in cash, two radios, a pair of binoculars and an electric shaver from George Ludy's market. The loot was recovered except for the shaver and binoculars.

The Coast Guardsman contended that he had been drinking heavily that day and does not recall what happened because he had an alcoholic blackout.

Judge Haley To Sit In Superior Court

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court will serve on the Marin Superior Court bench for the next two months.

Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson of the State Judicial Council has assigned Judge Haley as acting superior court judge for April and May, County Clerk George S. Jones announced this morning.

Judge Richard M. Sims, who served on the higher bench for the past two months, is back in municipal court.

This is not the first time that Judge Haley has served in superior court. He was acting superior court judge for two months in 1958 and again briefly in 1959.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Bad Fire Year Feared

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Forestry officials in California, alarmed at this third consecutive year of sub-normal rainfall, predicted today that the 1960 fire season could be the worst on record.

"We just haven't had the heavy rain that soaks into logs and dry stuff on the ground," said W. D. Winters, deputy state forester in charge of fire control.

Unemployment Climbs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state expects to begin paying extended unemployment benefits beginning next week, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown blames "adverse federal policies" for the slight increase in the number of jobless.

Brown said yesterday that statistics for the first quarter of 1960 probably will show that more than 368,000 Californians —6 per cent of the job force— were out of work. Under a state law passed by the 1959 Legislature, emergency unemployment pay of up to $50 a week for an additional 13 weeks goes into effect when the 6 per cent figure is reached.

The governor said most of the unemployment was in the defense and construction industries.

Derailed Train Burns

GATESVILLE, N.C. (UPI)— About 29 cars of an Atlantic Coast Line freight train derailed today and burst into flames when a gasoline tank car erupted.

First reports indicated that no injuries were involved.

Gloom In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The actors strike against major movie studios threatened today to cast a pall over Monday's Academy Award show, traditionally Hollywood's major event of the year.

No new talks in the Screen Actors Guild walkout were expected before Tuesday because of the award presentations. Bargaining sessions between the guild and association of motion picture producers were canceled Wednesday and Thursday just when a settlement appeared imminent.

Guild executive secretary John L. Dales blamed the new stalemate on the "ever-absent" presidents of the major studios who fail to support their negotiating teams.

New Teamster Monitor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent has been named to the strife-torn board of monitors that is supposed to clean up corruption in the Teamsters Union.

He's Terence F. McShane, 32, who directed a FBI wiretapping probe involving Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. McShane resigned from the FBI this week to take the monitor post.

"I don't think it takes too much imagination to see what this is all about," said Hoffa, "but we'll judge his activities as he goes along."

Bomarc Work Halted

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP)—The Air Force has halted construction of 28 Bomarc missile launching sites here.

The Bomarc program is being cut back 300 million dollars to increase production of Atlas intercontinental missiles and missile-detection satellites, the Air Force said yesterday.

Bomarc is a Boeing-built surface-to-air missile, designed primarily for use against raiding bombers. It has a range of about 400 miles.

Construction of Bomarc launching facilities also is being halted at Paine Air Force Base, Wash.; Adair AFB, Ore., and Travis AFB.

Cubans Report Raids

HAVANA (AP)—The newspaper Revolucion carried reports today of new cane-burning attacks "by airplanes coming from the north" but gave little evidence to support the charge.

The newspaper of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement said there had been "new incursions of pirate airplanes from the north" in the past 48 hours.

Airline Offer Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department is studying a Russian offer to discuss regular commercial airline service between the United States and Russia.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said yesterday the note revived discussions held in 1958.

Economy Run Starts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The 1960 Mobilgas Economy Run gets under way today with 56 cars taking part in the longest trek in the 24-year history of the event—2,064 miles from here to Minneapolis.

It is also the largest entry list in the history of the run, a test of gasoline consumption on a per mile basis, and also a test for the drivers who must maintain an average speed of 40.75 miles per hour over a set distance each day through a variety of driving conditions.

Drivers include 20 women and 36 men.

Girl Chosen To Study In Foreign Land

Duane (Dee Dee) Haney, 16, a San Rafael High School junior, has been named an American Field Service exchange student.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Haney of 26 Tierra Vista way, San Rafael, she will attend school in a foreign country the first semester of her senior year.

Dee Dee hasn't yet learned what country she will go to, but she is hoping for a French or German-speaking one. She has studied both languages.

She is an accomplished dancer and singer and played a lead role in the school's most recent musical production, "Bits of Hits." She is treasurer of the school's music society and member of the a cappella choir.

Dee Dee studied ballet and is a member of a singing group, the Ross Valley Seniors, directed by Byron Jones.

Thirty-seven applicants from San Rafael High had applied for the American Field Service program and the group was narrowed to six whose applications were forwarded to the service's headquarters in New York. Dee Dee was the only one selected.

San Rafael High now has a student in Italy as part of the experimental program of spending a whole year in a school abroad.

Reward Offered For Person Who Tortured Poodle

Clayton M. Chapman of Larkspur has offered a $10 reward for information leading to the apprehension of persons guilty of "unusually cruel treatment" of his valuable French poodle, Chappie.

Chapman, who live at 143 Elm avenue on Palm Hill, said he believes youngsters are responsible for recent torturing of the year-old dog.

The second such incident occurred Wednesday, he said, when someone tied one end of a string to the dog's right hind leg and the other to a fence, then tossed sticks and rocks down the steep hill for Chappie to "retrieve." The string cut the dog's flesh to the bone as he ran after the sticks and rocks, said Chapman.

The first incident was identical except that the heavy string, "tied very securely with two large knots," was fastened to the dog's other hind leg, Chapman related. He said Chappie, now recovering in a pet hospital, suffered severe wounds both times 'and it's costing me a lot of money."

Larkspur Police Chief Howard Clark promised an investigation.

Coast Guard Boat Answers Aid Call

A cry for help off the Belvedere shore sent the Coast Guard searching Thursday night for an outboard motorboat with four persons aboard, but when searchers arrived, the boat had vanished.

Belvedere Police Chief William S. Woodington said he received a telephone call at 6:30 p.m. reporting a girl had cried "get the Coast Guard" from a 14-foot outboard 50 yards off the old fish docks. The Coast Guard station at Ft. Point got a call about the same time, but when its search craft reached the scene, no boat was in sight.

2 Cars Found In Odd Spots In Mill Valley

Two cars, one with driver, one without, were found in strange surroundings Thursday night and yesterday by Mill Valley police.

Sgt. Ben Hartwell found a car in the front yard of Mrs. Mildred Wright at 403 Throckmorton avenue at 4:50 a.m. today. The motor was cold and there was no driver about. Mrs. Wright said she discovered the car, about four feet from her front stairs, when she let the cat out.

She said it had torn up two trees and gone through three hedges.

The car was registered to Mrs. Lourdes Robertson of 418 Throckmorton, who called police at 6:13 a.m. to report it stolen.

Last night at 8:40, Leo W. Baker, 19, of 1025 Irwin street, San Rafael, was cited for speeding by Patrolman Lee Sellers after he found Baker's car extending six feet over Mill Valley Creek near 129 Miller avenue. It had left 120 feet of skid marks on the pavement, said Sellers.

Baker told Sellers, "As I entered the curb my door came open and I fell out."

Washing Machine Stolen From Firm

A thief made a clean getaway with a brand new automatic washing machine from the storage yard of Rafael Floor Covering and Appliance Inc. in San Rafael, the owner complained Thursday.

San Rafael police said the washer was valued at $196. It was inside an open shed in the the company storage yard at 439 Francisco boulevard. The yard is enclosed by a six-foot steel fence.

Charles Oliver, co-owner, said that a few days ago, crushed rock was dumped against the gate, and the gate could not be closed.

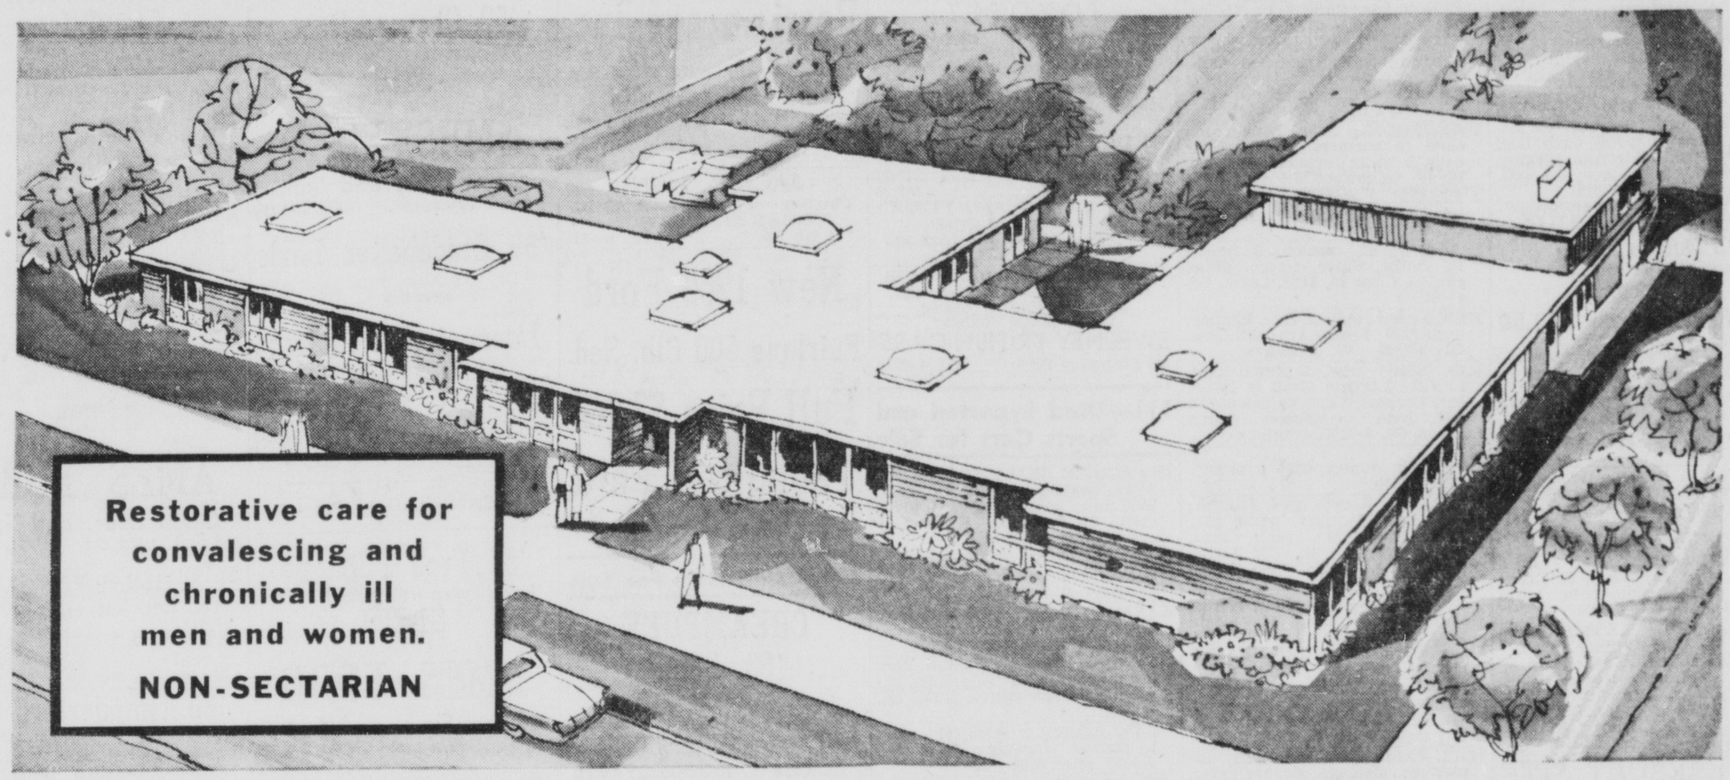
HILLHAVEN
CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL



OPEN HOUSE SUNDAY, APRIL 3rd 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.
233 West End Ave. (On The Miracle Mile) San Rafael Phone GL 6-5054

A pleasant way of life for the long-term or convalescent patient

Hillhaven offers a more pleasant life for those who are unable to care for themselves. The building itself was designed for the exclusive use of Hillhaven, according to strict specifications prescribed by Hillhaven, Inc., a nationally known leader in the design and management of convalescent hospitals and nursing homes.

Hillhaven bears no resemblance to the old-fashioned "nursing home," neither does its appearance remind one of a conventional hospital. At Hillhaven every convenience has been incorporated for the care, safety and well-being of patients, who are served with skill and affection by a carefully selected and trained staff.

Light, airy, bright, cheerful

Spacious rooms and corridors . . . tastefully landscaped, protected patios . . . bright, cheerful interior decorative effects . . . these all contribute to a feeling of being at home.

Nurses' station provides feeling of security

At the conveniently located nurses' station, there is always someone who "knows what to do." At Hillhaven 24-hour nursing care is provided by a carefully selected and trained staff under the supervision of registered nurses.

Conveniently located

Hillhaven is conveniently located . . . is close to doctors' offices and other medical facilities, when needed.

"Safety First" is not merely a slogan

Throughout Hillhaven extreme care has been taken for the safety of patients. Handrails in hallways encourage patients to "do for themselves." Doorways and hallways are extra wide to accommodate wheel chairs and beds. Bathtubs have sides slightly lower than usual, with handrails for safety, and "drive-in" showers are provided for wheel chair patients. Special Simmons vari-hite beds may be raised and lowered from hospital height to standard height. Safety side rails are provided when needed and call-light buttons are easily reached.

Cheerful bedrooms provide privacy — homey living room encourages sociability

Bedrooms at Hillhaven are styled for beauty, comfort and efficiency. They are decorated in soft pastel colors, accented with harmonious drapes and furniture. Each patient has ample storage space. Private, semi-private and multiple-bed accommodations are available. The living room was designed to be lived in. Furniture is arranged for easy conversational groups and an adequate supply of reading material is always available. There's a large-screen television, of course, and plenty of room for wheel chair patients to roll in and park.

Spotless kitchen prepares excellent, well-balanced meals

The finest and most modern equipment available has been installed in the Hillhaven kitchen and only the best foods on the market are purchased. Food is tastefully prepared and attractively served. The chef follows doctors' orders regarding special diets.

Every day is cleaning day at Hillhaven

Every day the busy, modern Hillhaven laundry eats its way through mountains of linens, towels and other items. Housekeeping and maintenance services are carried out by Hillhaven's own housekeepers and maids. Here there is no compromise with cleanliness.

IN NEXT WEEK'S MAGAZINE—

EVERY SEAFARER, whether a working merchant mariner or a Sunday yachtsman, appreciates the protection that the vigilance of the men of the United States Coast Guard affords him. It is one of Uncle Sam's most vital and most colorful services to the public. And nowhere is the Coast Guard more important than in the nautical-minded Bay Area. In next week's Marin Magazine reporter Dorothy Slattery and photographer Jim Kean team up to give you a close-up look at some of these Coast Guardsmen at work.

MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

Our Daredevil Columnist Ends Spin With Knees Skinned, Egg On Face

THE BREEZE was mostly from the east, so after warming up the engine of the Taurus I taxied down to the west end of the runway of the old San Rafael Airport and wheeled around into the wind.

I gave it the gun and the ground beneath me was a blur as the tiny craft gained speed. Even the chuckholes in the much neglected runway smoothed out to the sight though I could feel a vibration in the framework as the wheels of the Taurus passed over them.

This was an open cockpit job and as I wore neither helmet nor goggles the air was sharp on my face, stinging my eyes and nose. The motor had now settled into a steady drone and I could detect no misfire that would make this anything but a perfect takeoff.

I had now gone about half the length of the runway. My foot pressed hard on the throttle and my knuckles were white as I clenched the three-quarter segmented wheel in my hands. Faster and faster I sped. Quickly now I would be near the end of the strip but there was no lessening of the jouncing to indicate that my wheels had left the ground.

I REMOVED my foot from the pedal and, just before the last few yards of macadamized runway were swallowed up I risked an overturn. Pulling hard on the wheel I spun right off the pavement and taxied up to the fire fence which bordered the field where my wife and Wayne Clements stood watching me.

"How do you shut this thing off?" I asked Wayne.

He stepped over and touched a lever and the motor coughed and died. I climber out of the tiny Putt-Nik racing "kart" and stretched my cramped limbs.

"Quite an experience," I said. "It works like a power lawn mower and is five times as much fun. How fast was I going?"

IT WAS HARD to believe that I hadn't surpassed 35 miles an hour. Only six inches from the ground it had seemed like the state speed limit.

A few minutes later I was out on the runway again for a second heat, racing my wife in a companion model of the Taurus, the Aries.

Wayne Clements who has repaired our television for Westland more times than I'd care to count had invited us down to try out his bugs. He has secured a dealer's franchise for the Putt-Nik and hopes some day to organize a Kart Klub and set up a racing course on the abandoned airfield where he maintains an office and salesroom.

Marin already has several Kart owners who run them in vacant lots, schoolyards, parking lots — anywhere but on the streets where they are verboten. Greatest number of enthusiasts are to be found in Southern California and in Florida where thousands experience the vicarious thrills of making like racing drivers without the spills.

NOTABLE participants in the sport are Jack Paar, his announcer Hugh Downs, and Air Force Vice Chief of Staff General Curtis Le May.

The two and one-half horsepower motored open Kart is simpler to operate than a bicycle and anyone from 9 to 90 can qualify as long as he has two feet—one for gas and one for the brake—and hands to steer with.

"It's almost impossible to get hurt," said Wayne, and to show what he meant he jammed on the brakes hard in a turn. The tires lost rubber but the vehicle remained erect on all four wheels.

Of course I had to demonstrate that there is no such word as impossible—no fault of the Putt-Nik, you understand. It was after I had climbed out of it that I made the beautiful three-point landing.

One hand, one knee and that thing on my face which something usually happens to when I go poking it into other people's business.

Meet Betty Deedy—A Very Busy Woman

Mother Of Six, She Still Has Time For Civic Duty

By DOROTHY BLACKMAN

Take one huge, 25-room house, complete with garden.

Six children, assorted ages, busy with school and activities. One husband, equally busy.

And there are the ingredients to keep any woman on her toes.

Add the heavy responsibilities of a trustee of the College of Marin and you have the schedule of Elizabeth Deedy of Ross, a very busy woman, indeed.

Since her election in 1958 as the second woman member of the board (she is now the only woman member), Mrs. Deedy has given time that "I couldn't begin to measure" to her work with the college.

Yet, somehow, she manages the care of a large house that sometimes — filled with the Deedy children and their friends — doesn't seem quite large enough. And she does it with no outside help.

THE SMOOTHLY running household is due, in large part, to a "very wonderful family . . . a marvelous team" who recognize mother's interest in the community and, specifically, in education, and are patient if dinner is a bit late.

"I don't believe my activity on the board has meant for one moment that my children have been neglected," says Elizabeth Deedy in a soft-voiced, pleasant South Carolina accent. "My work has developed self-reliant children who are better informed on the responsibilities of citizenship."

The Deedy "team" includes husband Daniel F., executive secretary of the Marin County Real Estate Board; daughters Margaret, 16, and Kathy, 14, students at Redwood High; Doris Ann, 12, and Charlotte, 8, who attend Ross School; sons Danny, 9, also at Ross, and Billy, 4½. There is also Vicki, the boxer, who arrived for Christmas, and four cats, Mitsy, Mrs. Cat, Blue Eyes and Green Eyes.

Mrs. Deedy manages to accomplish all that she does by making every minute count. "I have to have a schedule, but not one that runs me," she says. There is time to talk to a visitor on her ideas about education, to discuss college problems with President Ward Austin who may drop by before a board meeting that night, time to adjust little Billy's cowboy holster, then rush off to take her turn at the car pool for the school children. And time for two regular board meetings a month, plus special and committee meetings.

MUCH OF HER work for the college is done during the day, at home. As a board member she must do a lot of studying and reading. If she has to go to the college during the day, Billy goes with her.

But when the kids come home from school, mother is there. She doesn't leave for night meetings at the college until after dinner, when homework is under way and the small children are in bed.

"I like knowing my children and enjoying them," she says.

She likes the children to feel that their home is a place where friends can drop in any time. And every youngster in the Deedy family has a set of duties in that home. "I believe a child can learn early the absolute necessity and simplicity of picking up behind and keeping things straight. But it's a harder lesson to teach boys than girls," she laughs.

Elizabeth Manning Deedy was born in Atlanta, Ga., but lived there only a short time. Her home was in Charleston, S. C., for a number of years, and she spent a lot of time in Cheraw, S.C., where she still has close relatives.

Both her mother, Eoline Richardson, and her father Charles Sinkler Manning, come from old South Carolina families who were active in state politics—one of the reasons for Betty Deedy's interest in government.

THE SOUTH is still close to her heart and interests. Call it the "Civil War" instead of the "War Between the States" and her eyes begin to twinkle at such a mistake.

Her ancestors fought in the war, and her great-aunt and grandfather had difficult experiences during that time. The family buried their silver at the time of Sherman's march through Georgia to the sea.

This heritage has given her a certain impatience "when people damn the South so freely." She feels that the South is an exciting place today where people are "doing a better job of solving local problems than has ever been reported in the press."

Her last visit to the South was seven years ago, and she hopes to go again this Spring.

Mrs. Deedy speaks with pleasure of her school years. When she was a junior in high school, she was sent to a boarding school in Nashville, Tenn., for two years. Those were "very exciting and glamorous years." She attended a lot of parties, met many people, and had "many escapades" that go along with life in a girls' dormitory.

When she finished high school, she thought she wanted to write and study journalism. The depression prevented her attending a large university, so she went to Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S. C., a state college for women, for a year.

THAT SUMMER Betty became very interested in astronomy. She put on glasses—but unfortunately didn't smoke them — to watch an eclipse of the sun. As a result, her sight nerves were paralyzed and her sight was affected so that she could only see halves of things. She spent a year in therapy and had to give up college during that time.

When her sight came back, she went to the all-girl Queens College in Charlotte, N.C., but, she remembers with a smile, a boys' college was only a few miles away, and there was a "great exchange of social activities."

Her college was operated by the Presbyterian Church, and it was very strict. "We meditated on Sundays." But she had a wonderful time there. "Its was a very enriching experience in every way," she says.

Betty majored in English and French and minored in psychology. She was active on the school newspaper, but gave up the idea of going into journalism on the advice of the Charlotte newspaper editor who felt there was little opportunity for women.

She became interested in sociology and psychology. In her senior year she received a fellowship at the Pennsylvania School of Social Work. But then she was offered a position at the University of Pennsylvania and decided to give up the fellowship and the idea of doing social work. "I never would have been any good at it," she declares.

IN HER JOB at the university she was on the dean of women's staff, in charge of all resident women at the university. She worked on revision of student government, counseling, budget management, and student activities. "I enjoyed it thoroughly," she says of her four years on that job. And she enrolled in psychology courses to get her master's degree.

Then Betty decided she needed a change and wanted to travel. So she came to California where her mother had settled in Alameda.

She planned to get her doctorate here and began meeting her German requirements at a language school. Then came Pearl Harbor — "and life took another turn," Mrs. Deedy recalls.

Dan Deedy, a Yankee soldier from Massachusetts, was sent to California in charge of an anti-aircraft battalion stationed in Alameda.

Betty was working in a serviceman's hospitality center which she managed for a while. The two were introduced by a mutual friend, and in 1942 they were married.

Then came a number of moves. Deedy was sent to Vallejo, where he was in charge of the searchlights that flickered over the hills of Marin. The next move was to Riverside, and there Betty waited while her husband was sent to Texas, Virginia, Washington and New York.

FINALLY DAN was put in charge of special services to recruit local talent shows to sell bonds, and Hollywood talent shows. He was transferred back to the Bay Area to Fort Mason. By then Margaret and Kathy had arrived, and the whole family moved into living quarters on the fort.

But they had decided they wanted to make Mill Valley their home and found an old hillside house on Throckmorton avenue. They remodeled it as the family grew and "struggled to make a level spot for the children, so they wouldn't walk off into space," Mrs. Deedy says.

After some 10 years, however, she persuaded Dan that she would be healthier and happier on a level lot and in a warmer climate. "I loathe cold summer days," she says emphatically. Both enjoyed Mill Valley and their friends there, but they decided about three years ago to move to Ross where they find it easier to rear the children.

It was in Mill Valley that she first became actively interested in schools. She was a Parent-Teacher Assn. chairman of parent education and later a P-TA president. She served on the education advisory council where she worked closely with the board of education on bond issues, tax increases and other matters.

Mrs. Deedy served two terms on the Mill Valley School District board and was chairman for three years. Then she took a year off "to concentrate on dahlias and diapers."

AFTER THAT year she got restless. She had been interested in the College of Marin since she had lived in Marin, and with the encouragement of friends, she ran for the college board.

In that election she polled a surprising 9,050 votes, to run more than 1,500 votes ahead of the second highest candidate. On the board she joined Mrs. Ada M. Fusselman, the first woman to be elected a member.

Betty Deedy feels that the junior college is a "unique opportunity for people right in their own backyard."

Now in her second year of a four-year term on the board, she believes that the college "is still at a point now where its real potential hasn't begun to be developed."

The college shouldn't be a simple transfer school, she insists. There is "immeasurable opportunity" for terminal type courses, she feels, and always many possibilities for adult education.

"Exciting things could be made available as we expand as a community college," she says. The board is now studying the possibilities for an extended day program with courses leading to an associate in Arts degree. And this, Mrs. Deedy believes, will be a "very exciting thing to watch develop at the college."

ASIDE FROM the challenge offered by an expanding population, "anytime a school board has the challenge of selecting a new administrator, the school experiences a new kind of vitalization," she points out. With the approaching retirement of President Austin, this subject is of top priority in the thoughts of board members.

She believes that Marin County has the opportunity now to begin development of a good integrated educational program. "In spite of the excellent work being done, there is more that can be done," she declares.

Under the present setup, it is logical for some districts to have a stronger program than others, and offer more preparation in one area than another, she says.

"If they could only realize they are not going to be hurt individually as administrators or as school districts if they are told 'you can do better here than you are doing,'" she says reflectively. "I never see why people get on the defensive."

MRS. DEEDY feels the junior college has a "real obligation" to point out that prospective students need to be strong in certain areas so that they don't have to do remedial work at the college. A "deplorable" number of students has to take remedial English, for example, at the college.

"I'm not saying that teachers are doing a poor job in high school. There are a couple of factors at work here. But I'm convinced the English curriculum at the secondary level could be strengthened. Academic standards at every level, right back to elementary school, should be high, and students should work to their capacity," she says firmly.

She also believes it is mandatory for parents to know if their children are actually working at the capacity of other students at the same level. She deplores "the reticence on the part of some school people to be quite candid with parents."

She believes that students should be guided to areas where they are capable of achievement. "We can be more realistic and honest and do a better job of helping young people prepare themselves for better citizenship and the competition of life," she says.

AN ATTRACTIVE, intelligent woman, unusually well qualified for her work on the college board, Betty Deedy believes that women are doing a great deal for their communities today.

She doesn't believe that there would be fewer problems if women stayed home. She is a woman who thoroughly enjoys her family and the work she does outside the home. "How can you help being interested in education?" she asks.

And Husband Dan observes: "She's a dedicated soul. She believes in what she's doing and works at it."

Scottie Learns To Talk— Thanks To Speech Therapy

Wonder what will be done with the Easter seal contribution you mailed—or, are going to mail — to the Marin County Society for Handicapped Children and Adults?

Well, the Easter Seal Speech Therapy Center located at 1936 Sir Francis Drake boulevard in Kentfield represents one dramatic use made of these contributions.

The center, first of its kind in Marin, has proven highly successful in a number of speech improvement undertakings, according to Miss Jean Maraist, the director-therapist.

AS AN EXAMPLE of the accomplishments of the center, Miss Maraist can cite the case of 4-year-old Scottie, a boy who was not talking when he began his therapy and who now is discovering the wonders of the new world of words.

Scottie's mother brought him to the summer speech therapy program in 1959 when he was three and one-half years old. She was concerned over his disinterest in learning to talk. He was first given an evaluation and his hearing was found to be normal. There were no apparent physical involvements, according to the physician's report and the therapist's observations. During an interview with the mother, she described her child as a placid little boy who preferred to play alone—a child who did very little "babbling" as a baby and made his wishes known by pointing and gesturing.

Because he was the baby of the family, his older brothers and sisters interpreted his gestures and talked for him.

Following evaluation, the therapist explained that most children of his age are speaking in sentences and have a vocabulary of nearly 1,000 words. It was felt that Scottie's tonsillectomy and hospitalization along with several childhood illnesses had some relation to his delayed language development.

The task ahead was to encourage a need for language.

Scottie received speech therapy during the summer program and enrolled in the Easter Seal Speech Center in Kentfield. The therapist and Scottie first spent a great deal of time making friends. With no nursery school experience, he was now learning to play together and to share.

THROUGH THE use of toys and objects familiar to the child, the therapist set up "play situations" in which Scottie had to participate verbailly. Everything was given a name and pointing brought no rewards. By simplifying her level of communication to short sentences, while "acting out" familiar routines (called "parallel talk") the therapist presented a level of language which the child could understand and wanted to imitate. New words then appeared that were previously sounds. Further progress found Scottie combining several words into short phrases.

Today Scottie's sessions with his therapist are active ones. The new world of words is being discovered and new experiences can be related.

However, not all the attention was directed to the child. Scottie's mother attended the parent study group held each month at the center. A private conference with the therapist every two months enabled her to recognize signs of progress in various areas of development. Therapy did not stop at the front door of the center—the mother has learned to use home and family situations as language learning experiences.

Language development is, of course, progressive. The goal, still to be reached, is verbal communication that is understood and accepted by the listener. Scottie is now better equipped to benefit from nursery experience this fall. Learning will continue, but the beginnings stimulated by speech therapy, were of great importance.

TOYS HAVE PLAYED an important part in the speech therapy of little Scottie at the Easter Seal Speech Therapy Center in Kentfield. His therapist, Miss Jean Maraist, has set up "play situations" which have required the lad to use voice in participating. The result: Well, it's apparent in this photo.

FIRST SHE WHITTLED

Wood Sculpture By Marinite Acclaimed

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

From whittling in the kitchen with a penknife to one-man shows of her wood sculpture within three years is the remarkable record of Marin County artist Clara S. Bass.

True, Mrs. Bass has a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California and has studied at the New York Art League, the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco and at the College of Marin. And she was an art teacher at Balboa and Lowell high schools in San Francisco for many years. But she has had no instruction whatsoever in wood sculpture.

Yet her figure, "The Disenchanted," won first prize for sculpture at last year's Marin Art and Garden Fair, and her works are currently on display through April 16 at the Street Fair Gallery in San Francisco in her second one-man show. The first was in 1956 at the Lucien Labaudt Gallery in San Francisco.

Though the artist's oil paintings—many of them in what has been called "stained glass style"—are interesting too, it is the story of Clara Bass' sculpture that will be told here.

It began thus:

"One day (in 1953) I was sitting in the kitchen of our home at Forest Knolls after illness had forced me to retire from teaching, and a friend brought in a large pine burl. 'Is this what you keep in your road to ruin our tires?' he teased. Some time after that I sat down and picked at the burl with a penknife, and before long I had three faces on it. Since it had a hollow space, I used it for a planter.

"MY SECOND piece was a madrone root I carved into a face that suggested to me the anguish at Hiroshima, and from then on I started carving any piece of suitable wood I could find in the woods around our house, as well as many pieces friends and neighbors gave me.

"Soon I was working on bigger things and got tired of the heaps of chips in the kitchen, so my husband built a studio nearby where things would not have to be put away."

Now Clara Bass finds that woods have an irresistible attraction for her. She works with all kinds—redwood, rosewood, teak, mahogany and lignum vitae, her favorite. Madonnas are a frequent subject.

"Often called iron mahogany, lignum vitae is the hardest wood known to man—so hard that ship's bearings are made of it that can be used without grease because of the natural oiliness of the wood. I have to wear goggles when I work with it because the sharp splinters could put one's eyes out. It is beautiful too, with light outside and dark inside. Other artists tell me it's much harder than stone to carve."

Mrs. Bass uses sketches to work from very rarely. "I let my ideas evolve as the wood dictates," she explained.

Sometimes the wood surprises her. First instance of this kind was the famous "Weeping Madonna" plaque she exhibited in 1957 at the Trade Fair in Sausalito. When a "tear" developed at one corner of the madonna's eye and rolled slowly down her face, it caused so many comments that people came great distances to see it. And Mrs. Bass received inquiries about it from all over the world.

THEN THERE was a great commotion when the madonna was stolen.

"I heard later it was returned," she said, "but I don't know whether that is true or not. Actually I'm not interested in having my work known for phenomena—I want it to be judged as art."

Another surprise came when she chiseled into a satiny-silver piece of cypress driftwood and found a beautifully grained golden heart that became the face of "Head in the Wind."

Latest of her surprises is a lignum vitae plaque showing two girls' heads, which she calls "The Sisters." The face of one of the sisters is turning lighter all the time, and it's not due to the normal light outside and dark inside of the wood, for she used only the heart.

Surprising too is how Mrs. Bass, only average in height and weight, has learned a special technique of handling without assistance heavy pieces, such as the madonna carved out of a 200-pound redwood log.

"Of course," she laughed, "we fall down together sometimes, and they have thrown me occasionally."

Questioned as to what she considers her style to be, Mrs. Bass said that it leans toward the modern and interpretive rather than to the representational. Neither is it abstract. Except for portraits, in her paintings she uses no subject matter.

MRS. BASS IS a member of the San Francisco Women Artists, the Society of Western Artists, and the Marin Society of Artists.

She has had one-man shows all over Marin County and at Joseph Magnin's in San Francisco, in addition to the ones named previously.

Among other places she has exhibited outside of Marin are the Museum of Art and De Young Museum in San Francisco, the Jack London Square and Oakland Art Museum in Oakland, the California State Fair and Crocker Art Museum in Sacramento, the Richmond Art Center, and the Sculpture Center in New York City.

Her first award in sculpture came in 1956 with a second prize in sculpture at the Marin Art and Garden Fair. There followed an honorable mention in 1957 at the San Francisco Museum of Art; first award and honorable

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By BERT BROWN, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Air

"Why Does My Quilted Coat Cause Itching?"

Dear Mrs. E.R.B.

It is no wonder that your quilted coat produces itching. Inside this particular quilting is a light-weight fiberglass lining. It is normally fluffy and thick and insulates against cold, making the garment quite warm. However, as the coat is worn, the thickness tends to decrease and with it some insulating power is lost, too.

The answer to your specific question, is found in the fact that glass fibers are brittle. They tend to break, get lumpy, pulverized, powder and sometimes penetrate the fabric. When these glass particles come in contact with your skin they can cause a most distressing itch. Apparently that has happened with your coat. There are not as many of these coats around as there used to be immediately after World War II. Perhaps they are coming back and your experience will serve to inform others.

If the lining is zippered-in, it should be removed before cleaning. It should not be subject to any pressure when finishing as that will pack down the fiberglass and reduce its insulating qualities. Wear may cause a pulverizing of the glass fibers and the itching of which you complain may result. Look for a fiberglass label in your quilted coat. If it is there, inform your cleaner and handle with care.

Here's Some Work By Marin's Clara Bass

She Has Earned Recognition For Her Sculpture In Wood

THIS PANEL of Madonna and Child was carved into a 100-year-old redwood door given Mrs. Bass by a friend. She first planned to make it into a table.

A GOLDEN HEART found in this satiny-silver cypress driftwood piece gave Mrs. Bass the inspiration for this piece called "Head in the Wind"

"PROTECTION" is the name of this African rosewood figure of a mother and her two children which won honorable mention in sculpture at the San Francisco Women Artists Show at the San Francisco Museum of Art in 1957.

Her Ambition: To Carve Every Kind Of Wood

mention in 1958 at the Richmond Art Center; and the first prize last year in the Marin Art and Garden Fair.

A native of St. Joseph, Mo., Clara moved with her family to Salt Lake City, Utah, when she was a small child, and she lived there until she enrolled at the University of California.

"None of my family was artistically inclined," she said, "but my mother had an instinctive appreciation of art and encouraged me."

WHILE SHE was a teacher at Balboa High School and acting head of the art department, Clara married Isadore E. Bass, formerly an attorney in New York, now with the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue in San Francisco.

They live in the weekend home they bought in 1946 at Forest Knolls and remodeled for year-round living in 1948. At her studio nearby on Sir Francis Drake boulevard, Mrs. Bass has had visitors from many parts of the world.

At present her ambition is to live long enough "to carve every kind of wood I can find."

A SURPRISING THING about this recent work—a lignum vitae plaque entitled "The Sisters"—is, according to Mrs. Bass, the fact that the face of the sister on the left has steadily been turning a lighter hue since she completed it.

The Pony Express: Short-Lived, But Long Remembered

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

One hundred years ago tomorrow, a slender young man named Billy Hamilton tied a leather pouch to the saddle of a nervous white mustang, vaulted into the seat, touched his spurs to the mount and dashed eastward out of Sacramento in a cloud of dust and a bedlam of cheers.

At almost the same hour, young Billy Richardson duplicated the process with a chestnut mare in St. Joseph, Mo. The principal difference was that, added to the cacophony of noise with which the citizenry bid Richardson godspeed, was the raucous whistle of a Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad locomotive. There were no rails west of "St. Joe."

Thus was born the shortest-lived and most romantic mail-carrying service in United States history: The Pony Express.

This organization, which undertook to carry the mail in 10 days across 1,900 miles of Indian - and - outlaw - infested wilderness, was the project of three highly respected Missouri businessmen with beards like those of the prophets in the Bible they gave to every employee, but with daring enterprise that was strictly 19th century American. Their names were William H. Russell, Alexander Majors and William Bradford Waddell.

THOSE NAMES will live again as the nation notes tomorrow the centenary of the Pony Express which enriched their fame but not their fortunes. And they will again be prominently recalled when the Pony Express run is reenacted in July in an all-out celebration timed to coincide with various other festivals along the route the horses ran through Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California.

A great-grandson of the third member of the firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell is seeing to that. He is Waddell F. Smith of San Rafael, whose home on Margarita drive includes a fascinating museum dedicated to his famous ancestor, the Pony Express Retreat.

As president of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn., Smith is in charge of the July centennial run. And as such he is working closely with the U.S. Post Office Department, which will issue a special four-cent commemorative stamp and stamped envelope for the occasion. Both will have first day sale on July 19, the day the rerun starts: the stamp at Sacramento, the envelope at St. Joseph.

The Pony Express was no child of the Post Office Department. It was strictly a private contract operation. A 10-cent stamp would carry a letter as far as the rails reached. But the price to carry that same letter over the Pony Express route was $5. And there was no stamp to show prepayment — although in 1861 Wells, Fargo and Co., as agent for the Pony Express at various way stations, issued Pony Express stamps of its own on the western portion of the route.

NEVERTHELESS, the Post Office Department has always been inordinately proud of the Pony Express. It pictured a post horse and rider (which might have been one of the 480 horses and youthful riders

THE FACIAL FOLIAGE made them look like patriarchs, but the ideas of these three men were typically 19th Century go-getter American. They are (from left) William H. Russell, Alexander Majors and William Bradford Waddell, founders of (among other things) the Pony Express. San Francisco artist Julian Links painted this composite portrait for Waddell F. Smith of San Rafael.

The Multiplex issue on stereo broadcasting is finally getting some action. FCC has pushed into the distant future other methods of stereo broadcasting, such as TV-AM, and will concentrate only on FM multiplex systems of stereo broadcasting. Evaluation and studies of the various FM systems was scheduled to start in March. It's anybody's guess as to how long FCC will take before they decide which method of FM multiplexing will be used.

If you presently own a high quality FM tuner, the simple adaption of the appropriate adapter will convert your FM tuner to a stereo model. If you have an inexpensive FM tuner, chances are you will not get satisfactory reception on the multiplexed channels.

Are you planning a stereo system for your home? Why not use our building block plan and start with a high quality FM tuner. The FM tuner can be plugged into your existing radio, phono, or TV. This will immediately bring a world of fine music into your home. The cost? We now have the new Sargent - Rayment FM tuner designed to fulfill not only today's reqquirements for flawless reproduction of FM programming, but also to meet the exacting needs of tomorrow's broadband multiplex transmission. All this for only $97.50. Come in for a pleasant demonstration.

of Russell, Majors and Waddell) on the 2-cent stamp of 1869, in the first "pictorial" series of United States stamps ever issued. And in 1940, on the 80th anniversary of the first run, it issued a special 3-cent (letter rate) commemorative stamp.

The Pony Express caught the fancy of pioneer America. The young riders (most were in their teens) became popular heroes. The lone horse and rider, dashing hell-for-leather across the vast wide open spaces, became a symbol of America's untrammeled will to expand. Indians had played hob with 24-day schedule of the Overland Mail stage coaches between the Missouri River and California. It took months to get a letter by boat from the east coast around the Horn. But the ponies outran (or their riders out-shot) the Indians. These lonesome riders made it—and on time—with 80 way stations on their long 1,900-mile route. From Sacramento, the letters were carried to San Francisco by river steamer.

The Pony Express lasted only 18 months. And it was doomed before it began—doomed by three strands of metal: the westward-creeping tracks of the railroads, and the much faster-unrolling slender wire of the telegraph, moving from both east and west.

The partners recognized the railroad would soon outmode their venture. At a civic ceremony in St. Joseph on that inaugural day 100 years ago tomorrow, Majors called the Pony Express the forerunner of "a more important and greater enterprise, which must soon reach its culmination, viz., the construction of a road upon which a tireless iron horse will start his overland journey." But they underestimated the telegraph.

ON JUNE 16, 1860, little more than two months after the ponies started their runs, Congress authorized a subsidy of up to $400,000 toward completing the transcontinental telegraph to connect the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast. The Pacific Telegraph Co. of Nebraska immediately began building west from Julesburg, Colo., where a Russell, Majors and Waddell way station was run by a colorful and explosive character named Jack Slade (later hanged by vigilantes in Montana). And the Overland Telegraph Co. of California started building east from Mt. Churchill, Nev.—another way point on the route of the Pony Express. Their lines were to meet at Salt Lake City.

Pacific Telegraph won the race, reaching the Mormon capital on Oct. 20, 1861. Four days later, the Overland Telegraph crew reached Salt Lake City, and on Oct. 26 the lines were joined and telegraph keys tapped out their coded messages coast to coast.

No more Pony Express runs started after that date. The bold venture was over. In the 18 months, it had made 308 runs, and had carried 34,753 letters with the loss of only one pouch. Receipts were estimated at $91,404. But it had cost Russell, Majors and Waddell about half a million. Ben Holladay, the pioneer freighting king, took over the stock and equipment in payment of a note, and subsequently sold stock and stations in the western part to Wells Fargo. But by then, the pony runs were long since ended.

Brief though it was, the Pony Express played a glorious role. The intrepid riders on their speedy mounts brought California the first news of Abraham Lincoln's nomination and subsequent election, of the bombing of Ft. Sumter, of the declaration of war against the Confederate States, and of the early battles of the war that followed.

ON OCT. 26, 1861, the day the telegraph lines were joined at Salt Lake City, a farewell tribute appeared as an editorial in the Sacramento Bee. It closed:

"Thou wert the pioneer of a continent in the rapid transmission of intelligence between its peoples, and have dragged in your train the lightning itself. . . . Rest upon your honors. . . . Nothing that has blood and sinews was able to overcome your energy and ardor; but a senseless, soulless thing that eats not, sleeps not, tires not—a thing that cannot distinguish space—that knows not the difference between a rod of ground and the circumference of the globe itself, has encompassed, overthrown and routed you. This is no disgrace, for flesh and blood cannot always war against the elements. Rest, then, in peace: for thou hast run thy race, thou has followed thy course, thou has done the work that was given thee to do."

There has been nothing like it since.

But there will be—for one run each way—starting next July 19.

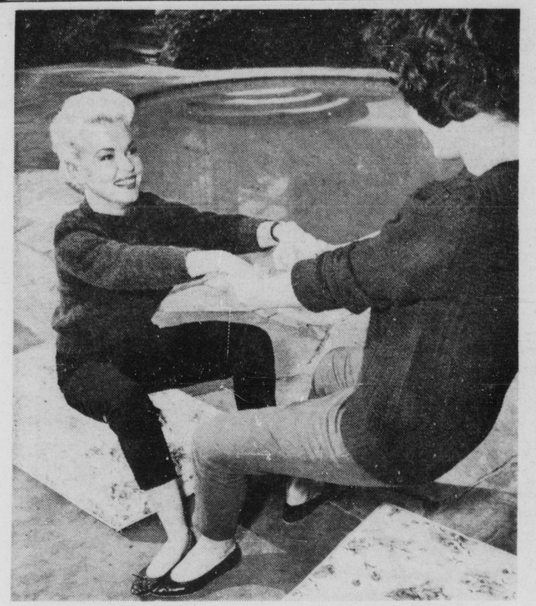
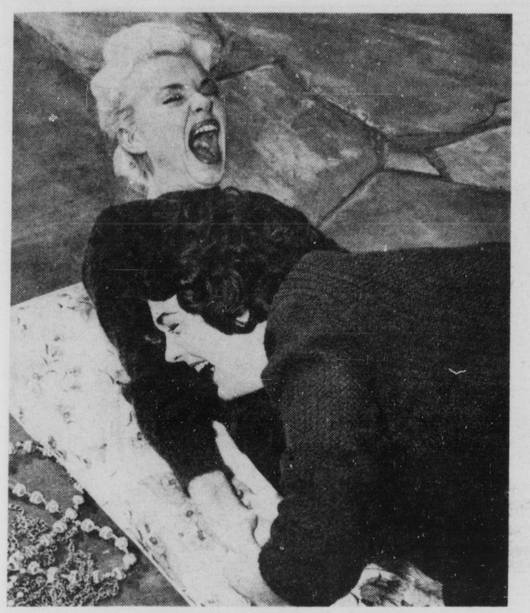
GL 3-6070 — Open Friday Nights



THIS HUMAN SEE-SAW, being demonstrated by Mrs. William Deeths, Mannequin League of Marin president, and Miss Tami Evans, not only is fine exercise, but it also demands and promotes coordination and cooperation. Here they start off on this team exercise.

THE EXERCISE SEEMS to be going very well at this point. And Mrs. Deeths and Miss Evans seem to be enjoying themselves. It's all part of the model's program to keep their figures trim. Dancing is another means used to keep the muscles toned and figures trim.



WHOOPS! SOMETHING went wrong. But the two young ladies laugh off the slip. It's all a lot of fun. And it made a good picture series for Independent-Journal photographer Dick Steinheimer who took these and other photos appearing on these pages.

MRS. JOHN WARD, a provisional member of the Mannequin League of Marin, puts a cultural touch into her stair descending technique by using for the book balancing prop a work on the opera. The book on the head is a time-honored means of promoting walking poise. And it is still much used and highly effective.

They Model For Fun – And For Charity

By ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

"It's for charity—and for fun!"

That sums up the purposes and activities of the Mannequinn League of Marin, according to its attractive press chairman, Mrs. Rhoda Denton.

For charity:

When a benefit-sponsor contacts the activities chairman, Mrs. Les Vogel Jr. goes into action at once to schedule, for fitting dates and for the actual show date, some or all of the models needed. Sometimes home obligations keep some of the members from participating at a given time, but as the phone calls fly—and sometimes dates can be shuffled around—the required number of models arrive at the benefit.

The league acts as a clearing-house for volunteer, trained models for benefits, supplementing rather than replacing other sources. Club presidents and clothing stores in Marin have been sent brochures describing the league's services.

"We are all quite serious about doing this charitable work," said the league's petite, blonde president, Mrs. William Deeths, at a recent workshop meeting.

For fun:

The social meeting of the league is held the first Friday of each month at the Meadow Club, at 10:30 a.m. Members may stay on for lunch at the club. "For fun" also includes enjoying the self-improvement courses at workshop meetings held on the third Monday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the Corinthian Yacht Club, or in playrooms of members' homes.

League models work to maintain a certain dress-size rather than a certain weight. (At present, the models range from size 7 through size 16.) Dieting is strictly voluntary and individual. Figure and posture-neatness are stressed.

Teachers at the workshop are members who are ex-professional models. They demonstrate hair-styling, still photograph techniques, makeup, walking, pivoting (and general fashion-runway technique), dancing and exercises to tone muscles, plus a few modeling tricks of the trade, secret even to a nosy reporter.

Rules they all adhere to, whether teachers or provisionals, and which are most important in working with fashion coordinators at the shows are:

1.—Smile.
2.—No complaints.
3.—Outer grace means inner beauty.
4.—Be punctual.

Desirable personality traits for models to cultivate are: Cheerfulness, responsibility, consideration, enthusiasm, confidence.

Organized last fall, the league "just grew" out of the need for more trained models for charitable events in Marin, and the sincere desire of some attractive young Marin women to aid their community in a way they had the training and initiative to do, as well as to improve themselves and have some fun in accomplishing these goals. The Topsy-like growth started because of the combined efforts of Mrs. John Bellamy Jr., Mrs. Deeths, and Mrs. Lewis Denton. Mrs. Deeths, president, is in charge of the workshop.

Others holding office are Mrs. Eugene Wilson, vice president; Mrs. George Coburn, secretary; Mrs. Henry Skinner, treasurer; Mrs. Les Vogel, Jr., activities chairman; Mrs. Harding McPhun, membership chairman; and Mrs. Lewis Denton, press chairman.

Active membership consists of Mesdames Corky Jones, Leo Strauss, Les Vogel Jr., William Deeths, Norman Sanguinetti, Harding McPhun, George Coburn, John Bellamy Jr., Lewis Denton, Marie Zahrt, Henry Skinner, Clarence Amonette Jr., Rudy Lang, Luciano Sabella, Eugene Hiller, David Stewart, LeRoy Page, Boyd Lang, Alvin J. Harris, Richard Evans, Victor Burner Jr., William Wallace and William Donohue, and Miss Tami Evans.

Committee members are Mrs. Edson Adams and Mrs. Eugene Wilson.

Provisionals are Mrs. John Malone, Mrs. E. J. Walters, and Mrs. John Ward.

Inactive (temporarily) are Mrs. James Zierolf, Mrs. John Levy and Diane Pettijohn.

What about modeling as a career for young girls who dream of it? Some sound answers come from one of the league's model-teachers, Corky Jones.

She advises: Modeling can be an interesting career but it involves much hard work and little money or recognition until a girl becomes a really top-notch model.

"Modeling is not the glamorous profession it is generally thought to be," Corky insisted firmly. "It is very demanding." Girls must watch their weight, get lots of sleep, always be on their toes—not much time for after-hours fun for a busy model.

What are the rewards?

Corky lists a few on the self-improvement list: Models cultivate a high degree of poise, learn to choose and wear clothes well; learn to walk, sit, and enter a room gracefully, and many other feminine graces which will always add to a woman's charm, no matter what her age.

ROPE-SKIPPING, Mrs. Richard Evans finds, is another excellent way to tone up the muscles. It is also a fine developer of coordination and timing.

WITH A COPY OF "The Development of Executive Talent" balanced on her head, Mrs. E. J. Walters works on developing her posture and coordination — both essential to any model, professional or amateur.

AFTER HER SESSION with the jumping rope, Mrs. Evans, in robe, relaxes in the Finnish-inspired Sauna Room at the Leo Strauss home while Mrs. Strauss explains how the little stove (Sauna) will give her a heat-bath while overhead sunlamps tan her skin. Then she will duck into a nearby cold shower, and wrap up well to rest in a comfortable chair.

COVER PHOTO

TAMI EVANS touches up her makeup. Tami, 19, is currently Miss Marin. A model for three years, she recently graduated from a dental-nursing school .Tami recommends modeling for every young girl, even if she does not follow it as a career. She says it develops self-confidence as well as training in makeup, clothes, posture, etc.

MRS. LEO STRAUSS finds she can munch that apple with no qualms. Mrs. George Coburn and her measuring tape have just found that her waistline measurement is perfect.

BOOK REVIEWS

Sausalitan's Novel Has Shipyard Scene

BRIGHT WEB IN THE DARKNESS by Alexander Saxton, St. Martin's Press, 308 pages, $3.95. Reviews by Don Keown.

This is the third novel by Sausalito author Alexander Saxton. And an excellent job, it is.

The story is laid in San San Francisco and the Bay Area's bustling shipyards of World War II. Saxton knows his city and his industry well. He also knows and understands people — both Negro and white—, and his time.

There are two very moving love stories. And there are big social issues. A major point is one which many liberals overlook: That while labor unions and racial tolerance are both appendages of and vital to true democracy, they do not always go hand in hand. Some of our labor unions, in other words, have not always—and some still do not—practice racial tolerance within their own ranks.

This was true of some of the shipyard unions during World War II. And it is around the struggle of the Negro workers against this discrimination that author Saxton has written a most readable and compassionate book.

This One Has Dixie Setting

THE SEDUCER by Jule Lange, Random House, 407 pages, $4.95.

Billed as "a novel about married women who seek the estate of love," this story really has two backgrounds—one, a small Texas city built around an aviation plant, the other the magnolia-scented old plantation Deep South which exists largely in just such books as this.

But the author is adept at locales and characterizations. Unfortunately for him, bores and silly women, no matter how skillfully they might be depicted, remain just that—bores and silly women. And those are what most of his principal characters are. It is difficult for the reader to feel very strongly about any of them, or to really care deeply what happens to them.

Arts And Entertainment

A PIECE OF POTTERY catches the interest of Louis Dessauer. It will be among the work of Marin artists and artisans which will be sold at auction tomorrow under the sponsorship of the Marin Society of Artists at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Proceeds will go into the society's awards fund.

Original Art To Be Auctioned For Awards Fund Tomorrow

Original art at auction prices will be the attraction tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The occasion will be the Marin Society of Artists' first big art auction, to start at 2 p.m. in the Francis Young Gallery.

All auction material will be on display in the gallery. Included will be oils, prints, watercolors, ceramics, jewelry weaving, and sculpture pieces. Society officers hail the event as a rare opportunity for collectors to acquire fine original art at minimal prices.

The purpose of the auction is to supplement the fine arts awards fund initiated by the society this year for use during the organization's big annual show at the Marin County Arts and Garden Fair this summer.

All work to be auctioned tomorrow has been donated by artist members of the society. And some of Marin's finest artists will be represented.

The sale will open with a period of silent bidding. Then an auctioneer will take over.

Many of the artists will be present and available for consultation.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

How shall I count leaning penguin times

Marin Music Chest: For 17 Years Devoted To Beauty

"Marin County Monday will experience a new, a refreshing kind of financial campaign . . . a campaign that is not linked with human distress; no grim spectre of disease or misery will be used to elicit contributions. Instead, the campaign will be dedicated to beauty, to song, to music, to the perpetuation of human happiness and gaiety. Marin citizens will not be asked to give anything . . . they will be given the opportunity to purchase for themselves the privilege of hearing great singers, great instrumentalists and seeing a performance of a great ballet.

"The investment may be made through the Marin Musical Chest. Voluntary workers, whose only compensation will be the knowledge of a civic good done, will be in the field . . . The astonishing thing about the Musical Chest plan is its simplicity.

"Marin Musical Chest field workers come to us Monday bringing a magnificent opportunity. Let us avail ourselves of it. Let us buy beauty for Marvelous Marin."

THE ABOVE paragraphs are excerpts from an editorial that appeared in the San Rafael Independent, May 13, 1933. What was stated in the editorial then, still holds good today. The organization known as the "Marin Musical Chest" has changed its name to the Marin Music Chest. It has kept faith with the public. It has brought to the people of Marin over a long period of years the greatest music in the world, for the lowest possible admission price.

Monday, over 1,000 volunteer workers will contact Marin residents from Sausalito to Pt. Reyes, selling "Beauty for Marin" in the form of a subscription to the Marin Music Chest summer concert season which opens in June and runs through September, presenting an outstanding artist of concert and opera on one Sunday afternoon during the months of June, July and August in beautiful Forest Meadows on the campus of Dominican College in San Rafael. The closing concert in September is the only evening attraction on the series and usually features a performance of the San Francisco Ballet accompanied by members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. It is hoped this year, according to Mrs. Wallace Scott, president of the Music Chest, to again present this group which has now acquired international fame.

How much is a subscription to the Marin Music Chest? There are two classifications:

Five dollars includes two tickets to every concert during current season, mailed in advance; 10 dollars, four tickets, etc. Subscriptions of less than $5 entitles subscriber to purchase one 50 cent admission ticket to every concert upon presentation of subscription card at gates of Forest Meadows, afternoon or evening of concert scheduled. Non-subscribers are charged $2.50 per person, per concert.

HOW IS THE subscription money used?

Five per cent of money subscribed is set aside for scholarships for talented young Marin County musicians. To date, over $15,000 has been awarded in scholarships (an average of four $200 scholarships are awarded annually): the balance is used for artists fees.

Where may subscriptions be obtained?

Though county headquarters, Hoy's, 1133 Fourth street, San Rafael, open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. with Mrs. William Rattray, county drive chairman in charge, or through chairmen and workers in immediate vicinity.

Marin Artist Has Show In San Francisco

Twenty-five of the distinctive oil paintings and watercolors of San Rafael artist, Winifred Koch, are now on exhibit at Sutter Towers Hospital in San Francisco through June 30.

Mrs. Koch, an active young member of the Marin Society of Artists, and a member of that group's Artist's Advisory Council, has been painting a number of years and has developed an unusual style and technique of glowing, transparent color application in both oil and watercolor. Her work is becoming increasingly popular, and she pleases all tastes in subject matter with figure studies, landscapes and still-lifes.

A Californian most of her life, Mrs. Koch has had intensive training at the Oakland College of Arts and Crafts, the San Francisco Academy of Art, and College of Marin. She has participated in many northern California shows with great success, and maintains as her goal to paint in a fresh, stimulating style; to follow the concepts of her training, and to convey meaning to the laymen as well as to the artist.

Mrs. Koch's exhibit at Sutter Towers is the fourth in a continuous series of seven shows to be held by six Marin County artists. The shows are sponsored by the hospital to aid and encourage artists as well as to provide diversion and therapy for their patients.

Preceding Mrs. Koch's show were exhibits by Robert Carleton, Barbara Carpenter and Frank Milner. John Lynch will exhibit his work during June and July, and Eleanore Bender will show during August and September.

A combined show of all six artists will follow in October and November.

All of these shows are open to the public and may be seen between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. daily.

BETTY REED as Cinderella listens to the advice of Sylvia Moore, who plays Tizzie Twinkle, her fairy godmother. The San Francisco State Children's Theater will present "Cinderella and Tizzie Twinkle" next Saturday in the San Rafael High School auditorium as part of the Junior Theater of Marin series.

CINDERELLA

Junior Theater To Offer Fairy Tale On Saturday

The Junior Theater of Marin will continue its delightful series which has brought such fine entertainment to the boys and girls of the county with a performance of "Cinderella and Tizzie Twinkle" next Saturday.

There will be two performances again — at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. — on the stage of the San Rafael High School auditorium.

The cast and company will be from the San Francisco State Children's Theater, a group that has won wide acclaim for its talents in the children's entertainment field.

This new adaptation of the old fairy tale favorite, "Cinderella," is the work of Walter Mac.

John E. Martin is the director.

Betty Reed and Frances Ruderman will alternate in the role of Cinderella. Sylvia Moore plays the fairy godmother, Tizzie Twinkle.

The cast also includes Gary Peterson as the prince, Melania Haugen as the stepmother and Beatrice Blatchford, Joan Harryman and Marcie Grubstick as the stepsisters.

Tickets will be available at the door for children not holding season tickets.

Large groups wishing to make arrangements for group seating are advised to contact Mrs. Walter McDonald of Kentfield and make advance arrangements.

SAN RAFAEL ARTIST Winifred Koch has currently on exhibit at Sutter Towers Hospital in San Francisco 25 of her oil paintings and watercolors. It is part of the hospital's program to bring art to the institution as therapy and diversion for its patients, and at the same time provide artists of the area an opportunity to display their work.

Tips On Extending Blooms

Have you ever returned in early September from a vacation trip to have your neighbors tell you how much they had enjoyed your gorgeous flower garden while you were gone?

That's fine, of course, but if the flowers had barely started to bloom when you left and were already beginning to look a little seedy on your return, you're bound to have a let-down feeling of disappointment about the whole project.

Unfortunately, you have nobody to blame but yourself for a concentration of blooms at one period. It is not at all hard to extend the summer blooming period to cover a span of three or even four months.

TO OBTAIN earliest spring color you start the previous fall by planting bulbs like daffodils. Quickly following these spring flowers are perennials like alyssum saxatile and candytuft sempervirens. These are followed by somewhat later perennials like delphinium penstemon, or tritoma, by the quickest annuals like alyssum and annual candytuft, and by the petunias you started early indoors. Then come the zinnias and a number of other favorite annuals in mid-summer and early fall, with the latest African marigolds and chrysanthemums closing the season.

This succession of bloom is planned by the kind of flowers you grow and by the time you start the seeds. Some flowers like asters or cosmos come into bloom when they are subjected to a certain length day, and early planting will therefore not hurry the blooms, although it does encourage larger plants and more flowers when they do bloom. Others are indifferent to day length and will bloom whenever the plants are large enough.

A further method of extending blooming periods of the flowers in your garden is to remove withered flowers. When a plant has bloomed freely and has begun to produce seed it spends its energy in the seed production instead of further bloom. Removing the old flower heads encourages the plant to continue to bloom because no seed crop is being formed.

SOME KINDS like snapdragon, alyssum and petunia profit from very heavy pruning after the plants have passed their peak, for they will then make a fresh, new plant and go through another blooming cycle. In the case of petunias in a mixed flower border it is good practice to cut back a few plants while others are left in bloom in order to have fresh growth coming on steadily for the future.

So start some petunias right away, mix perennial and annual flowers in your beds, plant various kinds of flowers, put some in later than others, and cut out old blooms, and there you are, all set for a full summer of bloom instead of just the two weeks you are away from home.

Northern Californians Pass Up Good Bet In Dogwood

A single dogwood bloom, seen by itself, is not apt to start you dancing in the street. And the gardener who sees his first bloom on his first dogwood tree is apt to experience a momentary disappointment.

"Is this what I've been waiting for," he asks, as the stiff bract unfolds.

As the tree continues to unfold its seasonal show, however, his tune changes to one of joy. "I've never seen anything like it. It's beautiful," he is likely to conclude. For in full bloom, his dogwood is a picture of delicacy — airy and gay, catching the light to form patterns of beauty unanticipated by the initial bloom.

Why is it we don't see more of these delightful small trees in Northern California gardens? We are told that we will see more and more as time proves their worth in our local growing conditions. Being natives of the East Coast (our own native dogwoods are seldom grown commercially), it took some time before gardeners learned just how to handle them in California's different climate. This despite a long record of performance in some California gardens.

We know now from our own experience that summer water and part or filtered sun are most conductive to fine results. Rich, acid soil is the other prime requirement. You can engineer the latter by working copious amounts of leaf mold and some peat into the soil at planting time.

Dogwoods bloom later in spring than many of our spring blooming shrubs and trees — after most of the crab apples are through and long after the deciduous magnolias. If you plant them in the garden, locate them with this in mind, keeping them to the front so earlier bloomers can be seen through their bare branches and so that bloomed out shrubs don't hide them with their new foliage.

White Flowering Dogwood is probably most common, but Pink Flowering Dogwood is likely to catch your eye first. We vote for both in the same garden.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is this week's checklist for Marin gardeners:

- When first buds start forming, feedings in the rose garden bring bigger and better blooms in May. Ample water is just as important.
- Plant dahlias and gladiolus. Begonia seedlings will show up in nurseries this month.
- Check irrigation basins around citrus. Soil should be mounded to keep water from direct contact with the tree.
- The list of annuals for planting this month is long as your arm. Check nurseries for ideas.
- Bait for snails and slugs. Spray for aphis, thrips and leaf hoppers on roses. Insect control is easy when you start before they do.

Marinite Helps TV Station Win Award

Robert Novak of Mill Valley, assistant program manager at television station KPIX, played a major role in winning the coveted Headliner Award for his station for the year 1959.

The National Headliners Club, comprised of leaders in all fields of news dissemination, chose KPIX's "The Calculated Risk" as the best public service program by a local television station for 1959. The award will be presented at Atlantic City, N.J., on April 23.

Novak co-authored and was executive producer of "The Calculated Risk," which dealt with the problem of crime and insanity. The show was illustrated by the case of Harvey Glatman, San Diego murderer who was executed in San Quentin Prison last Sept. 18.

David Parker, wrote the show with Novak. Ray Hubbard of Ross, program manager, supervised the production.

Novak is married to the former Elaine Adamas and is the father of a daughter, 14, and a son, 9.

He joined the broadcasting industry in 1940 as a radio writer, producing such shows at "The March of Time," "The Kate Smith Show" and "Manhattan at Midnight." In 1945, he became national director of talent and program development for Mutual Broadcasting Co.

U.S. Satellite's Orbit Said Near Perfect

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first weather-eye satellite raced on today in one of the best global orbits ever achieved, ready to feed back more pictures of how clouds cover the earth.

The first cloud pictures radioed yesterday by the new U.S. satellite brought an expression of "marvelous" from President Eisenhower. They delighted the scientists who had fired Tiros I into its round-the-world orbit.

Taken 450 miles up, the first photographs were remarkably clear for such an experimental forerunner of what may be a network of weather watchers that could forecast big storms all over the world.

They took in an enormous quadrant of the earth, centered on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Fleecy clouds spread over much of the U.S.-Canadian area.

Filings Close For Primary Vote In June

Hot election battles have shaped up in almost every post that comes up for election on June 7, according to an unofficial list of candidates who filed by last night's deadline.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court and Constable William S. Christensen of the Northwest Judicial District are unopposed. So are Robert G. Anderson of the Marin Municipal Water District division 5 and O. B. Cavanaugh of the county board of education. But all other posts are contested.

BOARD POSTS

William D. Fusselman, supervisor for the second district, is opposed by Frederick D. Kerr, Ross accountant, and Harvey W. Killian, Greenbrae insurance broker.

Supervisor Vera Schultz of district 3 will battle it out with J. Walter Blair, Mill Valley electrical engineer-merchant.

Supervisor James A. Marshall is opposed by Inverness market owner George L. Ludy.

For state Assemblyman, Republicans are San Rafael attorney William T. Bagley and Sonoma Supervisor Leigh S. Shoemaker. Democrats include San Rafael attorney Joseph G. Wilson, Mrr. Helen Putnam of Petaluma and Everett A. Matzen of Petaluma.

FOR CONGRESS

In the congressional race, it is incumbent Democrat Clement W. Miller vs. Fred G. Dupuis of Tiburon, official of the fire underwriters organization.

For state Senate, incumbent Republican John F. McCarthy is opposed by two Democrats—Charles M. Geller, San Anselmo electrician, and Max Miller, San Rafael painting contractor.

For water district board division 2, incumbent William C. Herup is opposed by Peter J. Bertoni, San Rafael title examiner, and by Harold W. Elliott, San Rafael property manager.

TERRA LINDA

Competing for three posts on the board of directors of the Terra Linda Community Services District are Jack Brandson, Mrs. Harriette Wills, John P. Namely, W. Remington Hodgson, Richard L. Less and Dr. Michael J. Franzblau. Namely is the only incumbent seeking re-election. Brandon is the district clerk and general manager.

PONY EXPRESS 'RIDES' AGAIN IN MAGAZINE

Tomorrow will mark the 100th anniversary of the founding of this country's most colorful mail delivery service, the Pony Express.

A Marin man is in the forefront of the observance planned for this year to mark that anniversary. He is Waddell F. Smith, San Rafael, a descendant of one of the three enterprising men who founded the Pony Express service.

Smith, as president of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn., is spearhearing the observance which will reach its climax in July when riders will again travel the historic Pony Express route on horseback.

You can read about Smith, the Pony Express, and the centennial celebration on Page M-8 of today's Marin Magazine.

Midwest Flood Areas Battle Rising Waters

By UP INTERNATIONAL

Floodwaters from scores of rain-swollen rivers and streams today pushed sandbagging operations to an around-the-clock schedule in lowland communities across the Middlewest.

An estimated 15,000 persons already had been driven from their homes in seven states. Foot-deep snows and rains up to two inches yesterday swelled waterways to torrents in the hardest-hit states — Nebraska and Iowa.

DISASTER AREA

Iowa Gov. Herschel Loveless announced he was collecting flood information to request President Eisenhower to declare parts of Iowa disaster areas, opening the way for low-interest government loans.

About 60 prisoners from the Fort Madison, Iowa, penitentiary joined in a fight to hold in the flooding Skunk River by shoring up an 8½-mile levee.

In eastern Nebraska, residents of Waterloo sent an emergency request to "Operation on Guard" headquarters in Lincoln for more sandbags to shore up waterlogged dikes. The Lincoln headquarters said it was a battle "to save the town."

LEVEE FAILS

A levee gave way near Boonville, Mo., today, and Missouri River waters surged over thousands of acres of farmland east of Boonville. The town itself is on a bluff and not in danger.

The Missouri had spread out over extensive lowland areas in Nebraska, but, like the mighty Mississippi, posed little threat yet to communities along its banks.

The Elkhorn also forced West Point residents out of their homes for the second time this week and deepened over the hamlet of Winslow whose 140 inhabitants moved out Thursday.

SANDBAGS

Volunteers sandbagged the business area of Norfolk, Neb., where 1:30 inches of snow and rain added to floodwaters of the Northfork and Elkhorn. A crew was stranded in Norfolk by snowpacked roads after delivering a load of sandbags.

The rainy weather grounded two C119 Boxcar planes and four helicopters which were to conduct a "Haylift" operation for thousands of head of starving cattle out of Lincoln, Neb. Authorities said several herds of cattle were stranded on patches of high ground.

Heavy rains and snow in the Big Sioux River Valley in Iowa brought new flood warnings to Sioux City and Hawarden.

WARNING

Acting Mayor Fred Kelley of Sioux City urged residents of suburban Riverside to prepare to leave their homes. A 24-hour rainfall of 1.27 inches swelled the Big Sioux River.

About 55 families moved out of Riverside immediately, even though Kelley's warning was just an alert.

Police Halt Angry Africa Marchers

Crisis Continues In Area's Racial Strife

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — An angry crowd of 2,000 Africans slipped out of sealed-off native quarters and marched on Cape Town today but was turned back without violence.

All of South Africa was in a state of crisis and officials feared the weekend would be scarred by new outbreaks of black-white strife.

The government extended the state of emergency declared Wednesday to cover 117 magisterial districts, or more than a third of the nation. It also announced 40 more units of the South African equivalent of the United States National Guard were given standby orders.

This tense day passed without fatal incidents but it was revealed a sick baby girl was shot and killed yesterday at Nyanga, an African location just outside Cape Town. Three more Africans were killed in other incidents yesterday.

FROM NYANGA

It was from Nyanga that the marchers on Cape Town started today. The Negroes were able to get out of the location before police could effectively seal it off.

The Africans formed a body on the main road and headed for the city. Police, on tense alert since a similar march on Thursday which ended only yards from the houses of Parliament, sealed off the road with a solid phalanx of armed men.

The Africans stopped short of the police barrier and district police commandant Maj. J. J. Rheeder ordered them to return to Nyanga. For a few tense minutes it looked as though the Negroes would storm the police line, but they finally turned and went home.

CORDON CLOSES

The military cordon around Nyanga was slammed tight again.

Both Nyanga and the native quarter of Lanaga have been cordoned off since Monday's "day of mourning" for 72 Africans killed at Sharpeville and Langa the week before, when police fired on large Negro crowds.

It was these incidents that triggered the current conflict, the most serious racial crisis in South Africa in several years.

Few Africans from Nyanga and Langa, which provide the major portion of Cape Town's labor force, have shown up for work since Monday. White firms in Capetown have been hiring persons of mixed blood to replace them.

NO COMMENT

Authorities in Cape Town refused to discuss the incident at Nyanga yesterday in which the baby was killed but the evening Cape Argus quoted witnesses who gave this account:

A mother with her child strapped to her back showed up in a car at the police line around Nyanga and said she wanted to take the baby to a hospital. Naval units refused to let the car pass.

As the car was turning around, it was said, a single shot rang out. The bullet struck and killed the baby, going through its body and wounding the mother.

THREE DIE

Three more Africans were killed yesterday when a crowd moved out of the native location of Cato Manor and penetrated the port city of Durban. Police fired on the crowd, killing three and wounding five.

Durban and Cato Manor were uneasily quiet today. Police and military check points backed up by armored cars halted all vehicles and searched all passengers for sticks and other weapons.

Official To Seek Funds For Canal

San Rafael City Manager Dan E. Andersen will fly to Washington, D.C. tomorrow to seek funds for the dredging of San Rafael canal.

Andersen said today he will meet and confer with Rep. Clement Miller, (D-Corte Madera), and appear with him at congressional hearings Tuesday and Wednesday, where they will make a pitch for federal funds.

ASK $185,000

The city manager said $185,000 is being sought. His personal appearance with Miller was arranged after Miller announced that more local interest and prodding would be needed to give him support in a request for funds.

Other support is being provided by the Marin County Development Foundation, Inc., and the Marine Exchange of San Francisco. Andersen said Robert Langner also will be at the hearings as a representative of the exchange, a Bay Area shipping organization which recently endorsed the San Rafael project as the No. 1 priority project in the area.

AIDS ECONOMY

The foundation sent Miller a letter yesterday that said, "the canal is a multipurpose waterway that has a major influence upon the economy of Marin County as a whole but most particularly upon the central portion in which reside about 85,000 of the 150,000 county total."

The letter gives a history of the canal, including the fact that the waterway was ceded to the federal government by the city in 1921 with an agreement that change of title made the federal government responsible for canal maintenance.

Andersen said the canal was last dredged six years ago. The foundation letter, sent by Carroll A. Snyker, executive vice president, said there were 104,141 tons of commercial cargo handled by the canal in 1958, the date of the latest official report.

Andersen said that he, Miller and Langner would appear before a House committee hearing on Tuesday and a Senate committee hearing on Wednesday, both hearings to consider harbors and waterways financing.

Bolinas Land Offered For Sale By U.S.

About 13 acres of unimproved government land near the RCA station in Bolinas will be offered for public sale, Congressman Clement W. Miller reported from Washington today.

The General Services Administration is offering the land as surplus property. Bids for the purchase will be open on May 1 or June 1 at the General Services Administration office in San Francisco.

E. A. Saylor Jr., realty officer at the GSa office in San Francisco, said the land is actually about seven acres, surrounded by the RCA property. It was used during World War II as part of the government's harbor defense The balance of the acreage is made up of easements such as access road from the Mesa county road.

Nikita Warns On Treaty With Germany

PARIS (AP)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said today that if the Soviet Union signed a peace treaty with East Germany the validity of Western rights in Berlin would be lost.

The Soviet Premier told a news conference at the end of his formal meetings with French President Charles de Gaulle that if Russia signed a peace treaty with East Germany all consequences of the capitulation of Hitler Germany would be lost, including the validity of all rights gained through the capitulation.

The response was in answer to a question as to how a Soviet peace treaty with East Germany would affect the

First Offenders Have A 'Past' In Marin Child-Molest Cases

By WAT TAKESHITA

A majority of child molest cases reported in Marin during the past few years were committed by "first offenders," according to an unofficial survey by the Independent-Journal.

However, the figures may not present an accurate picture of the ratio between "first offenders" and "repeaters." Here are the reasons:

Some of the "first offenders" have been picked up before on suspicion but were either acquitted, found guilty of lesser offenses, or dismissed because of insufficient evidence. Others may have committed acts in the past but were only caught for the first time. Many undoubtedly go unreported because families involved want to avoid the embarrassment of testifying in court at all cost.

In all such cases, the "first offender" will have clean past records as far as sex offenses go.

In fairness to those who have committed less serious child molest offenses, the term should be defined. "Child molestation" can range anywhere from just being too friendly to children to physical abuse and violence. Sentences vary with the circumstances.

In addition to the "first offenders," Marin has had several repeat-offenders, some of them flagrant violators. These are the ones that have been causing the biggest concern among law enforcement and judicial officials.

This study shows that even after a known sex criminal has been meted out the stiffest sentence allowed for the crime—up to 50 years or one year to life—he can be paroled in four, five or six years. And although prisons are equipped with psychiatrists and other trained personnel, there apparently is no way to determine whether the criminal will strike again, or how soon.

Probation officials describe Atascadero State Hospital as the best-equipped prison in the nation to handle sex offenders. But even at Atascadero, "psychiatric treatment has not been given a real chance because there just isn't the staff for it," a highly placed Marin probation official declared.

However, he said that offenders who get treatment at Atascadero have at least twice the chance of going straight of those who come out of other prisons, such as San Quentin.

Child molesters are difficult to track down and even harder to prosecute because they prey on children who are sometimes too young to testify. But the biggest irony is that those who are finally caught and get the maximum penalty which citizens of the state have provided, can still come out on parole in four to six years. Here are some classic examples in Marin:

The most recent case of a repeater is that of a San Rafael baker, 29, who confessed attacking a 11-year-old girl in San Rafael, followed by a 7-year-old in San Francisco. In police lingo, this man has a "rap sheet a mile long." After a series of thefts, disturbing the peace, and vagrancies, he was convicted of rape-robbery of a Watsonville woman in December, 1950. He entered San

A champagne-sipping audience viewing a sneak preview at Sausalito's Gate Playhouse last night was routed by the pungent odor of smoke and the arrival of two fire trucks and three police cars shortly after 11 o'clock.

Fire Chief Matts Perry led a search of the theater and adjoining grounds and found a smoking incinerator outside a fire exit, but the show's electrician David Arrow said his wiring had been tampered with.

"One spotlight went out and then another, I knew something was wrong," he said. The electrician said he glanced up at the light bank above the stage and saw two people starring back at him.

Edward Williams, member of the acting troupe, said "Smoke began to fill the theater in the last minutes of the play. The audience became restless as the smoke became stronger—even the actors could smell it on stage.

A search of the theater failed to turn up any suspicious persons.

Perry ordered the theater closed, and the master switch pulled.

Actor Ralph McGlothlen, appearing in the new production of "Where's Charlie," surveying the audience milling around on the sidewalk, champagne glasses in hand, quipped, "To think they closed us the night we opened." But Producer Les Abbott reassured him that the show will go on as scheduled next Saturday.

The caterer who served the champagne suffered the one casualty of the evening: A ticket for parking his truck in the red zone in front of the theater.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Bon Voyage Events Filling Calendar

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Travel is the principal topic of conversation these days in many Marin homes and bon voyage parties are filling the social calendar. Extensively entertained are Mr. and Mrs. Dan J. Sweeney Jr. of Greenbrae, who with their three young sons, Kevin, Tod and Dana, are leaving on April 16 for a year's stay in Europe. They are going first to Flint, Mich. to visit Zora Sweeney's mother, Mrs. Todor Veljov and then taking Air France, jet to Paris, where they will pick up a car for their other transportation.

Art Auction To Be Held Tomorrow

Last minute preparations were made today for the Marin Society of Arts auction to begin tomorrow at 2 p.m., at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Pottery, weavings, jewelry and paintings have been donated by more than 400 members of the society. Proceeds from the auction will go to the society's fine arts awards fund, said chairman Mrs. Thomas McWatters Jr.

The fund pays for the awards given at the society's annual are show of the Marin County Fair in July, said Mrs. McWatters.

She said tomorrow's auction will be "a silent one."

"Each art object will have a piece of paper where bids may be placed. At 4 o'clock those objects with no bids will be sold by acting auctioner Edward Cadogan, head of the Marin College Art Department," Mrs. McWatters said.

ALARMS GO HAYWIRE; COPS FRANTIC

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (UPI)—The police department's telephone system went out and someone jokingly suggested burglars had cut the wires and were at work in a bank.

The burglar alarm from the State Bank started ringing.

The desk officer sent all cars to the bank and all available men at headquarters headed there on the run.

The burglar alarm from the First National Bank started ringing.

Then the telephone company's test room called to beg pardon for getting the wires crossed.

Frog Farmer

School Bonds Approved By Assembly

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Legislation proposing a 350 million dollar state school building bond issue has been approved unanimously by the Assembly.

The 67-0 vote sent the measure to the Senate, which earlier approved a 300 million dollar proposal.

The issue would be submitted to the voters on the June primary ballot if approved by the Legislature.

Assemblyman Carley V. Porter (D-Compton), author of the Assembly version, said, "this is the money which will help build our urgently needed classrooms."

The state school building aid program was started in 1947 to make loans to impoverished school districts. The voters have approved five bond issues for the program by strong margins.

HAFB Men Jailed After S.F. Fight

Two Hamilton Air Force Base airmen have been ordered to appear in San Francisco Municipal Court Monday at 10 a.m. to answer charges of battery and assault with intent to do bodily harm.

Drake High Newspaper Wins Honor

A first-class rating for the first semester of 1959-1960 year was awarded Sir Francis Drake High School's newspaper, the Jolly Roger.

Editor Sandra F. Berke was informed that the paper received one of the nation's 11 first-class awards for a bi-monthly school paper. Ratings are made by the National Scholastic Press Assn. at the University of Minnesota.

The Jolly Roger received highest points in the areas of news coverage, editorials, front page, headlines, typography and printing. The newspaper is printed by students at Tamalpais High School.

Highest loss of points, Miss Berke said, was in the area of lead paragraph writing which judges said had "too many qualifying clauses."

Other Jolly Roger editors are Sherry Philippet, assistant; Thomas C. Sannar and Stephen C. Cook, sports editors. Edward J. Neumeier is adviser.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

We're Proud Of Richmond Bridge, Hump And All

Two related items in the news this week gave us real pleasure. First was the passage of the 10 millionth vehicle across the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge. The second was the announcement by the state that although traffic still was not up to estimates, the bridge is "in the black."

It has been easy in the last 3½ years to decry the fact that the bridge wasn't paying its way. Detractors, who had fought the bridge when it was first proposed, chuckled gleefully. People who didn't know about, or who have forgotten, the long waits for ferries—or for months with no ferries at all during strikes—were concerned over the lack of traffic on the span, even though it is carrying more than twice as much traffic as the ferries ever carried. It is hard for persons used to crossing the Golden Gate Bridge to realize there is another deck carrying cars the other direction, you don't have to face them as they whiz by.

Forgotten too is the span's safety record, probably the safest six or so miles anywhere in the state highway system. For once, a structure was built big enough and safe enough for the traffic it would immediately carry.

Then, too, some of the people concerned about the apparent lack of vehicles on the span were worried about the "waste of state tax money" and the fear of "more taxation to pay off the bonds."

But these persons have forgotten, or perhaps never knew, that the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge was not built with tax funds, that revenue bonds were sold for its construction and to repay every cent the state's taxpayers put up for its planning. And there is no danger of taxation even if there was a default on the bonds.

We're proud of our hump-backed bridge; proud of the way it was built; proud of the way it was financed without taxes, and proud that it is now paying its own way.

APPROACH TO GOD

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

HONTESTY WILL OUT

Two contrasting attitudes toward honesty were displayed by a husband and wife in Alaska.

A man who lost his wallet in Anchorage discovered this when it was returned to him five days later with its valuable papers and identification, but minus the cash. This note accompanied it:

"Needless to say, this wallet had money in it and I wanted to notify you and give it back to you. The money is rightfully yours. However, my husband's opinion varies from mine and I am at a loss to get it back to you.

"The old adage of truthfulness seems to have somehow faded out of our present day living. But I want you to know that this letter is written in all sincerity, and I'm sorry I cannot give you the $50 which is your money. If I had picked it up you'd have it."

Honesty "will out" in one way or another. The Creator has endowed everyone with a sense of right and wrong. You can help everyone with a sense of right and wrong. You can help everyone by taking a stand for truth.

"The wicked man maketh an unsteady work; but to him that soweth justice, there is a faithful reward."

(Proverbs 11:18)

Give me the courage, O Holy Spirit, to be honest in all that I think, say and do.

By CHAPIN A. DAY

The news has seeped over from San Francisco that Roger Kent, Northern California chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has serious opposition for election this summer to his former job as chairman of the state committee.

The opposition comes from Dr. H. A. Tagliaferri, better known to Bay area Democratic workers as "Dr. Tag." He is well known in Democratic circles, heads the Mission Terrace Democratic Club, and has a year-round campaign headquarters right at his Mission street dental offices.

Dr. Tag, who nominated State Senator Richard Richards in his unsuccessful attempt at the U. S. Senate seat a few years ago, is also a long-time Edmund G. Brown supporter.

He's "bucking hard for the job," so we're told, and makes no bones about it any more. Observers label him a middle-of-the-road Democrat and capable of giving Kent a real run for his money.

STATE SENATOR John F. McCarthy smiled broadly when told Max Miller, a San Rafael painting contractor, had filed for the Democratic nomination for McCarthy's job. Charles M. Geller, San Anselmo electrician, already is in the race for the Democratic nomination.

If McCarthy had any idea at all of trying to get both Republican and Democratic nominations with a write-in campaign, he couldn't have personally selected a better named candidate to split the Democratic vote. Miller happens also to be the name of our congressman for whom there will be no little campaigning about that time.

Does McCarthy have any such an idea? In answer, he just smiled—and hoped it would worry the Democrats.

THE YOUNG CALIFORNIANS for Nixon committee was organized this week with a Ukiah Republican and a San Pedro Democrat as co-chairmen.

Four Marin County residents are listed on the organizing committee. All Republicans, they are Wilda Jane Derryberry of San Rafael, William D. Keeler of Mill Valley, and Jeanne Dausse and Paul S. Smith of San Anselmo.

INCIDENTALLY, at Gov. Edmund G. Brown's press conference Tuesday one of the reporters looked at a pen the governor was using to doodle with and asked:

"Isn't that a Nixon pen?"

The governor started. It was, with the Vice President's name plainly printed on the side.

The governor quickly explained this constituted no endorsement of Nixon. Nixon gave it to him at the Squaw Valley Winter Olympics opening, he recalled.

HOW HAS OUR Congressman, Clement W. Miller been voting?

He broke a perfect record by being recorded as "not voting" on the rejection of a bill to establish Hubbell Trading Post national historic site in Arizona.

He voted for the adoption of provision for federal referees into the civil rights bill and for passage of the civil rights bill.

SENATOR McCARTHY had his hands full last Tuesday when a sharp-shooting class of eighth graders from Neil Cummins School, Corte Madera, and some special class students barraged him with questions in a Capitol hearing room.

The visiting students, 90 strong, were under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Catherine Burch, Mrs. Robert Betette, Robert Johnson, George Matthews, Leo Zaro and Krieg Vezie, but that didn't stop them from badgering their senator.

PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS?

Ike Sees Difference In Summit Type Meeting

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is looking forward to a different kind of summit conference at Paris next May.

He wants some sessions to provide for strictly private conversations among himself, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain, French President Charles de Gaulle and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The President's interest in getting the Big Four to "explore each other's minds" emerged at his news conference Wednesday. His statements to reporters also developed another intriguing prospect for the future:

THE EISENHOWER administration seems destined to become increasingly in its closing months a kind of caretaker government. Eisenhower did not use any such term as that, but in replying to a question about the possibility of a second summit conference last this year, he noted that more and more questions would arise about his ability to make commitments running beyond the end of his term next January.

At the same time, however, he left no doubt that if a crisis should arise he intends to take whatever measures are necessary to meet it.

Whether the President has already discussed with others of the Big Four his ideas about the nature of the talks to be held at Paris was not clear. But it seemed almost certain that this has been one of the many matters he discussed with Macmillan at Camp David early this week. Macmillan left Washington Wednesday night.

DURING THE summit conference at Paris and Eisenhower's subsequent visit to Moscow in June, major attention especially aboard will still be focused on Eisenhower, however strong his own sense of limitation in dealing with the future may be.

But Eisenhower's own concept probably means that at the Paris conference he will be looking for ways to solve only the more inmediate East-West problems and in such a way that there would be little doubt of his successor's interest in carrying on.

Whether from a practical point of view there are such possibilities, with respect to the long deadlocked issues of unification, the future of West Berlin and major problems of disarmament, is a serious question which only the four men at the summit can answer.

It seems likely that another effect of the terminal date on the President's powers may be to inhibit the administration from embarking on any bold new course or trying any fundamentally new initiative in negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The last summit conference was held at Geneva in 1955. At that time Eisenhower could see a long time ahead in which to carry out his plans and commitments. It was there that he proposed the open skies plan for mutual aerial inspection of the two great powers. Nothing came of it, but if the Soviet Union had accepted the idea on the spot Eisenhower would have been able to see it into operation.

THE MEETINGS at Geneva were larger than those the President would like to see at least on some occasions at Paris.

While the leaders of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union met informally at Geneva and sometimes talked casually over the drink, their business discussions were all held in the presence of at least some of their advisers.

Eisenhower deplored this kind of arrangement Wednesday, saying that when the meetings are held in a room crowded with people the four leaders are "talking at everybody else, instead of talking with them . . . they are talking to their own constituents doing as good a propaganda job as they can."

What he prefers is "four men sitting around the table with their interpreters and, without anybody having any checks of any kind, trying to see if they can, by exploring each other's minds, find out 'what do you really want to do- What could we do?"

ONE SPECULATION is that this kind of a meeting will in fact be aranged by De Gaulle, who is also understood to favor small private sessions of the Big Four. He may take Eisenhower, Macmillan and Khrushchev to his chateau at Rambouillet, many miles outside Paris, for a part of the meeting at the summit.

A New York publisher was entertaining for luncheon a very snobbish Boston dowager who had gone to college years earlier with his wife.

"You New York people," she complained, "make friends of the weirdest people. The old standards seem to mean nothing to you any longer."

Just then a man came shambling down Madison Avenue, with his white hair waving in the wind, a banjo tucked under his arm, and a sheaf of paper bulging from his pocket. "Look at that fellow, for example," sniffed the Bostonian, "I'll bet you know him, too."

"Indeed I do," said the publisher heartily. "I'd like to introduce you to Mr. Carl Sandburg."

Two DA's Deputies Find Their Own Names Among Traffic Complaints

Two young deputies of the district attorneys' office prosecuting traffic tag cases, came upon a couple of complaints the other day that really stumped them. Their own names were on the two complaints.

While they were busily convicting other violators, sheriff's deputies had dutifully tagged their cars, parked in the wrong slots in the courthouse lot.

The young DA's would probably been happy to prosecute each other, but the judge decided to call in the county counsel.

It's set for next Tuesday.

EVER SINCE the sheriff's bowling team vowed they'd win first place in their league, they've hit a slump.

The other day team member Ellis Seibert picked up his bowling ball bag and found two bricks inside instead of his ball.

Could it be a reminder from the boss of what to expect if they lose?

THERE SEEMS to be more than meets the eye in Marin City pastor's case.

Unless the case is settled quietly pretty soon, you can look for some eyebrow-raising revelations.

THE PROPOSAL to make a national park out of the Pt. Reyes area is raising a few grumbles from the old timers there who want to keep it the way it is—wide open and uncluttered.

They're using this psychological approach to discourage any park:

The Big Bend from Tomales Point to the lighthouse is an awfully dangerous beach with a tremendous undertow. Don't you remember about a year ago, two persons drowned when a youngster got sucked in and an adult went after him? And then just a few days ago, a 19-year-old youth disappeared into a caldron of seething water.

ESPERANTO, the international supplementary language, seems to be catching on here. They're starting a class at College of Marin next week.

Adherents claim it's the best language advanced yet, because each nation retains its own language and uses esperanto as a supplementary language.

And esperanto, since it belongs to no nation or race, does not carry the stigma of being a foreign language.

IF THE BARBARA GRAHAM confession controversy hadn't died down this week, rumors are that the state had another ace up its sleeve.

A well-known, old-time attorney, who once represented Emmet Perkins, was reported all set to spring this little gem:

That Perkins saw Barbara Graham take part in the Mabel Monahan slaying.

THERE PROBABLY won't be any public book-burning, but police are reported closely watching some of the slick cover books that have been popping up on the news stand shelves lately.

The word is that they'll quietly suggest that certain ones go off the shelves. One in particular is about police officers, and it isn't exactly complimentary about the law.

What One Expert Thinks Of State's Method Of Printing Own Textbooks

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — An interesting article on state textbook policies which helps explode the myth that government can produce books cheaper than private enterprise, appeared in a recent issue of the Phi Delta Kappan.

The article is by Lewie W. Burnett, who is on the staff of the school of education at George Washington University, Washington, D.C. It has particular reference to state printing of text-books in California.

The article says in part:

"STATE PRINTING has stressed economy so intensely that the State Board of Education has often been guilty of rejecting the strongest textbook series available in order to adopt a cheaper series.

"The final choices, therefore, have not always been good ones and individual schools have elected to spend district funds to secure better books.

"Those additional expenditures, plus the money needed to fill the gaps caused by state shortages, have probably more than eliminated any initial savings that might have been effected by the state printing of textbooks.

"THE HIGHER cost of state purchased textbooks is so minor when compared to the total expenditures for education in the state that its restriction for reasons of economy cannot be vindicated.

"As it now operates, the policy of state uniformity and state publication in California cannot be justified because it does not substantially reduce expenses to the school districts, it does not offer materially improved textbook services, and it does produce objectionable educational consequences."

Burnett also points out that the important consideration is to devise a system of providing an ample and unrestricted list to the California school children of the best modern textbooks available.

"NOTHING should obstruct that objective, not even the trouble of constitutional revision," he declares.

"State printing has resulted in a very limited textbook selection which has often given mediocre books to the schools of California. The present state series is not evaluated as strongly by textbook experts as are other series not available to California. Most disconcerting is the fact that some books on the current state series are proving unsatisfactory to the teachers and administrators of California.

"State printing has resulted in longer periods of adoption, necessary to make state printing economically feasible, but they make it impossible for California to adopt some of the newest and best textbook series for four or five years after they are installed elsewhere."

THE STATE Board of Education attempted to correct this deficiency when recently it adopted a series of readers, available only from private firms.

But the legislature refused to pay the bill, at the behest of promotors of government printing. As a result, the students apparently will have to get along with mediocre books.

Tiburon Church Names Its Permanent Minister

Dr. Benton S. Gaskill has accepted appointment as permanent minister of the Belvedere-Tiburon Community Congregational Church for an indefinite term, Arthur D. Talbott, chairman of the organizing committee, has announced.

The announcement was made Wednesday night at a dinner at the Southern Marin Recreation Center. Dr. Gaskill has been organizing minister for the church.

He is former minister of the Bushnell Church in Detroit, prior to which he served for 10 years at the Congregational Church in San Mateo. He has been moderator of the Northern California Congregational Conference and president of the group's board of directors.

The church has been holding 11 a.m. Sunday services in the Tiburon Playhouse since last September. The Sunday School, which meets at the Belvedere Nursery School, was organized in February.

A permanent site has been acquired on six acres above Hawthorne Terrace for a church building. Charter memberships are being accepted until Easter, according to Dr. Gaskill.

Christianity In Dismal State Under Rule Of Red Chinese

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The dismal state of the tiny Christian community in Communist China has often been likened to the persecutions of Roman Emperor Diocletian.

It's an apt comparison.

Since the Red armies of Mao Tse Tung overran the Chinese mainland more than 10 years ago, the government has dedicated its best efforts to erasing Christian influence from the face of the land.

The sentencing of Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh, accused of conspiring to overthrow the Communist regime, points up Christianity's desperate state. He's one of the last foreign missionaries left in China.

Catholic sources in the United States list three foreign missionaries in addition to Bishop Walsh as remaining on the Chinese mainland. Before the Red takeover, there were more than 5,000.

Two of the remaining missionaries are Koreans. They are identified only as Fathers Kim and Yen. They were last heard from more than a year ago. Apparently, they are in jail.

The other is a German priest, Rev. Peter Hungsberg, who, says a Catholic spokesman, apparently has gone over to the Communists. At last reports, he was working as a German translator in Peiping.

Protestant missionaries have fared as poorly.

At the end of 1949, says the Missionary Research Library of the Union Theological Seminary, there were about 2,000 American Protestant missionary workers active in China. Today there are none.

At least one, Rev. Paul Mackenson, a Lutheran, is still in China, teaching English in a Communist school. He has served a prison sentence in Red China.

The decline of Christian efforts in China is vividly illustrated by Roman Catholic missionary statistics.

In 1948, a year before the Communist triumph, there were 5,380 Catholic foreign missionaries—bishops, priests, brothers, scholastic and nuns—active on the mainland. About one in 10 was American.

Four years later, the total was down to 723.

Between 1948 and 1959, says a church spokesman, 510 American Catholic missionaries were expelled, a number of them after periods in prison or under house arrest.

Church Choir Sets Progam In Sonoma

The adult choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, will present a concert of sacred music in the United Church of Christ, Sonoma, tomorrow, beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Among the works to be presented are "Sweet Is the Work," by Robson; "Save Us, O Lord" by Bairstow; "Come, Ye Faithful" by Titcomb, and the hymn, "The Royal Banners Forward Go," the tune of which was composed by G. Franklin Morris of San Rafael, the organist-choirmaster of St. Paul's church.

Morris will play, in addition to the choral presentations, "Lord, All My Heart Is Fixed on Thee" by Karg-Elert, and "O Sacred Head Once Wounded" by Bach.

A meditation during the concert will be given by Rev. John Riley, rector of St. Paul's.

Family Church To Present Program

The Family Church of Marin, located at the Women's Improvement Club, 167 Tunstead avenue, San Anselmo, will present a talk and film showing tomorrow night by Ben Seaver, secretary of peace education of the American Friends Committee.

Theme will be "Time for Greatness."

Coffee and doughnuts will be served at 6:30 p.m., with the program to start at 7:30.

Fat And Lazy?

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern Baptists, one of the fastest expanding of all Protestant denominations, are accusing themselves of getting "fat and lazy" and becoming religious "spectators."

"The besetting sin of Southern Baptists," says Convention President Ramsey Pollard of Knoxville, Tenn., "is the sin of taking it easy, getting to be fat and lazy."

"Spectatoritis is the blight of our religion today," adds Howard E. Butt Jr., a prominent layman evangelist from Corpus Christi, Tex. "When a person's religion consists of coming to a service and listening to someone else perform, that person's religion is paralyzed."

Pollard and Butt spoke at a recent convention of the Baptist Training Union.

Easter Sunrise Services Set Atop Mt. Tam

Easter sunrise services will be held at 6 a.m. Easter Sunday at the Cushing Memorial Theater on Mt. Tamalpais. It will be the 39th anniversary of the event.

The services are co-sponsored by Mill Valley citizens and Air Force personnel of the 666th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron stationed on the mountain.

SPEAKER

Rev. Gaines F. Dobbins, professor of church administration of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry Point, will give the Easter message. D. J. Kalal, chaplain of Hamilton Air Force Base, will officiate.

Adequate parking space is available, according to George E. Holmboe, superintendent of Mt. Tamalpais State Park. He said Mill Valley Boy Scouts will assist with parking and ushering.

SIGNS PLANNED

Signs will be placed along Panoramic Highway leading to the Mountain Theater by members of the 666th Squadron, Capt. Richard K. Hurliman, public information officer, said.

Hurliman said that, as in the past few years, a lighted cross will be installed on the 100-foot antenna poles at the squadron's location. It will be lighted each night for the week ending with Easter.

Dr. Harold K. Graves, president of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry Point, will be the evangelist. Music will be under direction of Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, professor of music administration at the seminary.

Services will be held each evening at 7:30 p.m. and will continue through April 10. The nursery under the direction of Mrs. Joy Reed will be open for each service.

Religion In School

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Council of Churches is taking steps toward defining the role of religion in public schools.

The NCC's Committee on Religion and Public Education has approved a provisional document declaring schools should reflect a fundamental faith in God but should not formally teach any concept of God.

Doctrinal teachings are the responsibility of the church and home, says the document, while development of ethical conduct is the duty of church, home and school.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, April 2nd, the 93rd day of the year, with 273 more to follow in 1960.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1805, a Danish writer of fairy tales was born. He was Hans Christian Andersen.

In 1863, bread riots broke out in Richmond, Va., as the Confederacy faced an alarming shortage of foodstuffs.

In 1902, the first moving picture theater opened in Los Angeles.

In 1932, Charles Lindbergh and Dr. John Condon turned over $50,000 in bills to an unidentified man in St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx section of New York City. They did so in the hope of regaining Lindbergh's kidnapped son.

A thought for today: Second U. S. President John Adams wrote: "All great changes are irksome to the human mind."

Giant Castoff Winning Pitcher In S.F. Defeat

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It didn't take big Red Worthington long to get even with the San Francisco Giants.

Worthington was the winning pitcher yesterday when the Boston Red Sox beat the Giants 8-6 in 10 innings.

The Giants had traded Worthington to Boston just last Tuesday for Jim Marshall.

Haywood Sullivan did the Giants in with a two-run double in the top of the 10th. That was the last of 17 Red Sox hits off four Giant pitchers and wasted four San Francisco homers.

The Giants had been doing fine with southpaw Billy O'Dell on the mound. When he left, after the seventh, San Francisco led. 6-3.

But Ramon Monzant, who took the mound in the eighth, walked Boston lead-off man Marty Keough and then another former Giant, Bobby Thomson, boomed a long triple. That finished Monzant and brought in Bud Byerly, who gave up a sacrifice fly that scored Thomson.

Pumpsie Green, who hails from El Cerrito, singled in the ninth for Boston to tie the score at 6-6 and send the game into extra innings.

Worthington, who came in to pitch in the ninth, retiring the Giants in order in that inning and allowed only one single, to Ed Bressoud, in the 10th.

The Giants' Joe Shipley, who pitched the 10th gave up a single to Randy Jackson. After Willie McCovey fumbled Lou Clinton's sacrifice bunt, Sullivan doubled to deep-right center to wrap up the contest.

Wasted were a pair om homers by Willie Kirkland and one each by Jim Davenport and Orlando Cepeda.

Hawks, Celts In 3rd Game Of Playoffs

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Hawks and the Boston Celtics square off before a sell-out crowd in Kiel Auditorium today in the third game of the National Basketball Assn. championship playoffs.

The teams are 1-1 in the best-of-seven series, which the coaches promise will be a down-to-the-wire battle.

"They're rugged anytime we meet them," St. Louis Coach Ed MacCauley said. He also noted the Hawks had been defeated by the Celts six games out of nine during the regular season.

Red Auerbach vowed his Boston team would be up for the series.

"Their pride is stung," Auerbach said, "but they're pros. Whether they win or lose is entirely up to them."

Besides season statistics, the Celtics have another advantage as a result of Hawk injuries.

Bob Petit, St. Louis star, is suffering from an injured back and Larry Foust has a knee and heel injury. However, both were expected to see action today.

One bright spot for the Hawks was Al Ferrari, who has been a playmaker and fireman for the club.

The series will shift to Boston Tuesday night for the fifth game and the sixth, if necessary, will be played in St. Louis Thursday. If a seventh game is needed it will be played in Boston next Saturday.

Giants To Put Opening Day Seats On Sale

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants announced yesterday that about 7,000 grandstand seats and 2,200 bleacher seats for opening day will go on sale Monday morning.

All other seats have been sold out for the opening day game on April 12 against the St. Louis Cardinals. The game is expected to fill Candlestick Park to its 45,000 capacity.

A club spokesman said the sale will start at 10 a.m. and no mail or telephone orders will be handled. The limit is four tickets per person.

Marin Ski Club's Junior Races Slated Tomorrow

Marin Ski Club's executive committee announced that three ski races are scheduled for members of the club during the remainder of this ski season.

The junior race, sponsored by the club and open to high school students in Marin, will be held tomorrow at Donner Ski Ranch on highway 40.

On Saturday, April 16, a beer race, open to members and their guests, will be held also at the Donner Ski Ranch. The following day, Sunday, the Berkeley Ski Club has challenged Marin Ski Club to their annual grudge race. It will take place at Sugar Bowl and will be a giant slalom. The preceding evening members of the Marin club will be guests of the Berkeley club at a party in the latter's lodge near Soda Springs.

The next regular meeting of the Marin Ski Club will be held next Wednesday, 8 p.m. at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo. At that time the club's summer social activities will be announced and officers for the 1960-61 season will be elected. Guests are welcome to attend.

Tamalpais Swim Meet

Tamalpais High School swim team tied for runner-up honors Thursday in a triangular meet at Berkeley.

Final scores were University of California freshmen 73 and Fremont and Tam 53½ each.

Tam's Class B team, paced by double winner Tony DePrado, downed Fremont, 54-32 for its seventh straight victory.

MAGUIRE SCHOOL WINS

Edna Maguire School defeated Neil Cummins School, 2-1 Thursday in a baseball game. Chuck Locati led the winners with two hits while Pat Smith was the winning pitcher.

College All-Stars Meet Peoria In Cage Finals

DENVER (AP) — Peroria's tournament-wise AAU champions and the NCAA university all-stars, bristling with Oscar Robertson and three other All-Americas, battle tonight for the championship of the U.S. Olympic basketball trials.

To the winner will go at least five places, and possibly seven, on the 12-member team that will wear the Stars and Stripes in Rome this summer.

Robertson and All-America Jerry West poured in 51 points between them to bury Akron, Ohio's AAU Wingfoots 103-88 in last night's second round before 8,500 at the Denver Coliseum.

Peoria, winner of the 1952 Olympic trials, broke out of a 9-9 tie on the shooting of 6-6 Tom Meschery of St. Mary's College and never trailed the rest of the way in beating the NAIA small college stars 89-68.

Ohio State's NCAA champions, spilled by the NAIA club 76-69 in the first round, bounced back with an 89-79 consolation victory over the NCAA All-Stars coached by Arad McCutchan.

Bartlesville, Okla., champion of the AAU's national industrial league, conquered the Armed Forces Stars 88-74 and will play Ohio State in a consolation match this afternoon. The other afternoon contest sends the Armed Forces against McCutchan's NCAA crew.

Akron and the NAIA team play in the night curtain raiser before the championship game.

The championship game sends Peoria's closely knit Cats against one of the greatest collections ever of college stars. Besides Robertson, who hit 29 points last night, and West, who bagged 22, the NCAA university unit includes two other AP All-Americas, 6-11 Darrall Imhoff of California and Tony Jackson of St. John (N.Y.).

Against that array of talent, Peoria sends 6-8 Bob Boozer, 6-9 Don Plunkett and 6-9 John Prudhoe as well as fine outside shooters in Don Ohl, Al Kelley and Howie Crittenden.

Warren Womble, Peoria coach, led the Cats to the Olympic trials championship in 1952 and coached the U.S. Olympic champs that year. The Cats have compiled a sizzling 53-won, 6-lost record in tournament play since 1951. In that time they have won five AAU championships.

John Havlicek swished 26 points in guiding Ohio State to its consolation triumph over the NCAA stars. All-America Jerry Lucas snared 22 rebounds and scored 15 points.

Burdie Haldorson canned 17 points and Jerry Shipp 15 in smoothing Bartlesville's way to the victory over the Armed Forces. Individual honors went to Jim Smith of the servicemen with 18.

NEWEST GIANT HAS NO NEED FOR VALET

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jim Marshall, the San Francisco Giants' new first baseman-outfielder, belonged to three clubs within three days early last week.

He bounced from Cleveland to the Boston Red Sox to San Francisco when the Giants traded Red Worthington for him.

"I don't worry about packing any more," he said. "I just whistle and the clothes jump into my suitcase."

Tiger Defeats Vic Zalazar In TV Fight

BOSTON (AP) — Rugged middleweight Dick Tiger wants a crack at Gene Fullmer, Paul Pender and Sugar Ray Robinson but it looks like he'll have to defend his British Empire championship first.

So said Jersey Jones last night after Tiger hammered out a split 10-round decision over Argentina's Victor Zalazar at the Boston Arena in a nationally televised fight.

Jones, who identifies himself as Tiger's "representative," said in the dressing room "Tiger hasn't defended in just over two years."

Jones added he had received a cable from Mickey Duff, manager of Terry Downes, for a Liverpool title match "and me may have to go over and take it."

Tiger, shorter, stockier and more muscular than his lanky South American opponent, finished strong last night. He dominated the first half of the fight, then had some trouble from the jabbing Zalazar before taking the offense again.

Tiger is the eighth-ranked challenger according to the National Boxing Assn. while Zalazar is unranked.

Tam, San Rafael And Novato Capture Marin Track Meets

Coach Glidden Benefield's Tamalpais Indians, led by double winners Ray Edwards, Bob Hector and Russ Cook, defeated Drake's Pirates, 70-43 yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League dual track and field meet marked by excellent performances for this stage in the season.

In other varsity competition San Rafael's Bulldogs swept every first place to whip Marin Catholic 84-22 and Novato shaded Redwood 58½-54½, although Novato's Bill Henderson, who ran a 9.9-second 100-yard dash last week, finished third in his specialty.

RECORDS FALL

Tam's second straight dual meet victory was highlighted by a school record performance by Edwards in the 180-yard low hurdles. Big Ray, also a football and basketball star, skimmed the low timber in 20.2 seconds, beating the several-year-old Tam record held by Enard Johnson by one-tenth of a second.

Edwards also won the high jump with a nifty leap of 6 feet 1 inch.

One of the most thrilling races of the afternoon came in the 120 high hurdles in which Tam's All-Northern California footballer Bob Hector won in the time of 15.4 seconds. It was a "blanket finish" with Tam's Russ Cook second and Drake star Bailey an eyelash behind in third spot. Hector also won the 440-yard run in 52.6 seconds.

Cook was Tam's high scorer as he won the 220 in 23.4 and the shot at 48 feet, 4 inches, placed second in the high boards and ran a leg of the winning relay.

San Rafael's victory was paced by the 13-point performance of Billy Knopf with victories in the 120 high hurdles (16.5) and the pole vault (10 feet) and a second in the discus.

Joe McNern won the quarter mile in 55.1 seconds and the 220 in 22.8 to pace Novato's victory, but the big surprise in this meet was Henderson's poor showing in the century after his 9.9 effort against Marin Catholic last week. Henderson was third in the time of 10.8. The victory went to Redwood's Dave Bortfeld in 10.5. His teammate, Mike Allessio, edged out Henderson for second place honors.

Following are first place winners in the varsity competition:

TAM VS. DRAKE

SOUGHT DAMAGES

Woman Convicted On Charge Of Perjury

A Novato mother, who gave false testimony last year in an effort to collect injury damages from Greyhound Lines, was convicted of perjury late yesterday by a Marin Superior Court jury.

The jurors deliberated for about an hour and found Mrs. Shirley J. Wisener, 37, guilty of committing perjury. Maximum penalty for perjury is one to 14 years in state prison. She can also be given probation or a county jail term.

Judge N. Charles Brusatori, who presided over the trial, set Monday as the time for sentencing. Public Defender Peter Allen Smith, who defended Mrs. Wisener, indicated he may ask for a new trial.

Mrs. Wisener, mother of five and wife of an Army sergeant, sued Greyhound last year, alleging she suffered injuries to her back, spine and legs while getting off a bus in January of 1958. Trial was held last October. During the trial, she testified under oath that she had never had previous back or headache troubles or blackouts or neck trouble.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety, prosecutor, introduced Veterans Administration records to show that she had claimed blackouts, headaches and backaches in 1954, long before the bus incident. She had told the Veterans Administration she was injured in 1943 while working for the Marine Corps.

After the conviction, Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich asked that Mrs. Wisener's bail be raised from $500 to $1,500. He pointed out that Mrs. Wisener's home is in Kansas, and she is already on probation for bad checks.

Her attorney vigorously opposed the bail increase, pointing out that Mrs. Wisener has showed up for all court appearances in the past, and is living with friends in Novato.

Judge Brusatori pointed out that perjury is a felony offense and she is no longer cloaked with the presumption of innocence. He ordered her held in jail unless she can put up the $1,500 bail.

D.A. Checks Bills For 'Advertising'

Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich said today he has cited a San Francisco directory publishing firm to appear in his office at 11 a.m. Tuesday to discuss what he termed misleading advertising mailed to Marin businessmen.

Operators of various types of business houses throughout Marin yesterday received in the mail, in window envelopes closely resembling those used by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., what at first glance appeared to be bills for directory listings.

The "bills" are made up in form similar to that of telephone company bills for yellow page directory listings.

They bear the return address of Commercial Directory Publishing Co., 112 Market street, San Francisco.

The printed matter includes the warning: "Return this solicitation with payment or initial advertisement will not appear." Elsewhere it says, "This proposal and solicitation form must be returned to insure insertion of your first advertisement in the new 'state business and buyers guide.'"

In fine print in the additional advice: "This is not an invoice or renewal. We have no connection with any other publication or telephone companies."

Weissich said, "It appears to be this is misleading advertising, illegal under the Business and Professions Code."

Some Marin businessmen received several copies of the "bill." Oakley Dexter, proprietor of Dexter's TV in Larkspur and immediate past president of the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce, said he received nine, all in different amounts ranging from $14.25 to $75.

Richard L. Shirley, secretary of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, said merchants should be warned against the advertising lest they mistake the solicitation for a bill for an already-ordered directory listing.

Vernon Libby of the San Francisco Better Business Bureau said: "Someone in a busy organization, thinking that it is a bill from the telephone company for yellow-page advertising, might, in haste, order payment, then regret it.

"It's a cunning advertising device, and it might be found to be misleading."

Libby said the Commercial Directory Publishing Co. is run jointly by Wade R. Lundegard of Pleasant Hill, formerly associated with a firm that produced "Treasure Chest" coupons, and Robert Spillers, a Redwood City real estate man. Spillers, incidentally, is a candidate in the April 12 municipal election for his fourth four-year term on the Redwood City Council.

Nuclear War Survival

rights of the Western big-three powers in the German city.

The Soviet Premier declined to be drawn into a comparison of his talks with de Gaulle and his earlier meetings in the United States with President Eisenhower.

He reiterated his opposition to all atomic test blasts when asked to comment on the French test explosion in the Sahara yesterday. He said he regretted the two French tests took place.

"I am convinced France will adhere to any agreement that is reached" on a suspension of tests, he added.

If such an agreement is reached, Khrushchev said, it would certainly be more difficult for France to continue atomic testing.

Several times during the news conference Khrushchev was warmly applauded.

He started off with a warm tribute to France and thanks to Gen. de Gaulle for inviting him to France.

In answering the first question of the day, he said he was now optimistic about prospects for the mid-May meeting of big-four leaders in Paris.

"We have worked well and done much," the Soviet leader told a big news conference after winding up his private negotiations with de Gaulle.

The first concrete result of his visit was an agreement by France and the Soviet Union to cooperate in the field of science and the peaceful applications of atomic energy.

Khrushchev said that his wish for world peace had been strengthened in his talks with de Gaulle.

He added, however, they had not settled all the problems between them.

"We have exchanged views on diverse problems," he said. "We have talked frankly. We have tried for a better understanding and I think we have succeeded."

He called for greater cultural and economic exchanges so that all countries could mutually profit.

Khrushchev returns to Moscow tomorrow at the end of an 11-day visit

Quentin on Jan. 1, 1951, for a term of up to 50 years. He was paroled on April 26, 1955.

In March of 1959 in Redwood City, he was picked up on suspicion of lewd acts toward a child, but the charge was reduced to vagrancy. He served 30 days in jail. In August of the same year, he served another 30 days in San Mateo County Jail for child molestation.

Then this year came the attacks on the San Rafael girl and the San Francisco child. The San Rafael attack was not even reported by the parents. The man's own confession brought it to light.

San Francisco is prosecuting the man, and San Rafael has a "hold" on him.

Another recent repeater was a San Francisco fruit vendor, now 63, who befriended girls in the Marinwood area last year and lured them inside his closed truck. His known record for sex offenses dates back to 1942 when he drew five years probation in Los Angeles for child molesting.

In 1945, he gave three Los Angeles girls money for pony rides, then attacked one of them. For this, he drew one year to life and served in prison from 1947 to 1953. Last year, he was caught in Marin and is now serving another term of one year to life in state prison.

Here are some other repeaters, and the penalties imposed on them:

1. Records show that as a teen-ager, this man served time in Minnesota prison for attempted assault on a 6-year-old girl in 1954. In June, 1957, he was arrested in Marin for delinquency involving a 9-year-old girl. He drew five years probation and was ordered not to associate with minors. In March, 1959, aged 24, he was convicted of lewd acts on another 9-year-old. He is now at Atascadero as a sexual psychopath.

2. An out-of county man, 36, was convicted in Oakland in July of 1957 for sex perversion. He drew 60 days jail and three years probation. In May, 1958, he molested a boy, 14, in Marin. For this he drew two years probation, 60 days in jail and a $350 fine.

3. A draftsman, 31, was convicted of child molesting in San Francisco in 1955. He drew one year probation and a $100 fine. In 1956, he was convicted of perversion in Marin. He underwent treatment at Atascadero for more than one year and was put on five years probation in December, 1957.

4. A cab driver, now 37, was suspected of molesting a boy in 1953 and convicted of contributing to the delinquency of a minor in Marin. He drew one year in jail, suspended, and three years probation. In 1957, he was arrested for perversion and committed to Atascadero as a sex psychopath. In November, 1958, he got out on five years probation after treatment. In December, 1959, he was picked up on suspicion of child molesting and is now serving one year in county jail.

5. A gardener, 37, was arrested in 1952 for molesting boys under 14. He was sent to Mendocino State Hospital for observation in October, 1952. In February, 1953, he drew five years probation. In 1955, he was picked up again on suspicion of perversion. He was convicted of contributing to the delinquency of minors and sentenced in February, 1956 to 90 days in jail and 90 days on weekends.

6. A 44-year-old dairy worker has a record dating back to 1936. At that time, he was convicted of lewdness toward a 9-year-old boy. In 1939, he violated probation and served six months in jail. In 1942, he was suspected of lewd acts toward a child but sentenced for indecent exposure. He got a suspended sentence and two years probation. In 1944, he was sent to Napa State Hospital for indecent exposure. This year, he was arrested again for indecent exposure in West Marin, and the case is still pending.

There have been several other cases of repeated exhibitionism (indecent exposure), which probation officials explain is not essentially a sex offense. A probation officer who has made an extensive study of exhibitionism reports that in almost 100 per cent of these cases, the offender does not progress into more serious sex offenses.

The fact that exhibitionism outrage public decency certainly cannot be minimized. However, the specialists do not consider these offenders as dangerous sex criminals. Cases of indecent exposure and peeping Toms are not covered in this study.

The role of a probation officer is essentially that of helping the offender rehabilitate himself. To the layman, a news report that a man "got out on probation" may sound as if he is scot free.

However, he may have to serve time as a condition of probation, undergo psychotherapy and abide by other conditions. A person on probation must report regularly to his probation officer, giving changes of address, occupation, marital status, and his activities. If he fails to obey the rules, he is hauled into court as a probation violator. For child molesters, one of the rules is not to associate with minors.

The amount of supervision that a probation officer can give to those on probation depends on the number of cases he handles. The more cases he must supervise, the less attention he can give to each person.

Marin County's probation officers point with a certain amount of satisfaction to the number of first offenders who have been returned to society without—as yet—repeat violations.

Here are some of the first offenses and the dispositions made:

1. A 65-year-old man admitted perversion acts on a 4-year-old girl in 1957. There was some indication he had molested another child during the same period. He was sent to Atascadero from October, 1957, to April, 1959, then released on five years supervised probation.

2. A dishwasher, 50, was charged with perversion involving a boy, 16, in 1957. In June, 1958, he drew three years probation.

3. A young soldier was accused of raping a housewife in 1956. The case was dropped because the victim could not take the stand. In March, 1958, the same man was convicted of vagrancy for making lewd remarks to young girls. This was the first morals offense of record because the earlier rape charge had to be dropped. He drew 10 days in jail and three years probation.

4. A 37-year-old man, mentally retarded, molested a 5-year-old girl in November, 1958. He was treated at Atascadero, then sentenced in June of 1959 to three years supervised probation.

5. A 30-year-old San Francisco man molested a 5-year-old girl in Southern Marin in 1957. He spent 120 days in jail and drew three years probation.

6. A 25-year-old student molested a 9-year-old girl in 1957. He drew 90 days in jail and two years probation.

7. An elderly ranch hand molested several 12-year-old girls in November, 1958. He went to Atascadero for four months, then drew five years probation on condition he enter Napa State Hospital.

8. Another retired man, age 76, who kept a 7-year-old girl overnight in his cottage without harming her was freed on condition he go back to his home in Hawaii.

9. A man, 32, who molested a 4-year-old girl, drew five years probation last June.

10. In March, 1957, a 38-year-old laborer was arrested for molesting a child. He spent more than a year at Atascadero and then drew five years probation.

11. A 43-year-old man was charged with perversion in 1958, pleaded guilty to contributing to a child's delinquency, and drew two years probation. He had other prior records such as petty theft and assault and battery, but no previous morals offense on record.

12. A 31-year-old service station worker got three years probation and six months in jail in December, 1956, for molesting a child.

13. A 34-year-old Terra Linda man was convicted this year of sexperversion with two small boys over a period of two years. Other parents complained that a boy and a girl, about 5, were also molested by the same man, but he was not tried on these charges. Sentence is pending.

Looking on (right) is Gordon Dixon, mechanical superintendent, who began his 33rd year with the paper this week. The caster will be used with a six-ton metal melter. The new process, to go into operation Monday, will take the place of three separate operations.

Pupils In Enriched Classes May Be Penalized With Lower Grades

Is it wrong to put bright children into "accelerated" or "honors" courses in high school? Sometimes it is.

Here's an odd situation:

Many of our high schools now have accelerated or honors courses for bright students. The idea is to enrich the work of the more able kids, and to challenge them. That sounds reasonable, doesn't it?

But there is a catch—grades. Most of the bright youngsters have been getting "A" or "B" grades in their regular classes. They need high grades to get into college. If they hope to win scholarships they must have mostly "A's."

But the teachers in some of the honors courses have been giving "C's" and "D's." Although their classes are composed only of "A" and "B" students they grade according to the old normal curve. That means some of the youngsters in honors classes are penalized badly.

So before you put your bright teen-ager in an accelerated class, investigate. If you find out he'll be apt to get a lower grade than in a regular class, stick with the regular class. For college entrance an "A" in a regular geometry class will count more than a "B" or "C" in an enriched geometry class.

As far as college is concerned grades matter more than enrichment.

What's the solution? It's simple. When honors classes are established, faculties should agree to give fewer "A" grades in regular classes. Then they should give only "A's" and "B's" in the honor classes. No "C" grades at all.

The students who work at "C" level should be put back in the regular classes in a hurry.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "My son is learning to print, in the first grade. This is a slow way to write. When will he learn to write properly?"

(A) In another year or so. Printing is easier for him now. Also printing makes it possible for his writing to help his reading, and vice versa.

Three Men Draw Jail Sentences For Watch Deals

Three San Francisco men, who gave stories of woe to palm off cheap watches for $30 to $35 in Marin County, must spend 15 days in county jail each.

They appeared yesterday before Judge Leonard A. Thomas and pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the county's soliciting ordinance. The three are Arthur Thomas Bucalos, 44; Edwin Benvenu Bucalos, 35, and Louis Fred Esper, 36. The three are also being held for San Francisco on suspicion of robbery there last December.

Sheriff's inspectors said the three men, working with two women, are believed to have raked in $10,000 a year in profits on the wrist watch deals. They bought the watches for $7.50 apiece and represented them to be worth $135 to gullible citizens, according to Inspector Bowen Bridges.

Runaway Girl, 17, Tells Of Journey

A 17-year-old runaway girl from Florida gave herself up to Marin authorities yesterday and gave sheriff's deputies an account of a harrowing cross-country flight.

Two highway patrolmen found her walking south on Highway 101 about 1 a.m. near Marinwood.

The girl told Inspector William C. Bradley that she married at 15, entered a girl's institution in Florida for car theft, and then escaped. She hitch-hiked to Los Angeles, then to San Francisco. Last night she got a lift from a truck driver from Mendocino to Marin. When he "got fresh," she said, she left the truck and was walking toward San Francisco when picked up.

She was held at Marin Juvenile Hall.

Man Faces Trial On Hit-Run Count

Thomas Eugene Porter, 22-year-old truck driver and laborer from Pt. Reyes, must face trial on a felony hit-run driving charge, as a result of a head-on crash near Olema on March 17.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas bound Porter over to superior court on that charge after a preliminary hearing yesterday. Porter was also charged with felony drunken driving, but this was dropped because of insufficient evidence.

Highway patrolmen and Deputy Sheriff William S. Christensen said Porter fled the crash scene. There were no witnesses in court yesterday to testify that Porter was intoxicated at the time of the crash.

Two women in the other car were seriously injured in the mishap. Porter also suffered bruises but got away, according to patrolmen. He was later picked up in Albany.

Adult Classes To Start Spring Term

The San Rafael High School adult classes at Hamilton Air Force Base will start the spring term Monday.

The eight-week term will include courses in English literature, U.S. history, California civics, general science and basic mathematics.

Civilians or military personal may take any of these courses for high school credit without charge, said Robert R. Royle, director of adult classes. Persons interested in working toward a high school diploma may obtain information from Royle at the high school.

All classes meet twice a week in Building 585 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Registration extends through second meeting of each class.

SHOW MUST GO ON . . . BUT IT WON'T

The Independent-Journal was in error yesterday in reporting that there would be performances of the Ross Valley Junior Players production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" this and next weekend.

The final performances of "Arsenic and Old Lace" were presented at the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross last weekend.

There will be no more performances.

Coast Guardsman Convicted On Burglary Charge

A young Coast Guardsman from Pt. Reyes Lifeboat Station will be sentenced next Tuesday for burglary of the Rite Price Market in Inverness on Feb. 15.

A jury heard the case for five days before Judge Richard M. Sims in Marin Superior Court and found Theodore R. Abrams, 22, guilty of second degree burglary. The jurors deliberated for an hour and a half and brought in the verdict at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Penalty can range from probation to 15 years in state prison.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales, prosecutor, introduced evidence showing Abrams stole about $275 in cash, two radios, a pair of binoculars and an electric shaver from George Ludy's market. The loot was recovered except for the shaver and binoculars.

The Coast Guardsman contended that he had been drinking heavily that day and does not recall what happened because he had an alcoholic blackout.

Judge Haley To Sit In Superior Court

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court will serve on the Marin Superior Court bench for the next two months.

Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson of the State Judicial Council has assigned Judge Haley as acting superior court judge for April and May, County Clerk George S. Jones announced this morning.

Judge Richard M. Sims, who served on the higher bench for the past two months, is back in municipal court.

This is not the first time that Judge Haley has served in superior court. He was acting superior court judge for two months in 1958 and again briefly in 1959.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Bad Fire Year Feared

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Forestry officials in California, alarmed at this third consecutive year of sub-normal rainfall, predicted today that the 1960 fire season could be the worst on record.

"We just haven't had the heavy rain that soaks into logs and dry stuff on the ground," said W. D. Winters, deputy state forester in charge of fire control.

Unemployment Climbs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state expects to begin paying extended unemployment benefits beginning next week, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown blames "adverse federal policies" for the slight increase in the number of jobless.

Brown said yesterday that statistics for the first quarter of 1960 probably will show that more than 368,000 Californians —6 per cent of the job force— were out of work. Under a state law passed by the 1959 Legislature, emergency unemployment pay of up to $50 a week for an additional 13 weeks goes into effect when the 6 per cent figure is reached.

The governor said most of the unemployment was in the defense and construction industries.

Derailed Train Burns

GATESVILLE, N.C. (UPI)— About 29 cars of an Atlantic Coast Line freight train derailed today and burst into flames when a gasoline tank car erupted.

First reports indicated that no injuries were involved.

Gloom In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The actors strike against major movie studios threatened today to cast a pall over Monday's Academy Award show, traditionally Hollywood's major event of the year.

No new talks in the Screen Actors Guild walkout were expected before Tuesday because of the award presentations. Bargaining sessions between the guild and association of motion picture producers were canceled Wednesday and Thursday just when a settlement appeared imminent.

Guild executive secretary John L. Dales blamed the new stalemate on the "ever-absent" presidents of the major studios who fail to support their negotiating teams.

New Teamster Monitor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent has been named to the strife-torn board of monitors that is supposed to clean up corruption in the Teamsters Union.

He's Terence F. McShane, 32, who directed a FBI wiretapping probe involving Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. McShane resigned from the FBI this week to take the monitor post.

"I don't think it takes too much imagination to see what this is all about," said Hoffa, "but we'll judge his activities as he goes along."

Bomarc Work Halted

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP)—The Air Force has halted construction of 28 Bomarc missile launching sites here.

The Bomarc program is being cut back 300 million dollars to increase production of Atlas intercontinental missiles and missile-detection satellites, the Air Force said yesterday.

Bomarc is a Boeing-built surface-to-air missile, designed primarily for use against raiding bombers. It has a range of about 400 miles.

Cubans Report Raids

HAVANA (AP)—The newspaper Revolucion carried reports today of new cane-burning attacks "by airplanes coming from the north" but gave little evidence to support the charge.

The newspaper of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement said there had been "new incursions of pirate airplanes from the north" in the past 48 hours.

Airline Offer Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department is studying a Russian offer to discuss regular commercial airline service between the United States and Russia.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said yesterday the note revived discussions held in 1958.

Economy Run Starts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The 1960 Mobilgas Economy Run gets under way today with 56 cars taking part in the longest trek in the 24-year history of the event—2,064 miles from here to Minneapolis.

It is also the largest entry list in the history of the run, a test of gasoline consumption on a per mile basis, and also a test for the drivers who must maintain an average speed of 40.75 miles per hour over a set distance each day through a variety of driving conditions.

Drivers include 20 women and 36 men.

Girl Chosen To Study In Foreign Land

Duane (Dee Dee) Haney, 16, a San Rafael High School junior, has been named an American Field Service exchange student.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Haney of 26 Tierra Vista way, San Rafael, she will attend school in a foreign country the first semester of her senior year.

Dee Dee hasn't yet learned what country she will go to, but she is hoping for a French or German-speaking one. She has studied both languages.

She is an accomplished dancer and singer and played a lead role in the school's most recent musical production, "Bits of Hits." She is treasurer of the school's music society and member of the a cappella choir.

Dee Dee studied ballet and is a member of a singing group, the Ross Valley Seniors, directed by Byron Jones.

Thirty-seven applicants from San Rafael High had applied for the American Field Service program and the group was narrowed to six whose applications were forwarded to the service's headquarters in New York. Dee Dee was the only one selected.

San Rafael High now has a student in Italy as part of the experimental program of spending a whole year in a school abroad.

Reward Offered For Person Who Tortured Poodle

Clayton M. Chapman of Larkspur has offered a $10 reward for information leading to the apprehension of persons guilty of "unusually cruel treatment" of his valuable French poodle, Chappie.

Chapman, who live at 143 Elm avenue on Palm Hill, said he believes youngsters are responsible for recent torturing of the year-old dog.

The second such incident occurred Wednesday, he said, when someone tied one end of a string to the dog's right hind leg and the other to a fence, then tossed sticks and rocks down the steep hill for Chappie to "retrieve." The string cut the dog's flesh to the bone as he ran after the sticks and rocks, said Chapman.

The first incident was identical except that the heavy string, "tied very securely with two large knots," was fastened to the dog's other hind leg, Chapman related. He said Chappie, now recovering in a pet hospital, suffered severe wounds both times 'and it's costing me a lot of money."

Larkspur Police Chief Howard Clark promised an investigation.

Coast Guard Boat Answers Aid Call

A cry for help off the Belvedere shore sent the Coast Guard searching Thursday night for an outboard motorboat with four persons aboard, but when searchers arrived, the boat had vanished.

Belvedere Police Chief William S. Woodington said he received a telephone call at 6:30 p.m. reporting a girl had cried "get the Coast Guard" from a 14-foot outboard 50 yards off the old fish docks. The Coast Guard station at Ft. Point got a call about the same time, but when its search craft reached the scene, no boat was in sight.

2 Cars Found In Odd Spots In Mill Valley

Two cars, one with driver, one without, were found in strange surroundings Thursday night and yesterday by Mill Valley police.

Sgt. Ben Hartwell found a car in the front yard of Mrs. Mildred Wright at 403 Throckmorton avenue at 4:50 a.m. today. The motor was cold and there was no driver about. Mrs. Wright said she discovered the car, about four feet from her front stairs, when she let the cat out.

She said it had torn up two trees and gone through three hedges.

The car was registered to Mrs. Lourdes Robertson of 418 Throckmorton, who cailed police at 6:13 a.m. to report it stolen.

Last night at 8:40, Leo W. Baker, 19, of 1025 Irwin street, San Rafael, was cited for speeding by Patrolman Lee Sellers after he found Baker's car extending six feet over Mill Valley Creek near 129 Miller avenue. It had left 120 feet of skid marks on the pavement, said Sellers.

Baker told Sellers, "As I entered the curb my door came open and I fell out."

Washing Machine Stolen From Firm

A thief made a clean getaway with a brand new automatic washing machine from the storage yard of Rafael Floor Covering and Appliance Inc. in San Rafael, the owner complained Thursday.

San Rafael police said the washer was valued at $196. It was inside an open shed in the the company storage yard at 439 Francisco boulevard. The yard is enclosed by a six-foot steel fence.

Charles Oliver, co-owner, said that a few days ago, crushed rock was dumped against the gate, and the gate could not be closed.

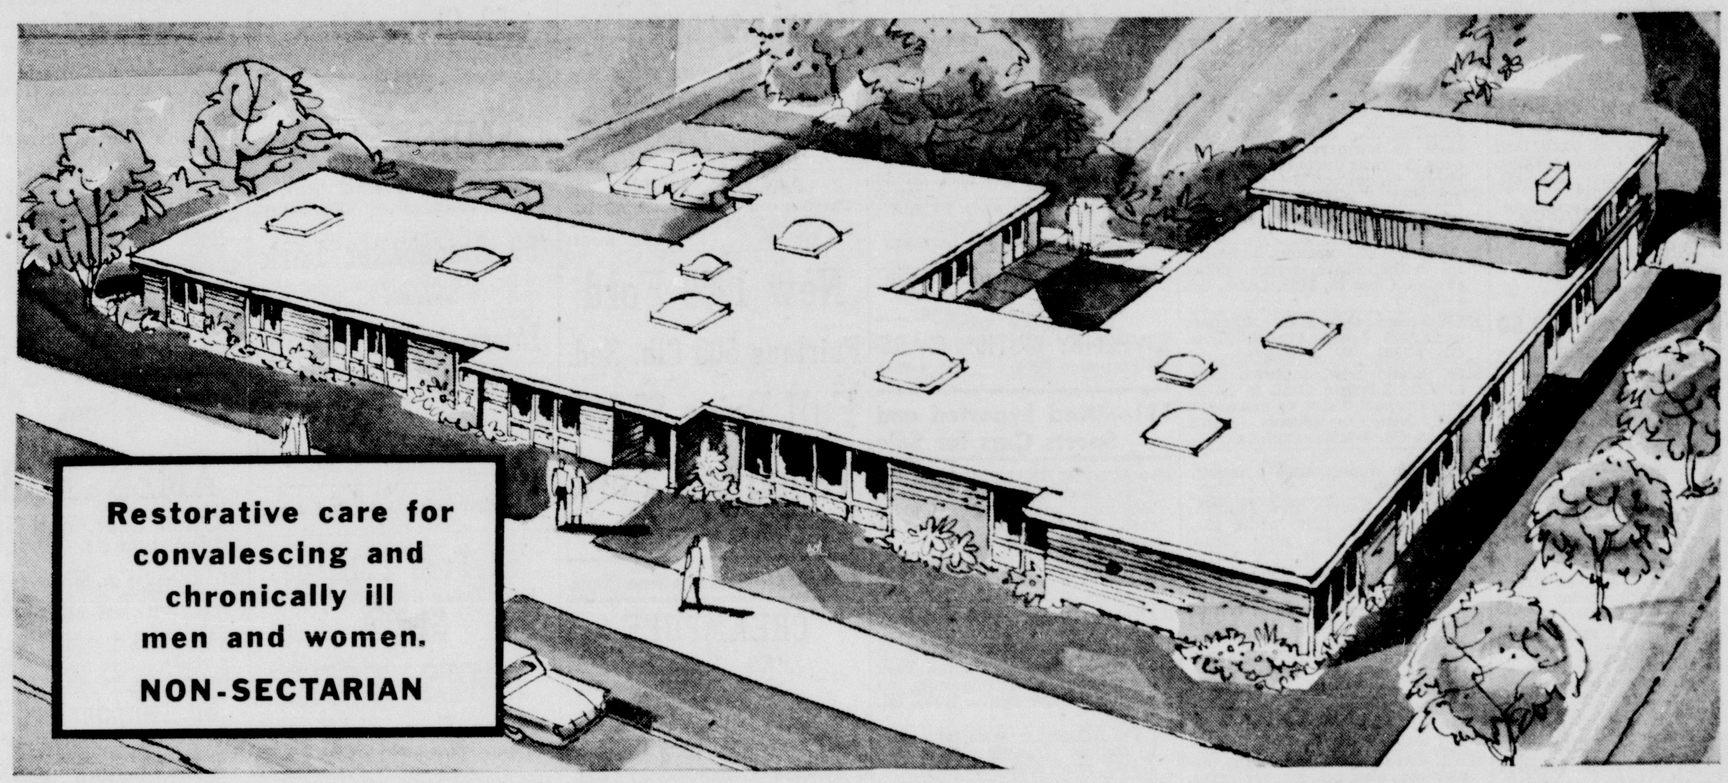
HILLHAVEN
CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL



OPEN HOUSE SUNDAY, APRIL 3rd 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.
233 West End Ave. (On The Miracle Mile) San Rafael Phone GL 6-5054

A pleasant way of life for the long-term or convalescent patient
Hillhaven offers a more pleasant life for those who are unable to care for themselves. The building itself was designed for the exclusive use of Hillhaven, according to strict specifications prescribed by Hillhaven, Inc., a nationally known leader in the design and management of convalescent hospitals and nursing homes.
Hillhaven bears no resemblance to the old-fashioned "nursing home," neither does its appearance remind one of a conventional hospital. At Hillhaven every convenience has been incorporated for the care, safety and well-being of patients, who are served with skill and affection by a carefully selected and trained staff.

Light, airy, bright, cheerful
Spacious rooms and corridors . . . tastefully landscaped, protected patios . . . bright, cheerful interior decorative effects . . . these all contribute to a feeling of being at home.

Nurses' station provides feeling of security
At the conveniently located nurses' station, there is always someone who "knows what to do." At Hillhaven 24-hour nursing care is provided by a carefully selected and trained staff under the supervision of registered nurses.

Conveniently located
Hillhaven is conveniently located . . . is close to doctors' offices and other medical facilities, when needed.

"Safety First" is not merely a slogan
Throughout Hillhaven extreme care has been taken for the safety of patients. Handrails in hallways encourage patients to "do for themselves." Doorways and hallways are extra wide to accommodate wheel chairs and beds. Bathtubs have sides slightly lower than usual, with handrails for safety, and "drive-in" showers are provided for wheel chair patients. Special Simmons vari-hite beds may be raised and lowered from hospital height to standard height. Safety side rails are provided when needed and call-light buttons are easily reached.

Cheerful bedrooms provide privacy — homey living room encourages sociability
Bedrooms at Hillhaven are styled for beauty, comfort and efficiency. They are decorated in soft pastel colors, accented with harmonious drapes and furniture. Each patient has ample storage space. Private, semi-private and multiple-bed accommodations are available. The living room was designed to be lived in. Furniture is arranged for easy conversational groups and an adequate supply of reading material is always available. There's a large-screen television, of course, and plenty of room for wheel chair patients to roll in and park.

Spotless kitchen prepares excellent, well-balanced meals
The finest and most modern equipment available has been installed in the Hillhaven kitchen and only the best foods on the market are purchased. Food is tastefully prepared and attractively served. The chef follows doctors' orders regarding special diets.

Every day is cleaning day at Hillhaven
Every day the busy, modern Hillhaven laundry eats its way through mountains of linens, towels and other items. Housekeeping and maintenance services are carried out by Hillhaven's own housekeepers and maids. Here there is no compromise with cleanliness.

IN NEXT WEEK'S MAGAZINE—

EVERY SEAFARER, whether a working merchant mariner or a Sunday yachtsman, appreciates the protection that the vigilance of the men of the United States Coast Guard affords him. It is one of Uncle Sam's most vital and most colorful services to the public. And nowhere is the Coast Guard more important than in the nautical-minded Bay Area. In next week's Marin Magazine reporter Dorothy Slattery and photographer Jim Kean team up to give you a close-up look at some of these Coast Guardsmen at work.

MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

Our Daredevil Columnist Ends Spin With Knees Skinned, Egg On Face

THE BREEZE was mostly from the east, so after warming up the engine of the Taurus I taxied down to the west end of the runway of the old San Rafael Airport and wheeled around into the wind.

I gave it the gun and the ground beneath me was a blur as the tiny craft gained speed. Even the chuckholes in the much neglected runway smoothed out to the sight though I could feel a vibration in the framework as the wheels of the Taurus passed over them.

This was an open cockpit job and as I wore neither helmet nor goggles the air was sharp on my face, stinging my eyes and nose. The motor had now settled into a steady drone and I could detect no misfire that would make this anything but a perfect takeoff.

I had now gone about half the length of the runway. My foot pressed hard on the throttle and my knuckles were white as I clenched the three-quarter segmented wheel in my hands. Faster and faster I sped. Quickly now I would be near the end of the strip but there was no lessening of the jouncing to indicate that my wheels had left the ground.

I REMOVED my foot from the pedal and, just before the last few yards of macadamized runway were swallowed up I risked an overturn. Pulling hard on the wheel I spun right off the pavement and taxied up to the fire fence which bordered the field where my wife and Wayne Clements stood watching me.

"How do you shut this thing off?" I asked Wayne.

He stepped over and touched a lever and the motor coughed and died. I climber out of the tiny Putt-Nik racing "kart" and stretched my cramped limbs.

"Quite an experience," I said. "It works like a power lawn mower and is five times as much fun. How fast was I going?"

IT WAS HARD to believe that I hadn't surpassed 35 miles an hour. Only six inches from the ground it had seemed like the state speed limit.

A few minutes later I was out on the runway again for a second heat, racing my wife in a companion model of the Taurus, the Aries.

Wayne Clements who has repaired our television for Westland more times than I'd care to count had invited us down to try out his bugs. He has secured a dealer's franchise for the Putt-Nik and hopes some day to organize a Kart Klub and set up a racing course on the abandoned airfield where he maintains an office and salesroom.

Marin already has several Kart owners who run them in vacant lots, schoolyards, parking lots — anywhere but on the streets where they are verboten. Greatest number of enthusiasts are to be found in Southern California and in Florida where thousands experience the vicarious thrills of making like racing drivers without the spills.

NOTABLE participants in the sport are Jack Paar, his announcer Hugh Downs, and Air Force Vice Chief of Staff General Curtis Le May.

The two and one-half horsepower motored open Kart is simpler to operate than a bicycle and anyone from 9 to 90 can qualify as long as he has two feet—one for gas and one for the brake—and hands to steer with.

"It's almost impossible to get hurt," said Wayne, and to show what he meant he jammed on the brakes hard in a turn. The tires lost rubber but the vehicle remained erect on all four wheels.

Of course I had to demonstrate that there is no such word as impossible—no fault of the Putt-Nik, you understand. It was after I had climbed out of it that I made the beautiful three-point landing.

One hand, one knee and that thing on my face which something usually happens to when I go poking it into other people's business.

Meet Betty Deedy—A Very Busy Woman

Mother Of Six, She Still Has Time For Civic Duty

By DOROTHY BLACKMAN

Take one huge, 25-room house, complete with garden.

Six children, assorted ages, busy with school and activities. One husband, equally busy.

And there are the ingredients to keep any woman on her toes.

Add the heavy responsibilities of a trustee of the College of Marin and you have the schedule of Elizabeth Deedy of Ross, a very busy woman, indeed.

Since her election in 1958 as the second woman member of the board (she is now the only woman member), Mrs. Deedy has given time that "I couldn't begin to measure" to her work with the college.

Yet, somehow, she manages the care of a large house that sometimes — filled with the Deedy children and their friends — doesn't seem quite large enough. And she does it with no outside help.

THE SMOOTHLY running household is due, in large part, to a "very wonderful family . . . a marvelous team" who recognize mother's interest in the community and, specifically, in education, and are patient if dinner is a bit late.

"I don't believe my activity on the board has meant for one moment that my children have been neglected," says Elizabeth Deedy in a soft-voiced, pleasant South Carolina accent. "My work has developed self-reliant children who are better informed on the responsibilities of citizenship."

The Deedy "team" includes husband Daniel F., executive secretary of the Marin County Real Estate Board; daughters Margaret, 16, and Kathy, 14, students at Redwood High; Doris Ann, 12, and Charlotte, 8, who attend Ross School; sons Danny, 9, also at Ross, and Billy, 4½. There is also Vicki, the boxer, who arrived for Christmas, and four cats, Mitsy, Mrs. Cat, Blue Eyes and Green Eyes.

Mrs. Deedy manages to accomplish all that she does by making every minute count. "I have to have a schedule, but not one that runs me," she says. There is time to talk to a visitor on her ideas about education, to discuss college problems with President Ward Austin who may drop by before a board meeting that night, time to adjust little Billy's cowboy holster, then rush off to take her turn at the car pool for the school children. And time for two regular board meetings a month, plus special and committee meetings.

MUCH OF HER work for the college is done during the day, at home. As a board member she must do a lot of studying and reading. If she has to go to the college during the day, Billy goes with her.

But when the kids come home from school, mother is there. She doesn't leave for night meetings at the college until after dinner, when homework is under way and the small children are in bed.

"I like knowing my children and enjoying them," she says.

She likes the children to feel that their home is a place where friends can drop in any time. And every youngster in the Deedy family has a set of duties in that home. "I believe a child can learn early the absolute necessity and simplicity of picking up behind and keeping things straight. But it's a harder lesson to teach boys than girls," she laughs.

Elizabeth Manning Deedy was born in Atlanta, Ga., but lived there only a short time. Her home was in Charleston, S. C., for a number of years, and she spent a lot of time in Cheraw, S.C., where she still has close relatives.

Both her mother, Eoline Richardson, and her father Charles Sinkler Manning, come from old South Carolina families who were active in state politics—one of the reasons for Betty Deedy's interest in government.

THE SOUTH is still close to her heart and interests. Call it the "Civil War" instead of the "War Between the States" and her eyes begin to twinkle at such a mistake.

Her ancestors fought in the war, and her great-aunt and grandfather had difficult experiences during that time. The family buried their silver at the time of Sherman's march through Georgia to the sea.

This heritage has given her a certain impatience "when people damn the South so freely." She feels that the South is an exciting place today where people are "doing a better job of solving local problems than has ever been reported in the press."

Her last visit to the South was seven years ago, and she hopes to go again this Spring.

Mrs. Deedy speaks with pleasure of her school years. When she was a junior in high school, she was sent to a boarding school in Nashville, Tenn., for two years. Those were "very exciting and glamorous years." She attended a lot of parties, met many people, and had "many escapades" that go along with life in a girls' dormitory.

When she finished high school, she thought she wanted to write and study journalism. The depression prevented her attending a large university, so she went to Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S. C., a state college for women, for a year.

THAT SUMMER Betty became very interested in astronomy. She put on glasses—but unfortunately didn't smoke them — to watch an eclipse of the sun. As a result, her sight nerves were paralyzed and her sight was affected so that she could only see halves of things. She spent a year in therapy and had to give up college during that time.

When her sight came back, she went to the all-girl Queens College in Charlotte, N.C., but, she remembers with a smile, a boys' college was only a few miles away, and there was a "great exchange of social activities."

Her college was operated by the Presbyterian Church, and it was very strict. "We meditated on Sundays." But she had a wonderful time there. "Its was a very enriching experience in every way," she says.

Betty majored in English and French and minored in psychology. She was active on the school newspaper, but gave up the idea of going into journalism on the advice of the Charlotte newspaper editor who felt there was little opportunity for women.

She became interested in sociology and psychology. In her senior year she received a fellowship at the Pennsylvania School of Social Work. But then she was offered a position at the University of Pennsylvania and decided to give up the fellowship and the idea of doing social work. "I never would have been any good at it," she declares.

IN HER JOB at the university she was on the dean of women's staff, in charge of all resident women at the university. She worked on revision of student government, counseling, budget management, and student activities. "I enjoyed it thoroughly," she says of her four years on that job. And she enrolled in psychology courses to get her master's degree.

Then Betty decided she needed a change and wanted to travel. So she came to California where her mother had settled in Alameda.

She planned to get her doctorate here and began meeting her German requirements at a language school. Then came Pearl Harbor — "and life took another turn," Mrs. Deedy recalls.

Dan Deedy, a Yankee soldier from Massachusetts, was sent to California in charge of an anti-aircraft battalion stationed in Alameda.

Betty was working in a serviceman's hospitality center which she managed for a while. The two were introduced by a mutual friend, and in 1942 they were married.

Then came a number of moves. Deedy was sent to Vallejo, where he was in charge of the searchlights that flickered over the hills of Marin. The next move was to Riverside, and there Betty waited while her husband was sent to Texas, Virginia, Washington and New York.

FINALLY DAN was put in charge of special services to recruit local talent shows to sell bonds, and Hollywood talent shows. He was transferred back to the Bay Area to Fort Mason. By then Margaret and Kathy had arrived, and the whole family moved into living quarters on the fort.

But they had decided they wanted to make Mill Valley their home and found an old hillside house on Throckmorton avenue. They remodeled it as the family grew and "struggled to make a level spot for the children, so they wouldn't walk off into space," Mrs. Deedy says.

After some 10 years, however, she persuaded Dan that she would be healthier and happier on a level lot and in a warmer climate. "I loathe cold summer days," she says emphatically. Both enjoyed Mill Valley and their friends there, but they decided about three years ago to move to Ross where they find it easier to rear the children.

It was in Mill Valley that she first became actively interested in schools. She was a Parent-Teacher Assn. chairman of parent education and later a P-TA president. She served on the education advisory council where she worked closely with the board of education on bond issues, tax increases and other matters.

Mrs. Deedy served two terms on the Mill Valley School District board and was chairman for three years. Then she took a year off "to concentrate on dahlias and diapers."

AFTER THAT year she got restless. She had been interested in the College of Marin since she had lived in Marin, and with the encouragement of friends, she ran for the college board.

In that election she polled a surprising 9,050 votes, to run more than 1,500 votes ahead of the second highest candidate. On the board she joined Mrs. Ada M. Fusselman, the first woman to be elected a member.

Betty Deedy feels that the junior college is a "unique opportunity for people right in their own backyard."

Now in her second year of a four-year term on the board, she believes that the college "is still at a point now where its real potential hasn't begun to be developed."

The college shouldn't be a simple transfer school, she insists. There is "immeasurable opportunity" for terminal type courses, she feels, and always many possibilities for adult education.

"Exciting things could be made available as we expand as a community college," she says. The board is now studying the possibilities for an extended day program with courses leading to an associate in Arts degree. And this, Mrs. Deedy believes, will be a "very exciting thing to watch develop at the college."

ASIDE FROM the challenge offered by an expanding population, "anytime a school board has the challenge of selecting a new administrator, the school experiences a new kind of vitalization," she points out. With the approaching retirement of President Austin, this subject is of top priority in the thoughts of board members.

She believes that Marin County has the opportunity now to begin development of a good integrated educational program. "In spite of the excellent work being done, there is more that can be done," she declares.

Under the present setup, it is logical for some districts to have a stronger program than others, and offer more preparation in one area than another, she says.

"If they could only realize they are not going to be hurt individually as administrators or as school districts if they are told 'you can do better here than you are doing,'" she says reflectively. "I never see why people get on the defensive."

MRS. DEEDY feels the junior college has a "real obligation" to point out that prospective students need to be strong in certain areas so that they don't have to do remedial work at the college. A "deplorable" number of students has to take remedial English, for example, at the college.

"I'm not saying that teachers are doing a poor job in high school. There are a couple of factors at work here. But I'm convinced the English curriculum at the secondary level could be strengthened. Academic standards at every level, right back to elementary school, should be high, and students should work to their capacity," she says firmly.

She also believes it is mandatory for parents to know if their children are actually working at the capacity of other students at the same level. She deplores "the reticence on the part of some school people to be quite candid with parents."

She believes that students should be guided to areas where they are capable of achievement. "We can be more realistic and honest and do a better job of helping young people prepare themselves for better citizenship and the competition of life," she says.

AN ATTRACTIVE, intelligent woman, unusually well qualified for her work on the college board, Betty Deedy believes that women are doing a great deal for their communities today.

She doesn't believe that there would be fewer problems if women stayed home. She is a woman who thoroughly enjoys her family and the work she does outside the home. "How can you help being interested in education?" she asks.

And Husband Dan observes: "She's a dedicated soul. She believes in what she's doing and works at it."

Scottie Learns To Talk— Thanks To Speech Therapy

Wonder what will be done with the Easter seal contribution you mailed—or, are going to mail — to the Marin County Society for Handicapped Children and Adults?

Well, the Easter Seal Speech Therapy Center located at 1936 Sir Francis Drake boulevard in Kentfield represents one dramatic use made of these contributions.

The center, first of its kind in Marin, has proven highly successful in a number of speech improvement undertakings, according to Miss Jean Maraist, the director-therapist.

AS AN EXAMPLE of the accomplishments of the center, Miss Maraist can cite the case of 4-year-old Scottie, a boy who was not talking when he began his therapy and who now is discovering the wonders of the new world of words.

Scottie's mother brought him to the summer speech therapy program in 1959 when he was three and one-half years old. She was concerned over his disinterest in learning to talk. He was first given an evaluation and his hearing was found to be normal. There were no apparent physical involvements, according to the physician's report and the therapist's observations. During an interview with the mother, she described her child as a placid little boy who preferred to play alone—a child who did very little "babbling" as a baby and made his wishes known by pointing and gesturing.

Because he was the baby of the family, his older brothers and sisters interpreted his gestures and talked for him.

Following evaluation, the therapist explained that most children of his age are speaking in sentences and have a vocabulary of nearly 1,000 words. It was felt that Scottie's tonsillectomy and hospitalization along with several childhood illnesses had some relation to his delayed language development.

The task ahead was to encourage a need for language.

Scottie received speech therapy during the summer program and enrolled in the Easter Seal Speech Center in Kentfield. The therapist and Scottie first spent a great deal of time making friends. With no nursery school experience, he was now learning to play together and to share.

THROUGH THE use of toys and objects familiar to the child, the therapist set up "play situations" in which Scottie had to participate verbally. Everything was given a name and pointing brought no rewards. By simplifying her level of communication to short sentences, while "acting out" familiar routines (called "parallel talk") the therapist presented a level of language which the child could understand and wanted to imitate. New words then appeared that were previously sounds. Further progress found Scottie combining several words into short phrases.

Today Scottie's sessions with his therapist are active ones. The new world of words is being discovered and new experiences can be related.

However, not all the attention was directed to the child. Scottie's mother attended the parent study group held each month at the center. A private conference with the therapist every two months enabled her to recognize signs of progress in various areas of development. Therapy did not stop at the front door of the center—the mother has learned to use home and family situations as language learning experiences.

Language development is, of course, progressive. The goal, still to be reached, is verbal communication that is understood and accepted by the listener. Scottie is now better equipped to benefit from nursery experience this fall. Learning will continue, but the beginnings stimulated by speech therapy, were of great importance.

TOYS HAVE PLAYED an important part in the speech therapy of little Scottie at the Easter Seal Speech Therapy Center in Kentfield. His therapist, Miss Jean Maraist, has set up "play situations" which have required the lad to use voice in participating. The result: Well, it's apparent in this photo.

Wood Sculpture By Marinite Acclaimed

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

From whittling in the kitchen with a penknife to one-man shows of her wood sculpture within three years is the remarkable record of Marin County artist Clara S. Bass.

True, Mrs. Bass has a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California and has studied at the New York Art League, the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco and at the College of Marin. And she was an art teacher at Balboa and Lowell high schools in San Francisco for many years. But she has had no instruction whatsoever in wood sculpture.

Yet her figure, "The Disenchanted," won first prize for sculpture at last year's Marin Art and Garden Fair, and her works are currently on display through April 16 at the Street Fair Gallery in San Francisco in her second one-man show. The first was in 1956 at the Lucien Labaudt Gallery in San Francisco.

Though the artist's oil paintings—many of them in what has been called "stained glass style"—are interesting too, it is the story of Clara Bass' sculpture that will be told here.

It began thus:

"One day (in 1953) I was sitting in the kitchen of our home at Forest Knolls after illness had forced me to retire from teaching, and a friend brought in a large pine burl. 'Is this what you keep in your road to ruin our tires?' he teased. Some time after that I sat down and picked at the burl with a penknife, and before long I had three faces on it. Since it had a hollow space, I used it for a planter.

"MY SECOND piece was a madrone root I carved into a face that suggested to me the anguish at Hiroshima, and from then on I started carving any piece of suitable wood I could find in the woods around our house, as well as many pieces friends and neighbors gave me.

"Soon I was working on bigger things and got tired of the heaps of chips in the kitchen, so my husband built a studio nearby where things would not have to be put away."

Now Clara Bass finds that woods have an irresistible attraction for her. She works with all kinds—redwood, rosewood, teak, mahogany and lignum vitae, her favorite. Madonnas are a frequent subject.

"Often called iron mahogany, lignum vitae is the hardest wood known to man—so hard that ship's bearings are made of it that can be used without grease because of the natural oiliness of the wood. I have to wear goggles when I work with it because the sharp splinters could put one's eyes out. It is beautiful too, with light outside and dark inside. Other artists tell me it's much harder than stone to carve."

Mrs. Bass uses sketches to work from very rarely. "I let my ideas evolve as the wood dictates," she explained.

Sometimes the wood surprises her. First instance of this kind was the famous "Weeping Madonna" plaque she exhibited in 1957 at the Trade Fair in Sausalito. When a "tear" developed at one corner of the madonna's eye and rolled slowly down her face, it caused so many comments that people came great distances to see it. And Mrs. Bass received inquiries about it from all over the world.

THEN THERE was a great commotion when the madonna was stolen.

"I heard later it was returned," she said, "but I don't know whether that is true or not. Actually I'm not interested in having my work known for phenomena—I want it to be judged as art."

Another surprise came when she chiseled into a satiny-silver piece of cypress driftwood and found a beautifully grained golden heart that became the face of "Head in the Wind."

Latest of her surprises is a lignum vitae plaque showing two girls' heads, which she calls "The Sisters." The face of one of the sisters is turning lighter all the time, and it's not due to the normal light outside and dark inside of the wood, for she used only the heart.

Surprising too is how Mrs. Bass, only average in height and weight, has learned a special technique of handling without assistance heavy pieces, such as the madonna carved out of a 200-pound redwood log.

"Of course," she laughed, "we fall down together sometimes, and they have thrown me occasionally."

Questioned as to what she considers her style to be, Mrs. Bass said that it leans toward the modern and interpretive rather than to the representational. Neither is it abstract. Except for portraits, in her paintings she uses no subject matter.

MRS. BASS IS a member of the San Francisco Women Artists, the Society of Western Artists, and the Marin Society of Artists.

She has had one-man shows all over Marin County and at Joseph Magnin's in San Francisco, in addition to the ones named previously.

Among other places she has exhibited outside of Marin are the Museum of Art and De Young Museum in San Francisco, the Jack London Square and Oakland Art Museum in Oakland, the California State Fair and Crocker Art Museum in Sacramento, the Richmond Art Center, and the Sculpture Center in New York City.

Her first award in sculpture came in 1956 with a second prize in sculpture at the Marin Art and Garden Fair. There followed an honorable mention in 1957 at the San Francisco Museum of Art; first award and honorable

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By BERT BROWN, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Air

"Why Does My Quilted Coat Cause Itching?"

Dear Mrs. E.R.B.

It is no wonder that your quilted coat produces itching. Inside this particular quilting is a light-weight fiberglass lining. It is normally fluffy and thick and insulates against cold, making the garment quite warm. However, as the coat is worn, the thickness tends to decrease and with it some insulating power is lost, too.

The answer to your specific question, is found in the fact that glass fibers are brittle. They tend to break, get lumpy, pulverized, powder and sometimes penetrate the fabric. When these glass particles come in contact with your skin they can cause a most distressing itch. Apparently that has happened with your coat. There are not as many of these coats around as there used to be immediately after World War II. Perhaps they are coming back and your experience will serve to inform others.

If the lining is zippered-in, it should be removed before cleaning. It should not be subject to any pressure when finishing as that will pack down the fiberglass and reduce its insulating qualities. Wear may cause a pulverizing of the glass fibers and the itching of which you complain may result. Look for a fiberglass label in your quilted coat. If it is there, inform your cleaner and handle with care.

Here's Some Work By Marin's Clara Bass

She Has Earned Recognition For Her Sculpture In Wood

THIS PANEL of Madonna and Child was carved into a 100-year-old redwood door given Mrs. Bass by a friend. She first planned to make it into a table.

A GOLDEN HEART found in this satiny-silver cypress driftwood piece gave Mrs. Bass the inspiration for this piece called "Head in the Wind"

"PROTECTION" is the name of this African rosewood figure of a mother and her two children which won honorable mention in sculpture at the San Francisco Women Artists Show at the San Francisco Museum of Art in 1957.

Her Ambition: To Carve Every Kind Of Wood

mention in 1958 at the Richmond Art Center; and the first prize last year in the Marin Art and Garden Fair.

A native of St. Joseph, Mo., Clara moved with her family to Salt Lake City, Utah, when she was a small child, and she lived there until she enrolled at the University of California.

"None of my family was artistically inclined," she said, "but my mother had an instinctive appreciation of art and encouraged me."

WHILE SHE was a teacher at Balboa High School and acting head of the art department, Clara married Isadore E. Bass, formerly an attorney in New York, now with the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue in San Francisco.

They live in the weekend home they bought in 1946 at Forest Knolls and remodeled for year-round living in 1948. At her studio nearby on Sir Francis Drake boulevard, Mrs. Bass has had visitors from many parts of the world.

At present her ambition is to live long enough "to carve every kind of wood I can find."

A SURPRISING THING about this recent work—a lignum vitae plaque entitled "The Sisters"—is, according to Mrs. Bass, the fact that the face of the sister on the left has steadily been turning a lighter hue since she completed it.

The Pony Express: Short-Lived, But Long Remembered

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

One hundred years ago tomorrow, a slender young man named Billy Hamilton tied a leather pouch to the saddle of a nervous white mustang, vaulted into the seat, touched his spurs to the mount and dashed eastward out of Sacramento in a cloud of dust and a bedlam of cheers.

At almost the same hour, young Billy Richardson duplicated the process with a chestnut mare in St. Joseph, Mo. The principal difference was that, added to the cacophony of noise with which the citizenry bid Richardson godspeed, was the raucous whistle of a Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad locomotive. There were no rails west of "St. Joe."

Thus was born the shortest-lived and most romantic mail-carrying service in United States history: The Pony Express.

This organization, which undertook to carry the mail in 10 days across 1,900 miles of Indian - and - outlaw - infested wilderness, was the project of three highly respected Missouri businessmen with beards like those of the prophets in the Bible they gave to every employee, but with daring enterprise that was strictly 19th century American. Their names were William H. Russell, Alexander Majors and William Bradford Waddell.

THOSE NAMES will live again as the nation notes tomorrow the centenary of the Pony Express which enriched their fame but not their fortunes. And they will again be prominently recalled when the Pony Express run is reenacted in July in an all-out celebration timed to coincide with various other festivals along the route the horses ran through Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California.

A great-grandson of the third member of the firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell is seeing to that. He is Waddell F. Smith of San Rafael, whose home on Margarita drive includes a fascinating museum dedicated to his famous ancestor, the Pony Express Retreat.

As president of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn., Smith is in charge of the July centennial run. And as such he is working closely with the U.S. Post Office Department, which will issue a special four-cent commemorative stamp and stamped envelope for the occasion. Both will have first day sale on July 19, the day the rerun starts: the stamp at Sacramento, the envelope at St. Joseph.

The Pony Express was no child of the Post Office Department. It was strictly a private contract operation. A 10-cent stamp would carry a letter as far as the rails reached. But the price to carry that same letter over the Pony Express route was $5. And there was no stamp to show prepayment — although in 1861 Wells, Fargo and Co., as agent for the Pony Express at various way stations, issued Pony Express stamps of its own on the western portion of the route.

NEVERTHELESS, the Post Office Department has always been inordinately proud of the Pony Express. It pictured a post horse and rider (which might have been one of the 480 horses and youthful riders

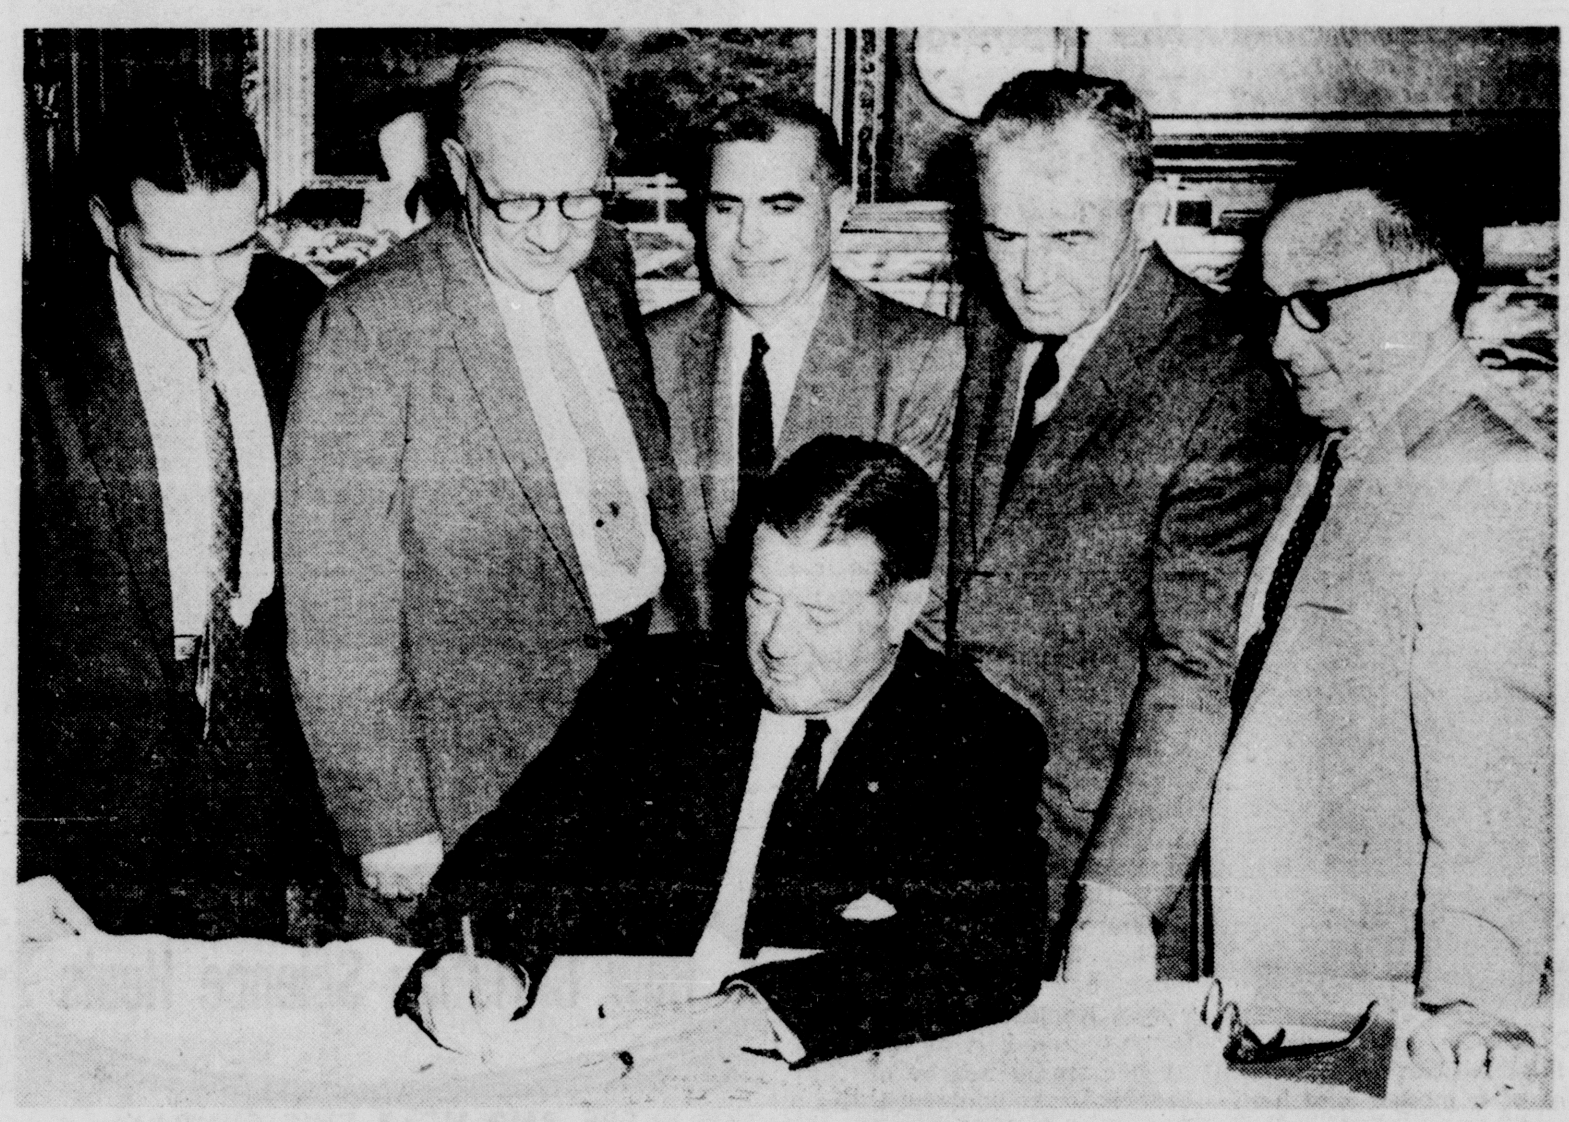
THE FACIAL FOLIAGE made them look like patriarchs, but the ideas of these three men were typically 19th Century go-getter American. They are (from left) William H. Russell, Alexander Majors and William Bradford Waddell, founders of (among other things) the Pony Express. San Francisco artist Julian Links painted this composite portrait for Waddell F. Smith of San Rafael.

THIS IS THE EMBLEM adopted by the National Pony Express Centennial Assn. for the celebration this year of the 100th anniversary of the beginning of the Pony Express.



WADDELL F. SMITH of San Rafael (seated), president of the National Pony Express Centennial Assn., drafts an outline of arrangements for the Pony Express 100-year celebration at Cosmos Club in Washington, D.C. Behind him are, left to right, Bradley Paterson, representing the White House; Conrad Wirth, director of the National Park Service; Roy E. Appleman, staff historian of the National Park Service; Edwin H. Burgess, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and a director of the Centennial Assn., and Howard Lewis of the Post Office Department.

The Multiplex issue on stereo broadcasting is finally getting some action. FCC has pushed into the distant future other methods of stereo broadcasting, such as TV-AM, and will concentrate only on FM multiplex systems of stereo broadcasting. Evaluation and studies of the various FM systems was scheduled to start in March. It's anybody's guess as to how long FCC will take before they decide which method of FM multiplexing will be used.

If you presently own a high quality FM tuner, the simple adaption of the appropriate adapter will convert your FM tuner to a stereo model. If you have an inexpensive FM tuner, chances are you will not get satisfactory reception on the multiplexed channels.

Are you planning a stereo system for your home? Why not use our building block plan and start with a high quality FM tuner. The FM tuner can be plugged into your existing radio, phono, or TV. This will immediately bring a world of fine music into your home. The cost? We now have the new Sargent - Rayment FM tuner designed to fulfill not only today's reqquirements for flawless reproduction of FM programming, but also to meet the exacting needs of tomorrow's broadband multiplex transmission. All this for only $97.50. Come in for a pleasant demonstration.

Don't forget to tune-in on our FM program "Anything Goes" Saturday afternoons from 3 to 4:30 on KPEN, 101.3 on your FM dial.

of Russell, Majors and Waddell) on the 2-cent stamp of 1869, in the first "pictorial" series of United States stamps ever issued. And in 1940, on the 80th anniversary of the first run, it issued a special 3-cent (letter rate) commemorative stamp.

The Pony Express caught the fancy of pioneer America. The young riders (most were in their teens) became popular heroes. The lone horse and rider, dashing hell-for-leather across the vast wide open spaces, became a symbol of America's untrammeled will to expand. Indians had played hob with 24-day schedule of the Overland Mail stage coaches between the Missouri River and California. It took months to get a letter by boat from the east coast around the Horn. But the ponies outran (or their riders out-shot) the Indians. These lonesome riders made it—and on time—with 80 way stations on their long 1,900-mile route. From Sacramento, the letters were carried to San Francisco by river steamer.

The Pony Express lasted only 18 months. And it was doomed before it began—doomed by three strands of metal: the westward-creeping tracks of the railroads, and the much faster-unrolling slender wire of the telegraph, moving from both east and west.

The partners recognized the railroad would soon outmode their venture. At a civic ceremony in St. Joseph on that inaugural day 100 years ago tomorrow, Majors called the Pony Express the forerunner of "a more important and greater enterprise, which must soon reach its culmination, viz., the construction of a road upon which a tireless iron horse will start his overland journey." But they underestimated the telegraph.

ON JUNE 16, 1860, little more than two months after the ponies started their runs, Congress authorized a subsidy of up to $400,000 toward completing the transcontinental telegraph to connect the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast. The Pacific Telegraph Co. of Nebraska immediately began building west from Julesburg, Colo., where a Russell, Majors and Waddell way station was run by a colorful and explosive character named Jack Slade (later hanged by vigilantes in Montana). And the Overland Telegraph Co. of California started building east from Mt. Churchill, Nev.—another way point on the route of the Pony Express. Their lines were to meet at Salt Lake City.

Pacific Telegraph won the race, reaching the Mormon capital on Oct. 20, 1861. Four days later, the Overland Telegraph crew reached Salt Lake City, and on Oct. 26 the lines were joined and telegraph keys tapped out their coded messages coast to coast.

No more Pony Express runs started after that date. The bold venture was over. In the 18 months, it had made 308 runs, and had carried 34,753 letters with the loss of only one pouch. Receipts were estimated at $91,404. But it had cost Russell, Majors and Waddell about half a million. Ben Holladay, the pioneer freighting king, took over the stock and equipment in payment of a note, and subsequently sold stock and stations in the western part to Wells Fargo. But by then, the pony runs were long since ended.

Brief though it was, the Pony Express played a glorious role. The intrepid riders on their speedy mounts brought California the first news of Abraham Lincoln's nomination and subsequent election, of the bombing of Ft. Sumter, of the declaration of war against the Confederate States, and of the early battles of the war that followed.

ON OCT. 26, 1861, the day the telegraph lines were joined at Salt Lake City, a farewell tribute appeared as an editorial in the Sacramento Bee. It closed:

"Thou wert the pioneer of a continent in the rapid transmission of intelligence between its peoples, and have dragged in your train the lightning itself. . . . Rest upon your honors. . . . Nothing that has blood and sinews was able to overcome your energy and ardor; but a senseless, soulless thing that eats not, sleeps not, tires not—a thing that cannot distinguish space—that knows not the difference between a rod of ground and the circumference of the globe itself, has encompassed, overthrown and routed you. This is no disgrace, for flesh and blood cannot always war against the elements. Rest, then, in peace: for thou hast run thy race, thou has followed thy course, thou has done the work that was given thee to do."

There has been nothing like it since.

But there will be—for one run each way—starting next July 19.

GL 3-6070 — Open Friday Nights

THIS HUMAN SEE-SAW, being demonstrated by Mrs. William Deeths, Mannequin League of Marin president, and Miss Tami Evans, not only is fine exercise, but it also demands and promotes coordination and cooperation. Here they start off on this team exercise.

THE EXERCISE SEEMS to be going very well at this point. And Mrs. Deeths and Miss Evans seem to be enjoying themselves. It's all part of the model's program to keep their figures trim. Dancing is another means used to keep the muscles toned and figures trim.

WHOOPS! SOMETHING went wrong. But the two young ladies laugh off the slip. It's all a lot of fun. And it made a good picture series for Independent-Journal photographer Dick Steinheimer who took these and other photos appearing on these pages.

MRS. JOHN WARD, a provisional member of the Mannequin League of Marin, puts a cultural touch into her stair descending technique by using for the book balancing prop a work on the opera. The book on the head is a time-honored means of promoting walking poise. And it is still much used and highly effective.

They Model For Fun – And For Charity

By ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

"It's for charity—and for fun!"

That sums up the purposes and activities of the Mannequinn League of Marin, according to its attractive press chairman, Mrs. Rhoda Denton.

For charity:

When a benefit-sponsor contacts the activities chairman, Mrs. Les Vogel Jr. goes into action at once to schedule, for fitting dates and for the actual show date, some or all of the models needed. Sometimes home obligations keep some of the members from participating at a given time, but as the phone calls fly—and sometimes dates can be shuffled around—the required number of models arrive at the benefit.

The league acts as a clearing-house for volunteer, trained models for benefits, supplementing rather than replacing other sources. Club presidents and clothing stores in Marin have been sent brochures describing the league's services.

"We are all quite serious about doing this charitable work," said the league's petite, blonde president, Mrs. William Deeths, at a recent workshop meeting.

For fun:

The social meeting of the league is held the first Friday of each month at the Meadow Club, at 10:30 a.m. Members may stay on for lunch at the club. "For fun" also includes enjoying the self-improvement courses at workshop meetings held on the third Monday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the Corinthian Yacht Club, or in playrooms of members' homes.

League models work to maintain a certain dress-size rather than a certain weight. (At present, the models range from size 7 through size 16.) Dieting is strictly voluntary and individual. Figure and posture-neatness are stressed.

Teachers at the workshop are members who are ex-professional models. They demonstrate hair-styling, still photograph techniques, makeup, walking, pivoting (and general fashion-runway technique), dancing and exercises to tone muscles, plus a few modeling tricks of the trade, secret even to a nosy reporter.

Rules they all adhere to, whether teachers or provisionals, and which are most important in working with fashion coordinators at the shows are:

1.—Smile.
2.—No complaints.
3.—Outer grace means inner beauty.
4.—Be punctual.

Desirable personality traits for models to cultivate are: Cheerfulness, responsibility, consideration, enthusiasm, confidence.

Organized last fall, the league "just grew" out of the need for more trained models for charitable events in Marin, and the sincere desire of some attractive young Marin women to aid their community in a way they had the training and initiative to do, as well as to improve themselves and have some fun in accomplishing these goals. The Topsy-like growth started because of the combined efforts of Mrs. John Bellamy Jr., Mrs. Deeths, and Mrs. Lewis Denton. Mrs. Deeths, president, is in charge of the workshop.

Others holding office are Mrs. Eugene Wilson, vice president; Mrs. George Coburn, secretary; Mrs. Henry Skinner, treasurer; Mrs. Les Vogel, Jr., activities chairman; Mrs. Harding McPhun, membership chairman; and Mrs. Lewis Denton, press chairman.

Active membership consists of Mesdames Corky Jones, Leo Strauss, Les Vogel Jr., William Deeths, Norman Sanguinetti, Harding McPhun, George Coburn, John Bellamy Jr., Lewis Denton, Marie Zahrt, Henry Skinner, Clarence Amonette Jr., Rudy Lang, Luciano Sabella, Eugene Hiller, David Stewart, LeRoy Page, Boyd Lang, Alvin J. Harris, Richard Evans, Victor Burner Jr., William Wallace and William Donohue, and Miss Tami Evans.

Committee members are Mrs. Edson Adams and Mrs. Eugene Wilson.

Provisionals are Mrs. John Malone, Mrs. E. J. Walters, and Mrs. John Ward.

Inactive (temporarily) are Mrs. James Zieroff, Mrs. John Levy and Diane Pettijohn.

What about modeling as a career for young girls who dream of it? Some sound answers come from one of the league's model-teachers, Corky Jones.

She advises: Modeling can be an interesting career but it involves much hard work and little money or recognition until a girl becomes a really top-notch model.

"Modeling is not the glamorous profession it is generally thought to be," Corky insisted firmly. "It is very demanding." Girls must watch their weight, get lots of sleep, always be on their toes—not much time for after-hours fun for a busy model.

What are the rewards?

Corky lists a few on the self-improvement list: Models cultivate a high degree of poise, learn to choose and wear clothes well; learn to walk, sit, and enter a room gracefully, and many other feminine graces which will always add to a woman's charm, no matter what her age.

ROPE-SKIPPING, Mrs. Richard Evans finds, is another excellent way to tone up the muscles. It is also a fine developer of coordination and timing.

WITH A COPY OF "The Development of Executive Talent" balanced on her head, Mrs. E. J. Walters works on developing her posture and coordination — both essential to any model, professional or amateur.

AFTER HER SESSION with the jumping rope, Mrs. Evans, in robe, relaxes in the Finnish-inspired Sauna Room at the Leo Strauss home while Mrs. Strauss explains how the little stove (Sauna) will give her a heat-bath while overhead sunlamps tan her skin. Then she will duck into a nearby cold shower, and wrap up well to rest in a comfortable chair.

COVER PHOTO

TAMI EVANS touches up her makeup. Tami, 19, is currently Miss Marin. A model for three years, she recently graduated from a dental-nursing school .Tami recommends modeling for every young girl, even if she does not follow it as a career. She says it develops self-confidence as well as training in makeup, clothes, posture, etc.

MRS. LEO STRAUSS finds she can munch that apple with no qualms. Mrs. George Coburn and her measuring tape have just found that her waistline measurement is perfect.

BOOK REVIEWS

Sausalitan's Novel Has Shipyard Scene

BRIGHT WEB IN THE DARKNESS by Alexander Saxton, St. Martin's Press, 308 pages, $3.95. Reviews by Don Keown.

This is the third novel by Sausalito author Alexander Saxton. And an excellent job, it is.

The story is laid in San San Francisco and the Bay Area's bustling shipyards of World War II. Saxton knows his city and his industry well. He also knows and understands people — both Negro and white—, and his time.

There are two very moving love stories. And there are big social issues. A major point is one which many liberals overlook: That while labor unions and racial tolerance are both appendages of and vital to true democracy, they do not always go hand in hand. Some of our labor unions, in other words, have not always—and some still do not—practice racial tolerance within their own ranks.

This was true of some of the shipyard unions during World War II. And it is around the struggle of the Negro workers against this discrimination that author Saxton has written a most readable and compassionate book.

This One Has Dixie Setting

THE SEDUCER by Jule Lange, Random House, 407 pages, $4.95.

Billed as "a novel about married women who seek the estate of love," this story really has two backgrounds—one, a small Texas city built around an aviation plant, the other the magnolia-scented old plantation Deep South which exists largely in just such books as this.

But the author is adept at locales and characterizations. Unfortunately for him, bores and silly women, no matter how skillfully they might be depicted, remain just that—bores and silly women. And those are what most of his principal characters are. It is difficult for the reader to feel very strongly about any of them, or to really care deeply what happens to them.

Original Art To Be Auctioned For Awards Fund Tomorrow

Original art at auction prices will be the attraction tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The occasion will be the Marin Society of Artists' first big art auction, to start at 2 p.m. in the Francis Young Gallery.

All auction material will be on display in the gallery. Included will be oils, prints, watercolors, ceramics, jewelry weaving, and sculpture pieces. Society officers hail the event as a rare opportunity for collectors to acquire fine original art at minimal prices.

The purpose of the auction is to supplement the fine arts awards fund initiated by the society this year for use during the organization's big annual show at the Marin County Arts and Garden Fair this summer.

All work to be auctioned tomorrow has been donated by artist members of the society. And some of Marin's finest artists will be represented.

The sale will open with a period of silent bidding. Then an auctioneer will take over.

Many of the artists will be present and available for consultation.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

TELL ME AGAIN, PROFESSOR

Count trees you say by bored and baptized "clumps."
Grapes by a balancing "chisler."
Tell me, do I count the second-wind times
Spent measuring sugar cubes by lumps?
Count fish you say by a dancing strawberry "catch."
My whales by a shampood "school."
How shall I count leaning penguin times
I've sewed curtsying patches upon a patch?
Count laborers by nutmeg, swinging "Hands,"
Soldiers by cleaned sun "arms."
How do I count free-wheeling times
We've ridden moving vans?
Count cattle by circumambulating "head."
Lions by ripened grey barley "pride."
Tell me to count again uncushioned times
Kneeling hunting words by a white mountain bed.

SAN ANSELMO — HELEN D. McGINNIS

YOUNG TREE

Young, naked tree polished black by the sliding rain and played upon by roundabout winds, Graceful child of the earth and sun, in patterns of brittle delineation,
You stretch taut fingers to the sky, impatient of your winter watch,
Straining to fulfill the ritual of spring and shatter the air with a multitude of small miracles.

Marin Music Chest: For 17 Years Devoted To Beauty

"Marin County Monday will experience a new, a refreshing kind of financial campaign . . . a campaign that is not linked with human distress; no grim spectre of disease or misery will be used to elicit contributions. Instead, the campaign will be dedicated to beauty, to song, to music, to the perpetuation of human happiness and gaiety. Marin citizens will not be asked to give anything . . . they will be given the opportunity to purchase for themselves the privilege of hearing great singers, great instrumentalists and seeing a performance of a great ballet.

"The investment may be made through the Marin Musical Chest. Voluntary workers, whose only compensation will be the knowledge of a civic good done, will be in the field . . . The astonishing thing about the Musical Chest plan is its simplicity.

"Marin Musical Chest field workers come to us Monday bringing a magnificent opportunity. Let us avail ourselves of it. Let us buy beauty for Marvelous Marin."

THE ABOVE paragraphs are excerpts from an editorial that appeared in the San Rafael Independent, May 13, 1933. What was stated in the editorial then, still holds good today. The organization known as the "Marin Musical Chest" has changed its name to the Marin Music Chest. It has kept faith with the public. It has brought to the people of Marin over a long period of years the greatest music in the world, for the lowest possible admission price.

Monday, over 1,000 volunteer workers will contact Marin residents from Sausalito to Pt. Reyes, selling "Beauty for Marin" in the form of a subscription to the Marin Music Chest summer concert season which opens in June and runs through September, presenting an outstanding artist of concert and opera on one Sunday afternoon during the months of June, July and August in beautiful Forest Meadows on the campus of Dominican College in San Rafael. The closing concert in September is the only evening attraction on the series and usually features a performance of the San Francisco Ballet accompanied by members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. It is hoped this year, according to Mrs. Wallace Scott, president of the Music Chest, to again present this group which has now acquired international fame.

How much is a subscription to the Marin Music Chest? There are two classifications:

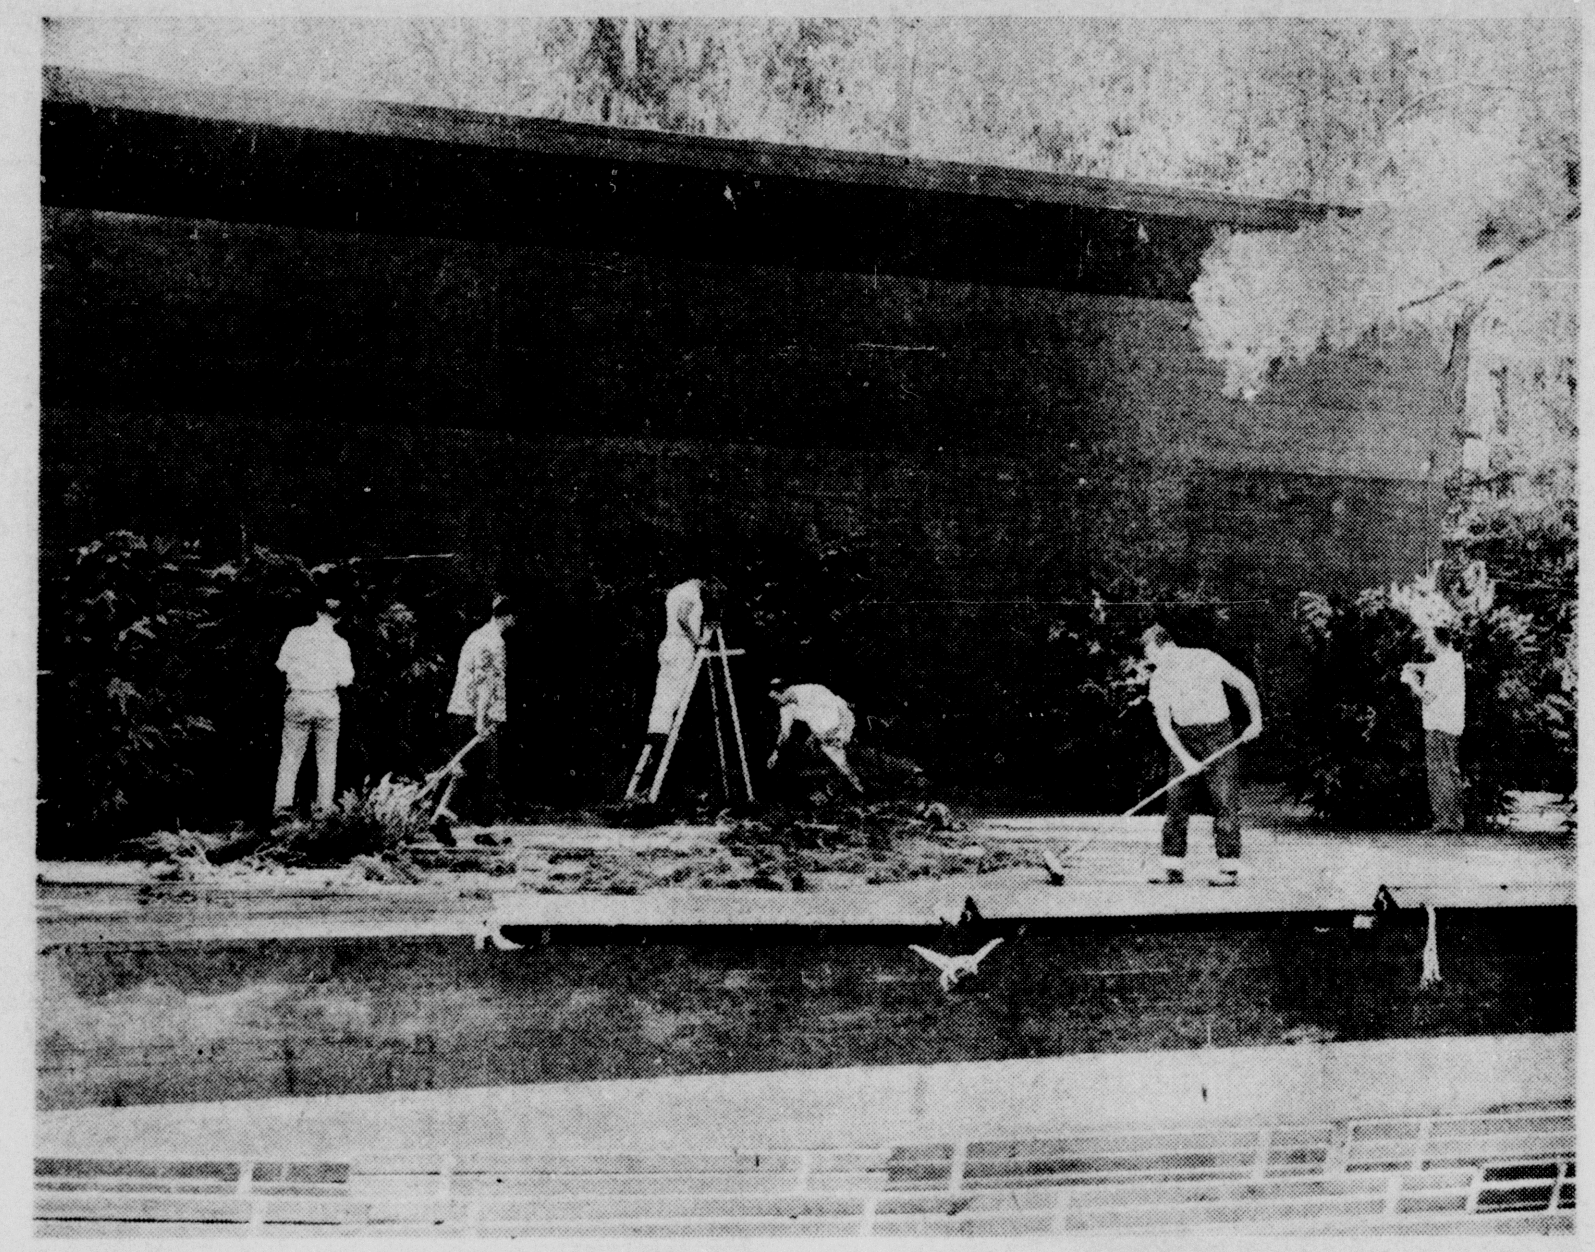
Five dollars includes two tickets to every concert during current season, mailed in advance; 10 dollars, four tickets, etc. Subscriptions of less than $5 entitles subscriber to purchase one 50 cent admission ticket to every concert upon presentation of subscription card at gates of Forest Meadows, afternoon or evening of concert scheduled. Non-subscribers are charged $2.50 per person, per concert.

HOW IS THE subscription money used?

Five per cent of money subscribed is set aside for scholarships for talented young Marin County musicians. To date, over $15,000 has been awarded in scholarships (an average of four $200 scholarships are awarded annually): the balance is used for artists fees.

Where may subscriptions be obtained?

Though county headquarters, Hoy's, 1133 Fourth street, San Rafael, open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. with Mrs. William Rattray, county drive chairman in charge, or through chairmen and workers in immediate vicinity.



THIS IS HOW the huge stage at Forest Meadows looks prior to a Marin Music Chest concert. The crew here at work preparing for an upcoming attraction is composed entirely of men associated with the First National Bank, most of them affiliated with the music chest for many years. Left to right are Fred Brylka, Martin Weis, Horace Carono, Harry Stephenson, Ray D'Ambra and Don Swing. Other stage crew members who also double as ticket-takers at the concerts include Robert Lollick and Ralph Mannella.

Marin Artist Has Show In San Francisco

Twenty-five of the distinctive oil paintings and watercolors of San Rafael artist, Winifred Koch, are now on exhibit at Sutter Towers Hospital in San Francisco through June 30.

Mrs. Koch, an active young member of the Marin Society of Artists, and a member of that group's Artist's Advisory Council, has been painting a number of years and has developed an unusual style and technique of glowing, transparent color application in both oil and watercolor. Her work is becoming increasingly popular, and she pleases all tastes in subject matter with figure studies, landscapes and still-lifes.

A Californian most of her life, Mrs. Koch has had intensive training at the Oakland College of Arts and Crafts, the San Francisco Academy of Art, and College of Marin. She has participated in many northern California shows with great success, and maintains as her goal to paint in a fresh, stimulating style; to follow the concepts of her training, and to convey meaning to the laymen as well as to the artist.

Mrs. Koch's exhibit at Sutter Towers is the fourth in a continuous series of seven shows to be held by six Marin County artists. The shows are sponsored by the hospital to aid and encourage artists as well as to provide diversion and therapy for their patients.

Preceding Mrs. Koch's show were exhibits by Robert Carleton, Barbara Carpenter and Frank Milner. John Lynch will exhibit his work during June and July, and Eleanore Bender will show during August and September.

A combined show of all six artists will follow in October and November.

All of these shows are open to the public and may be seen between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. daily.

BETTY REED as Cinderella listens to the advice of Sylvia Moore, who plays Tizzie Twinkle, her fairy godmother. The San Francisco State Children's Theater will present "Cinderella and Tizzie Twinkle" next Saturday in the San Rafael High School auditorium as part of the Junior Theater of Marin series.

CINDERELLA

Junior Theater To Offer Fairy Tale On Saturday

The Junior Theater of Marin will continue its delightful series which has brought such fine entertainment to the boys and girls of the county with a performance of "Cinderella and Tizzie Twinkle" next Saturday.

There will be two performances again — at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. — on the stage of the San Rafael High School auditorium.

The cast and company will be from the San Francisco State Children's Theater, a group that has won wide acclaim for its talents in the children's entertainment field.

This new adaptation of the old fairy tale favorite, "Cinderella," is the work of Walter Mac.

John E. Martin is the director.

Betty Reed and Frances Ruderman will alternate in the role of Cinderella. Sylvia Moore plays the fairy godmother, Tizzie Twinkle.

The cast also includes Gary Peterson as the prince, Melania Haugen as the stepmother and Beatrice Blatchford, Joan Harryman and Marcie Grubstick as the stepsisters.

Tickets will be available at the door for children not holding season tickets.

Large groups wishing to make arrangements for group seating are advised to contact Mrs. Walter McDonald of Kentfield and make advance arrangements.

SAN RAFAEL ARTIST Winifred Koch has currently on exhibit at Sutter Towers Hospital in San Francisco 25 of her oil paintings and watercolors. It is part of the hospital's program to bring art to the institution as therapy and diversion for its patients, and at the same time provide artists of the area an opportunity to display their work.

Tips On Extending Blooms

Have you ever returned in early September from a vacation trip to have your neighbors tell you how much they had enjoyed your gorgeous flower garden while you were gone?

That's fine, of course, but if the flowers had barely started to bloom when you left and were already beginning to look a little seedy on your return, you're bound to have a let-down feeling of disappointment about the whole project.

Unfortunately, you have nobody to blame but yourself for a concentration of blooms at one period. It is not at all hard to extend the summer blooming period to cover a span of three or even four months.

TO OBTAIN earliest spring color you start the previous fall by planting bulbs like daffodils. Quickly following these spring flowers are perennials like alyssum saxatile and candytuft sempervirens. These are followed by somewhat later perennials like delphinium penstemon, or tritoma, by the quickest annuals like alyssum and annual candytuft, and by the petunias you started early indoors. Then come the zinnias and a number of other favorite annuals in mid-summer and early fall, with the latest African marigolds and chrysanthemums closing the season.

This succession of bloom is planned by the kind of flowers you grow and by the time you start the seeds. Some flowers like asters or cosmos come into bloom when they are subjected to a certain length day, and early planting will therefore not hurry the blooms, although it does encourage larger plants and more flowers when they do bloom. Others are indifferent to day length and will bloom whenever the plants are large enough.

A further method of extending blooming periods of the flowers in your garden is to remove withered flowers. When a plant has bloomed freely and has begun to produce seed it spends its energy in the seed production instead of further bloom. Removing the old flower heads encourages the plant to continue to bloom because no seed crop is being formed.

SOME KINDS like snapdragon, alyssum and petunia profit from very heavy pruning after the plants have passed their peak, for they will then make a fresh, new plant and go through another blooming cycle. In the case of petunias in a mixed flower border it is good practice to cut back a few plants while others are left in bloom in order to have fresh growth coming on steadily for the future.

So start some petunias right away, mix perennial and annual flowers in your beds, plant various kinds of flowers, put some in later than others, and cut out old blooms, and there you are, all set for a full summer of bloom instead of just the two weeks you are away from home.

Northern Californians Pass Up Good Bet In Dogwood

A single dogwood bloom, seen by itself, is not apt to start you dancing in the street. And the gardener who sees his first bloom on his first dogwood tree is apt to experience a momentary disappointment.

"Is this what I've been waiting for," he asks, as the stiff bract unfolds.

As the tree continues to unfold its seasonal show, however, his tune changes to one of joy. "I've never seen anything like it. It's beautiful," he is likely to conclude. For in full bloom, his dogwood is a picture of delicacy — airy and gay, catching the light to form patterns of beauty unanticipated by the initial bloom.

Why is it we don't see more of these delightful small trees in Northern California gardens? We are told that we will see more and more as time proves their worth in our local growing conditions. Being natives of the East Coast (our own native dogwoods are seldom grown commercially), it took some time before gardeners learned just how to handle them in California's different climate. This despite a long record of performance in some California gardens.

We know now from our own experience that summer water and part or filtered sun are most conductive to fine results. Rich, acid soil is the other prime requirement. You can engineer the latter by working copious amounts of leaf mold and some peat into the soil at planting time.

Dogwoods bloom later in spring than many of our spring blooming shrubs and trees — after most of the crab apples are through and long after the deciduous magnolias. If you plant them in the garden, locate them with this in mind, keeping them to the front so earlier bloomers can be seen through their bare branches and so that bloomed out shrubs don't hide them with their new foliage.

White Flowering Dogwood is probably most common, but Pink Flowering Dogwood is likely to catch your eye first. We vote for both in the same garden.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is this week's checklist for Marin gardeners:

- When first buds start forming, feedings in the rose garden bring bigger and better blooms in May. Ample water is just as important.
- Plant dahlias and gladiolus. Begonia seedlings will show up in nurseries this month.
- Check irrigation basins around citrus. Soil should be mounded to keep water from direct contact with the tree.
- The list of annuals for planting this month is long as your arm. Check nurseries for ideas.
- Bait for snails and slugs. Spray for aphis, thrips and leaf hoppers on roses. Insect control is easy when you start before they do.

QUILTED BEAUTYREST

Another great "First"...famous independent coil Beautyrest construction plus the added comfort of this new, smooth, quilted sleeping surface

Here it is, the new Quilted Beautyrest with the smoothest sleeping surface ever. Not a button or a tuft. And it's Beautyrest through and through, giving you the buoyant firmness that's kind to your back. Under the gay, quilted top individually pocketed coils push up under you for perfect body-fitting comfort. They never, never sag. In durability tests made by the United States Testing Company, Beautyrest lasted 3 times longer than ordinary connected coil mattresses. See, try new Quilted Beautyrest today.
